

INTRODUCTION
TO LATIN SYNTAX:

OR,

AN EXEMPLIFICATION OF THE RULES OF CONSTRUCTION,

As delivered in Mr. Ruddiman's Rudiments, without anticipating posterior Rules.

CONTAINING,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. THE RULES OF SYNTAX, with a brief illustration. | 3. EXAMPLES, taken for the most part from the classic authors. |
| 2. EXPLANATORY NOTES. | 4. ENGLISH EXERCISES. |

TO WHICH IS SUBJOINED,

AN EPITOME OF ANCIENT HISTORY,

FROM THE CREATION TO THE BIRTH OF CHRIST.

Intended as a proper mean to initiate boys in the useful study of HISTORY, while at the same time it serves to improve them in the knowledge of the LATIN TONGUE.

TO WHICH IS ADDED,

*A proper Collection of Historical and Chronological Questions;
With a Copious Index.*

By JOHN MAIR, A. M.

GLASGOW:

AT THE UNIVERSITY PRESS,

PRINTED BY JAMES MUNDELL, UNIVERSITY PRINTER.

EDINBURGH:

SOLD BY J. FAIRBAIRN, AND MUNDELL & SON.

1797.

Educ T 20917.9716

~~5282.24~~

~~Educ T 927.97.3~~

1851 June 9 libbed
Samuel A Green, of the Seneca Cham.
from Grafton, Mass.

P R E F A C E.

THE general approbation the following Essay met with on its first publication, having encouraged the author to turn his thoughts on that subject a second time, the whole has been revised with great care, several alterations made, considerable additions interperfed, and no pains spared to rectify every mistake, fupply every defect, and retrench every superfluity, in order to render the performance still more useful, by its being made, in all respects, as complete as possible. What seems further necessary, by way of preface, is to give the reader, in a few words, a more particular account of this Introduction, as it now stands; which is as follows:

THE rules of syntax here exemplified are taken from the Rudiments composed and published by Mr. Thomas Ruddiman, being generally allowed to be the most accurate and best system of that kind, and used not only in most of the schools in this kingdom, but translated into a foreign language, and taught in several places abroad. And as the rules are of two kinds, viz. primary or fundamental, to which all the rest are reducible; and secondary or elliptical, which are by far the most numerous; these latter rules are distinguished from the former by an asterisk on the margin.

To make the young scholar comprehend the meaning and extent of the rules with greater ease, each of them is illustrated with one or more examples of construed Latin; and, where it is necessary, grammatical terms are explained, and lists or catalogues of the words belonging to the rules, given. To which is subjoined, a pretty large collection of explanatory notes, exhibiting the exceptions, the varieties, the elegant phrases and modes of expression that occur in authors, and pointing out the method of supplying the elliptical constructions, and reducing them to the primary or fundamental rules. Some few of the notes are exemplified; the proper time of teaching the rest is left to the discretion of the master.

AFTER the notes, follow the examples; which are of two sorts. The first go only the length of this mark ¶; and are generally short, being intended purely for the exemplification of the rule to which they are subjoined. The second sort, which begin at the fore said mark, are longer; wherein not only the rule to which they are annexed is exemplified, but the preceding rules are again brought upon the field, in order to render them more familiar to the mind, and fix them more effectually in the memory.

MOST of the examples, whether of the first or second sort, are excerpted from the Latin authors, being such sentences as would admit of a literal translation, and are adapted to our purpose with little or no variation. Some of them indeed, for the sake of enriching the exemplification, are patched or made up of sentences coupled together: but the expressions, separately taken, are generally classical; and, it is hoped, no great impropriety will be found in the manner of their junction.

To the examples are subjoined, on each rule, a few English exercises, intended as another piece of recreation to the young student, as well as a further trial of his skill. In the examples, the Latin words being laid to his hand, he needs only, in order to make good Latin, attend to the declensions, conjugations, and rules of syntax; whereas, by these exercises, he will be obliged to go in search of vocables, and so by degrees learn to distinguish the words that are proper for his purpose, from such as are not so. And here I may add, that could boys be persuaded, by a careful use of their dictionary, to acquaint themselves thoroughly with the signification, derivation, composition, and proper use of the Latin words that occur in the several parts of their studies, they would soon find the benefit of it; their proficiency would, in this case, do more than reward their pains. To a neglect on this head, is frequently owing the small progress boys make, and the difficulty they find in speaking and writing Latin; being equally puzzled for want of words, and at a loss how to apply them.

THE rules in the Rudiments being ranged according to the order of the parts of speech, it was impossible to exemplify them in that order, without a medley of antecedent and subsequent rules, which by all means was to be avoided. The reader therefore is desired to begin with No. 2.; then proceed to No. 28.; from that to No. 45. He next turns over to No. 68. 69. 70. 71. 72.; then to No. 75. 76.; and on each of these rules he is to read till he come to this mark ¶, except No. 28.; in which he is to read only the first four paragraphs. After this, he is to return to the beginning of the book, and go straight on to the end, omitting only what was read on the above mentioned rules; and, by proceeding in this manner, he will find no posterior rule anticipated. The English exercises, too, are so chosen, that they may be turned into good Latin, without recourse to any subsequent rule.

As the governed words in the exemplification of several rules, viz. No. 12. 21. 29. 62. 64. and 73. may be put in different cases, and though, generally speaking, the Latin will be grammatical and good in either of them; yet, to prevent any doubt that may arise in the learner's mind on this head, and to enable him to use with certainty the case used by the author the example is brought from, I have given the following mark of distinction, viz. in No. 12. 21. 62. and 64. when the governed word is put in the ablative, it has the figure 6 before it; and in No. 29. when the governed word is to be put in the accusative, it has the figure 4 before it. In like manner, in No. 73. the governed word has the figure 1 or 4 before it, according as it is to be put in the nominative or accusative. But in the exemplification of each of these six rules, when the governed word has no figure prefixed, it is then to be put in the other case mentioned in the rule. Nor are these distinctive figures applied thus in the exemplification of the above rules only, but also in all the subsequent places where these ambiguous constructions recur.

THE examples and English exercises contained in this Introduction being of a select kind, consisting generally of moral, historical, or mythological sentences, the perusal of them will accordingly be attended with peculiar advantages. The first sort have a natural tendency to form and dispose the mind to virtue, and to produce such impressions as will influence the temper and behaviour of youth, not while at school only, but through the whole course of their life. By the use of the second and third sort, boys will acquire a stock of ancient history and mythology, and so get acquainted in some measure with the Roman writers before they begin to read them.

To the Introduction is subjoined an Epitome of Ancient History, containing a succinct account of the most memorable transactions and events that occur from the creation to the birth of CHRIST. And whereas several things suspected of fiction or romance, especially with respect to the Assyrian and Babylonian monarchies, were, in compliance with the commonly received opinion, admitted into the first edition; these are now either thrown out, or taken notice of as fabulous, and the accounts that, by the best judges, are esteemed genuine, introduced. These alterations, it is hoped, will render this Epitome more perfect, and consequently a fitter system for initiating youth in the useful study of history; and, to make it answer this purpose in the easiest manner, a proper collection of Questions adapted to the several parts of the Ancient History, is annexed; as also an Index, more full and better digested than in the first edition. And as the Latin of this Epitome is, for the most part, taken from an historian much admired for conciseness, delicacy, and purity of language, it will serve to exercise and improve the learner, not barely in the knowledge of grammar, but even in the elegance and beauties of the Latin tongue. The chronology here used is the same with that adopted by the writers of the Universal History. Several chronological mistakes, which had escaped observation in the first edition, are here rectified.

I SHALL conclude with the following certification to interlopers, That though soon after this Introduction was first published, a spurious edition came abroad, which neither the author, nor the gentlemen concerned in the first impression, have hitherto taken much notice of; yet they are resolved to be on their guard for the future against all such piratical practices, and will not fail to prosecute offenders of that kind. It is therefore hoped that no person in time coming will be so wicked as to attempt, by any fraudulent method, to rob the author or editors of their just property, nor so foolish as to incur the penalties prescribed by law.

J. M.

N. B. This Edition has been carefully revised, and a variety of errors, both in the Text and Notes, which had crept into former Editions, have been corrected.

GLASGOW, }
February, 1797. }

AN INTRODUCTION
TO LATIN SYNTAX.

SYNTAX is the right ordering of words in speech.
Its parts are two, concord and government.

Concord is when one word agrees with another in some accidents.

Government is when a word governs a certain case.

SYNTAXIS est recta vocum in oratione compositio.

Ejus partes sunt duæ concordantia et regimen.

Concordantia est quando una dictio concordat cum altera in quibusdam accidentibus.

Regimen est quando dictio regit certum casum.

I. OF CONCORD.

CONCORD is fourfold.

1. Of an adjective with a substantive.
2. Of a verb with a nominative.
3. Of a relative with an antecedent.
4. Of a substantive with a substantive.

I. DE CONCORDANTIA.

CONCORDANTIA est quadruplex.

1. Adjectivi cum substantivo.
2. Verbi cum nominativo.
3. Relativi cum antecedente.
4. Substantivi cum substantivo.

RULE I.

AN adjective agrees with a substantive, in gender, number and case.

Fleeting years slide away,
Sluggish old age approaches.
Time past never returns.

We all hasten to one end.

REGULA I.

ADJECTIVUM concordat cum substantivo, in genere, numero et casu.

Fugaces anni labuntur.
Tarda senectæ subit.
Tempus præteritum nunquam revertitur.

Nos omnes metam properamus ad unam.

NOTE 1. The substantive is sometimes understood; and in this case the adjective takes the gender of the suppressed substantive; as, per immortales; sc. Dei. Laborare tertiano; sup. febri. Paucis te volo; nempe verbis. Triste lupus stabilis; sup. negotium. Omnia fenscunt; sup. negotia. This last substantive is seldom expressed; and its usual sign in English, is the word thing or things.

NOTE 2. Adjectives are often put substantively, or used in a substantive sense; and may then have other adjectives agreeing with them; as, Virg. Fortunato senex. Cic. Avitus certus. And sometimes substantives seem to be used in an adjective sense; as, Virg. Populum late regem, for regnantem. Cic. Victor exercitus. Ovid. Dardanides matres.

NOTE 3. An adjective joined with two substantives of different genders, generally agrees with that chiefly or principally spoke of; as, Plin. Oppidum Pessum, Græcis Possidonia appellatum. The adjective, however, sometimes neglecting the principal substantive, agrees with the nearest; as, Cic. Non omnis error stultitia est dicenda. But if the principal substantive be the proper name of a man or woman, the adjective always agrees with it; as, Vopisc. Bonus Imperator amphora dictus est; not dicta. Just. Semiramis puer esse credita est; not creditus.

The good boy learns, the naughty boys play; the swift horse conquers, the slow horses are overcome.

Proud men do fall, but humble men shall be exalted; high towers fall, whilst low cottages stand.

Our master comes, let us read, the idle boys shall be beaten, my books were torn, thy brothers were commended.

NOTE 1. We always rush upon a thing forbidden, and we covet things denied. Let us despise earthly things, when we contemplate heavenly things.

A small spark neglected, often raises a great conflagration; so after Sylla had settled the commonwealth, new wars broke out.

The general triumphed most splendidly in a golden chariot with his sons, two princes were led before his chariot; many kings came to this fight.

Cæsar returning from Gaul began to demand another consulship, but he was ordered to disband his army and return to town; for which injury he came from Ariminum, where he had his soldiers drawn together, against his country with an army. Cæsar prevailed; he was afterwards murdered. Death devours all things.

Diligence overcomes all difficulties. Delays often ruin the best designs. Shame attends unlawful pleasures. One bad sheep infects a whole flock.

Industry keeps the mind clear, and the body healthful. Prosperity gains friends, and adversity tries them. Where no law is, there is no transgression. Vanity makes beauty contemptible. God sees all things.

When men neglect God, they neglect their own safety; they procure their own ruin; they fly from their own happiness; they pursue their own misery, and make haste to be undone.

Bonus puer disco, malus puer ludo; celer equus vinco, tardus equus vinco.

Superbus homo cado, sed modestus homo proveho; altus turris cado, dum humilis casa sto.

Noster præceptor venio, lego ego, ignavus puer cædo, meus liber lacero, tuus frater laudo.

Nitor in vetitis semper, cupique negatus. Contemno humanus, cum spectro cælestis.

Parvus scintilla contemptus, sæpe excito magnus incendium; sic cum Sylla compono respublica, novus bellum exardeo.

Imperator triumpho magnificenter in aureis currus cum filiis suis, duo principes duco ante currus; multus rex venio ad hic spectaculum.

Cæsar rediens e Gallia coepi depono alter consulatus, sed ju-beo demitto exercitus et redeo ad urbs; propter qui injuria venio ab Ariminum, ubi habeo milles congregatus, adversus patria cum exercitus. Cæsar vinco; postea interficio. Mors devoro omnis.

RULE II.

A VERB agrees with the nominative before it in number and person.

I read.
Thou writest.
He studies.
The girl sings.
We teach.
Ye hear.
They learn.
The boys are praised.

NOTE 1. Ego and Nos are the first person, Tu and vos the second, and all other nouns are the third person. Here observe, that a nominative of the first and second person is seldom expressed, being always known by the verb.

NOTE 2. This rule respects only the indicative, subjunctive, and imperative. The infinitive has indeed sometimes a nominative before it; but then capit or ceperunt is understood; as, Virg. Aeneas humeris abscindere vestem; sc. capit. Ter. Omnes invidere mihi; sc. ceperunt. Or we may suppose, as is usually done in this case, that the infinitive is put for the imperfect of the indicative, viz. abscindere for abscindebat, and invidere for invidebant.

I call, thou dost answer, he taught, we did study, ye have given, they have received:

I had gone, thou hadst come, he had sent, we will touch, ye shall taste, they shall drink.

Do thou go on, let him make haste, let us prepare, proceed ye, let them return.

I am accused, thou art blamed, he was praised, we were condemned, ye will be dismissed, they shall be punished.

Be thou joined, let him be separated, let us be instructed, be ye exalted, let them be disgraced.

The cock crows, the goose did cackle, the parrot spoke, the magpies had chattered, ravens will croak, let hens cluck.

The dog barks, the sheep did bleat, the hog hath grunted, the horses had neighed, asses will bray, let lions roar, oxen will bellow, wolves will howl.

Virtue is praised, vice was shunned, honour was sought, riches were acquired, the boys will learn, let books be bought, Peter affirms, who will deny?

The men did shout, the battle was joined, the arrows fly, the swords are

REG. II.

VERBUM concordat cum nominativo ante se in numero et persona.

Ego lego.
Tu scribis.
Ille studet.
Puella canit.
Nos docemus.
Vos auditis.
Illi discunt.
Pueri laudantur.

Ego voco, tu respondeo, ille docet, ego studeo, tu do, ille accipio.

Ego eo, tu vesio, ille mitto, ego tango, tu gusto, ille bibo.

Pergo tu, festino ille, paro ego, progredior tu, redeo ille.

Ego accuso, tu culpo, ille laudo, ego condemno, tu demitto, ille punio.

Jungo tu, separo ille, crudio ego, exalto tu, virupero ille.

Gallus canto, anser glorio, pittachus loquor, pica garrio, corvus crocico, gallina pipo.

Canis latro, ovis balo, fus grunio, equus hinnio, asinus rudo, leo rugio, bos mugio, lupus ululo.

Virtus laudo, vitium vito, honor quero, divitia paro, puer discio, emio liber, Petrus affirmo, quis nego?

Homo clamo, praelium committo, sagitta volo, gladius de-drawn, the soldiers have fought, the horses are taken, the enemy will be routed, let victory come, peace will be fought.

In the mean time all Greece being divided into two parties, turned their arms from foreign wars, as it were upon their own bowels: wherefore two bodies are made out of one people, and the soldiers are divided into two hostile armies.

After the battle no woman lamented her lost husband; all lamented their own hap, because they had not fallen for their country; all received the wounded, dressed their wounds, refreshed the fatigued, and they all more lamented the public than their private fortune. For these things they deserve praise.

God made the world, and all things in it; he created the light, and formed darkness; in him we live and move; if he look on the earth it trembles; if he touch the hills they smoke; I will bless my God while I live; he alone doth wondrous works, praise ye the Lord.

stringo, miles pugno, equus capio, hostis fugo, venio victoria, pax peto.

Interea omnis Grecia divisus in duo pars, convertio arma, ab externis bellum, velut in viscus suus: igitur duo corpus fio de unus populus, et miles divido in duo hostilis exercitus.

Post praelium nullus mulier flet amissus conjux; omnis doleo suus vicis, quod ipse non cado pro patria; omnis excipio saucius, curo vulnus, reficio lassus, omnisque magis lugeo publicus quam privatus fortuna. Ob hic mereor laus.

ANNOTATIONES.

3. Substantive verbs, verbs of naming and gesture, have a nominative both before and after them belonging to the same thing.

I am a scholar.

Thou wilt become a poet.

Diogenes was called a philosopher.

We are esteemed wise men.

She walks as a queen.

The soldiers sleep secure.

1. Verba substantiva, vocandi et gestus, habent utrinque nominativum ad eandem rem pertinentem.

Ego sum discipulus.

Tu fies poeta.

Diogenes appellabatur philosophus.

Nos existimamur sapientes.

Illa incedit regina.

Milites dormiunt securi.

1. Substantive verbs are, sum, fio, form, and existo.

2. Verbs of naming are these passives, appellor, dicor, vocor, nominor, nancupor; to which add, videor, existimor, censeor, habeor, creor, constitutor, salutor, designor, cognoscor, agnoscor, invenior, reperi, &c.

3. Verbs of gesture are, eo, incedo, venio, cubo, sto, jaceo, sedeo, evado, fugio, dormio, somnio, maveo, &c.

NOTE 1. The nominative after these verbs is frequently an adjective, which agrees with the nominative before them as its substantive, in gender, number, and case, or some other substantive is understood.

NOTE 2. Any verb may have a nominative after it, when it belongs to the same thing with the nominative before it; as, Cic. Audivi hoc puer. Id. Sapient nihil facili invitus.

NOTE 3. When a verb comes betwixt two nominatives of different numbers, it usually takes the number of the first; as, Ter. Dos est decem talenta. Ovid. Offa lapidis sunt. But sometimes it takes the number of the last; as, Ter. Amantium ira amoris integratio est. Luc. Sanguis erant lacrymae.

1. The lion is king among the wild beasts, the ash is the fairest tree in the woods, and the fir in the lofty mountains.

Patience often offended becomes fury, and generals after victory are sometimes tyrants.

2. Virtue is often called vice, vice too is often called virtue, and poverty is sometimes reckoned a disgrace.

Varro was esteemed a learned man, Cicero was accounted eloquent, Aristides was called just, Pompey was named great.

3. The boy sits porter before the gate, the servants walk on foot, the master stays alone, the soldiers come up in arms.

Beauty is a fair but fading flower. Virtue is its own reward, and envy is its own punishment. Religion is the greatest wisdom, honesty is the best policy, and temperance is the best physic.

Quarrellsome persons are mischievous companions. A false friend will be the most dangerous enemy. Fraud in childhood will become knavery in manhood.

The spring is a pleasant time; for nature then seems to be renewed, the trees begin to sprout, and the gardens bring forth herbs and flowers; these are all sweet things.

4. The infinitive mood has an accusative before it.

I am glad that you are well.

I confess that I have sinned.

Lea sum rex inter fera, fraxinus sum pulcher arbor in sylva et abies in altus mons.

Patientia saepe laesus fio furor, et dux ex victoria interdum ex isto tyrannus.

Virtus saepe voco vitium, vitium quoque voco appello virtus, et paupertas nonnunquam censeo opprobrium.

Varro existimo doctus vir, Cicero habeo disertus, Aristides dico justus, Pompeius nomino magnus.

Puer sedeo janitor ante fores, famulus incedo pes, herus maneo solus, miles venio armatus.

2. Infinitivus modus accusativum ante se habet.

Gaudeo te valere.

Fateor me peccasse.

NOTE 1. The word that betwixt two English verbs is the usual sign of this construction.

NOTE 2. The accusative may be turned into the nominative with quod or ut. Thus, instead of gaudeo te valere, we may say, gaudeo quod tu valas; and instead of opus est te scire, we may say, opus est ut scias.

NOTE 3. The accusatives me, te, se, illum, as also the infinitive esse or fuisse, are frequently suppressed; as, Virg. Reddere posse negabat, sc. se posse. Cic. Exercitum casum cognovi, sc. fuisse casum.

I wonder that your brother does not write to me, I cannot believe that he is well.

Silius boasted that his soldiers had persisted in obedience, when others had lapsed into sedition.

When Caesar heard that the Helvetii were in arms, and that they designed to Miror tuus frater non scribo ad ego, non possum credo is valeo.

Silius jacto suus miles duro in obsequium, cum alius prolabor ad seditio.

Cum Caesar audio Helvetii sum in arma, et is statuo samake their way through his province, he made haste to be gone from Rome, and came very speedily to Geneva.

The ambassadors complained that they were slighted, and took it ill that they were ordered to depart from the city; but the king declared that he would reckon them for enemies, unless they went off at the day appointed.

Historians tell, that Philip was slain by a young man, as he was going to the public games, and many believe that Alexander had encouraged him to so great a crime. The young man was called Pausanias.

Young men hope that they shall live long; but they ought to remember that they were sent into this world as into a lodging, not as into a home, and that they will soon be called hence.

While Caesar was in Hither Gaul in winter-quarters, frequent reports were brought to him that all the Belgæ had conspired against the Roman people.

cio iter per provincia suos, maturo proficiscor a Roma, et venio celeriter ad Geneva.

Legatus queror fui negligo, et agro sero fui jubeo discedo ab urbs; at rex denuncio fui habeo is pro hostis, nisi proficiscor ad dies statutus.

Historicus narro, Philippus obtrunco ab adolescens, cum eo ad ludus publicus, et multus credo Alexander impello is ad tantus facinus. Adolescens voco Pausanias.

5. ESSE hath the same case after it that it hath before it. 3. ESSE habet eundem casum post se quem ante se.

Or more generally thus :

The infinitive of a substantive verb, verbs of naming or gesture, takes the same case after it that it hath before it.

Peter desires to be a learned man.

Thou lovest to be called father.

He would have himself made general.

We see that the old man walks straight.

Petrus cupit esse vir doctus.

Tu amas dici pater.

Vult se creari ducem.

Videmus senem incedere rectum.

NOTE 1. The noun after these infinitives is frequently an adjective, which either agrees with the substantive before them, or has some other substantive understood.

NOTE 2. When a verb that governs the dative, such as licet, expedit, datur, concedo, and the like, comes before these infinitives, the case after them is commonly the dative, but sometimes the accusative; as, Non datur omnibus esse nobilibus et opulentis; sed licet omnibus esse bonis, si volunt. Ter. Expedit vobis esse bonas. Cic. Liceat esse miseros. Which may be applied thus; Expedit vobis vos esse bonas. Liceat vobis vos esse miseros.

NOTE 3. When a verb that governs the accusative, such as ain, refero, puto, nescio, and the like, comes before the infinitive esse, the case after it, in prose authors, is always the accusative; but the poets sometimes, in imitation of the Greeks, omitting the pronoun me, te, or se, use the nominative; as, Ovid. Quia retulit Ajax esse Jovis princeps. Hor. Uxor invicti Jovis esse nescit. Id. Patiens vocari Caesaris ultor. And, Virg. Sensit medicos delapsus in hostes; i. e. Sensit esse delapsus, instead of sensit se esse delapsum.

NOTE 4. This rule respects only the nominative, dative, and accusative, and is not to be extended to the genitive or ablative; for we do not say, Interest Ciceronis esse eloquentis; but, Interest Ciceronis esse eloquentem.

The old Persians believed that the sun was God.

The nymph complained that her arms were become long boughs.

If thou desirest to be a good man, practise charity and other virtues.

Empedocles affected to be esteemed an immortal god.

No man ought to be called happy before death.

Thou art become an old wife, yet thou affectest to be thought a beauty.

Antigonus orders himself to be called king by the people, Ptolemy also is styled king by the army.

Such a stupidity seized Vitellius, that, if others had not remembered that he was emperor, he himself would have forgot.

If you would be happy, fear God, and live according to nature.

A wise man may be thought to be a fool if he talk too much: and a fool may be esteemed a wise man if he holds his tongue. A man is known by his talk, and silence is often great prudence.

Vetus Persa credo sol sum Deus.

Nympha doleo suis brachium fio longus ramus.

Si tu volo sum bonus vir, colo charitas aliisque virtus.

Empedocles cupio habeo immortalis deus.

Nemo debet dico beatus ante obitum.

Tu fio anus, tamen volo videas formosus.

Antigonus jubeo sui appello rex a populus, Ptolemæus quoque cognomino rex ab exercitus.

Tantus torpido invado Vitellius, ut, si cæter non memini is sum princeps, ipse obliviscor.

RULE III.

6. THE relative qui, quæ, quod, agrees with the antecedent in gender and number.

The man is wise who speaks little.

REG. III.

RELATIVUM qui, quæ, quod, concordat cum antecedente in genere et numero.

Vir sapit qui pauca loquitur.

ANNOTATIONES.

7. If no nominative comes between the relative and the verb, the relative shall be the nominative to the verb.

The covetous man, who always wants, cannot be rich.

8. But if a nominative comes between the relative and the verb, the relative shall be of that case, which the verb or noun following, or the preposition going before, use to govern.

1. Si nullus interveniat nominativus inter relativum et verbum, relativum erit verbo nominativus.

Avarus, qui semper eget, non potest esse dives.

2. At si interveniat nominativus inter relativum et verbum, relativum erit ejus casus quem verbum aut nomen sequens, vel præpositio præcedens, regere solent.

God, who governs the world, and by whom all things were created, is a spirit, whom no man hath seen, or can see.

Deus, qui gubernat mundum, et a quo omnia creabantur, est spiritus, quem nemo vidit, aut videre potest.

NOTE 1. The antecedent is commonly some substantive noun, either expressed or understood, that goes before the relative, and is again understood to, or sometimes repeated along with the relative as its substantive; as, cave voluptatem, quæ est pestis; i. e. cave voluptatem, quæ voluptas est pestis. Cæsar. Erant omnino itinera duo quibus itineribus domo exire possent. And here observe, that the antecedent is sometimes omitted in its proper place, and only expressed along with the relative; as, Ter. Populo ut placerent quas fecisset fabulas; for fabula, quas fabulas. Ovid. Sub qua nunc recubas arbore, virga fuit; for arbor, sub qua arbore. Virg. Urbem quam statuo, vestra est; for urbs, quam urbem, &c.

NOTE 2. An infinitive or a sentence sometimes supplies the place of a nominative to a verb, of a substantive to an adjective, of an antecedent to a relative; and in this case, the verb is the third person, the adjective and relative are put in the neuter gender; as,

To excel in knowledge is reckoned a fine thing.

In scientia excellere pulchrum fine thing.

Petrus is a learned man, which nobody denies.

Petrus est vir doctus, quod nemo negat.

NOTE 3. The person of the relative is always the same with that of its antecedent; as, Ego qui doceo; tu qui discis; lectio qua docetur. The reason is plain, namely, the antecedent, which is supposed to be repeated along with the relative, is the true nominative to the verb; thus, Ego qui doceo, when supplied, is, Ego qui ego doceo, &c.

NOTE 4. When the relative comes betwixt two substantives of different genders, it sometimes, though more rarely, agrees with the last; as, Cic. Animal quem vocamus hominem.

NOTE 5. The antecedent is sometimes couched or included in the possessive pronoun; as, Ter. Omnes laudare fortunas meas, qui haberem genitum tali ingenio præditum.

NOTE 6. The relative sometimes, instead of taking the gender of the antecedent, takes the gender of some synonymous word suppressed; as, Sall. Earum rerum, quæ prima mortales dicunt; i. e. negotia.

NOTE 7. The interrogatives or indefinites, qualis, quantus, quotus, quotuplex, &c. sometimes observe the construction of the relative qui, quæ, quod; as, Ovid. Facies non omnibus una, nec diversa tamen; qualem docet esse sororum.

Annibal, who had made trial of the Roman courage, denied that the Romans could be conquered but in Italy.

Cæsar first conquered the Helvetii, who are now called the Sequani, after that he subdued all Gaul, that is betwixt the Alps and the British ocean.

Many find fault with crimes which they will not forsake: but let us pursue virtue, in which true glory consists; for gold, which is so eagerly sought after by men, often hurts.

They are good boys whom glory en-

Annibal, qui tento Romanæ virtus, nego Romanus possum opprimo nisi in Italia.

Cæsar primo vinco Helvetii, qui nunc appello Sequani, deinde domo omnia Gallia, qui sum inter Alpes et oceanus Britannicus.

Multus corripio crimen qui nolo linquo: sed ego colo virtus, in qui verus decus sum positus; nam aurum, qui tam cupide peto ab homo, sæpe noceo.

Ille sum bonus puer qui glocourages, and commendation delights; they will become excellent men.

The city which Romulus built was called Rome, the inhabitants were named Romans, and were deservedly esteemed very brave men.

NOTE 1. To read and not to understand is to neglect, to slow and not to reap is to lose your labour.

Not to know what happened before thou wert born, is to be always a child.

To see is pleasant, but to discover truth is more pleasant; philosophy, therefore, which searches for truth, is a most noble study.

To fly when our country is invaded is base; let us therefore fight valiantly; to die for one's country is sweet and glorious.

Men often pursue pleasure, which is a pernicious thing; but do thou seek after true glory, which is a commendable thing.

To know one's self is the first step toward wisdom; which, as it is a very hard thing, so it is a very useful thing.

If thy soul thirsteth for honour, if thy ear loveth praise, raise thyself from the dust, of which thou art made, and aspire after something that is great and good. The oak, which now spreadeth its branches towards heaven, was once but an acorn.

To go to school and not to learn, is to trifle; and to go to church and not to hear, is to profane that sacred place: but to make advances in knowledge and wisdom is an excellent thing.

9. Two or more substantives singular, coupled together with a conjunction, [et, ac, atque, &c.] have a verb, adjective, or relative plural.

Cyrus and Alexander, who subdued Asia, are renowned among all nations.

NOTE 1. If the singular substantives be nominatives, and of different persons, the plural verb will agree with the more worthy person; that is, with the first person rather than the second, and with the second rather than the third; as,

If you and Tullia are well, I and Cicero are well.

NOTE 2. If the singular substantives are of different genders, and signify persons, the adjective or relative plural will take the more worthy gender; ria excito, et laus delecto; flo egregius vir.

Urbs qui Romulus conde voco Roma, incola nomino Romanus, et merito habeo fortis vir.

Lego et non intelligo sum negligo, sero et non meto sum perdo opera.

Nescio quid accido antequam nascor sum, semper sum puer.

Video sum jucundus, sed invenio veritas sum jucundus; philosophia, igitur, qui investigo veritas, sum honestus studium.

Fugio cum patria noster opugno sum turpis; pugno igitur strenue; morior pro patria sum dulcis et decorus.

Homo saepe secior voluptas, qui sum perniciosus; sed tu quaero verus gloria, qui sum laudabilis.

Nosco sui ipse sum primus gradus ad sapientia; qui, ut sum difficilis, ita sum utilis.

3. Duo vel plura substantiva singularia, conjunctione [et, ac, atque, &c.] copulata, habent verbum, adjectivum, vel relativum plurale.

Cyrus et Alexander, qui domuerunt Asiam, sunt inelyti apud omnes gentes.

Si tu et Tullia valetis, ego et Cicero valemus.

that is, the masculine rather than the feminine or neuter. But if all, or any of the singular substantives, signify things without life, the adjective or relative plural is generally put in the neuter gender; as,

My father and mother, who are now dead, were very pious. Pater et mater, qui nunc sunt mortui, erant valde pii.
 Riches, honour, and glory, are set before your eyes. Divitiæ, decus, gloria, in oculis sita sunt.

It is uncertain whether the feminine of persons be more worthy than the neuter; for grammarians having no authority to determine them, are not agreed, whether we ought to say, Lucretia et ejus mancipium fuerunt casta or casta.

NOTE 3. A singular nominative, with an ablative governed by cum, sometimes takes a plural verb or adjective; as, Virg. Quirinus cum fratre jura dabunt. Hirt. B. Afr. Juba cum Labieno capti in potestatem Caesaris venerunt. Hygin. Cadmus cum uxore in dracones sunt conversi.

NOTE 4. The conjunction is sometimes suppressed; as, Ter. Dum atas, metus, magister prohibebant.

NOTE 5. The verb or adjective, neglecting this rule, often agrees with the nearest nominative or substantive; as, Cic. Et ego et Cicero meus flagitabat. Plin. Mare rubrum et totus orientis oceanus refertus est sylvis. Virg. Socii et reges recepto. Ibid. Omnia tuta vides, classem sociisque receptos.

NOTE 6. Collectives, which are substantives signifying many in the singular number, such as, multitudo, pars, familia, civitas, gens, populus, &c. take sometimes plural verbs or adjectives; and the adjective frequently, instead of taking the gender of the collective, takes that which the sense directs to; as, Cæsar. Multitudo conveniant. Sall. Magna pars vulnerati aut occisi sunt. Id. Familia quorum, &c.

NOTE 7. The reason of this rule is, because two or more singulars are equivalent to a plural: thus, Ego et tu is the same as nos; tu et ille the same as vos; Petrus et Johannes the same as illi, &c.

In the first battle Brutus and Aruns killed one another, yet the Romans came off victorious.

Cato and Cicero were wise and learned; they loved their country, and all those that loved and defended it.

Hamilcar, Annibal, and Asdrubal, who carried on a war against the Romans, were very skilful generals.

Homer, Virgil, and Horace, whom the ancients admired, are justly esteemed most excellent poets.

NOTE 1. I and you went into the garden, where you and my brother read Terence, whilst I and the servant were gathering flowers.

NOTE 2. The man and the woman whom I and you saw yesterday, are dead to-day, and will be buried to-morrow.

Honour, praise, and glory, are valued and sought after by good men; but laws faith, and the gods themselves, are trampled on by the wicked.

In primus pugna Brutus et Aruns occido sui invicem, tamen Romanus recedo victor.

Cato et Cicero sum sapiens et doctus; amo patria, et omnis is qui amo et defendo is.

Hamilcar, Annibal, ac Asdrubal, qui gero bellum adversus Romanus, sum peritus dux.

Homerus, Virgilius, atque Horatius, qui vetus admiror, merito existimo bonus poeta.

Ego et tu eo in hortus, ubi tu et meus frater lego Terentius, dum ego et famulus carpo flos.

Vir et femina, qui ego et tu video heri, sum mortuus hodie, et sepelio cras.

Honos, laus, et decus, sum estimatus et quaesitus a bonus vir; sed jus, fides, et deus ipse, sum calcatus ab improbus.

After the greatest jollity and wantonness, which a long quiet had produced, all on a sudden, consternation and sorrow overspread the city; but the night and the plunder retarded the enemy.

Ex summus lætitia atque læscivia, qui diuturnus quies pario, repente metus atque incror invado civitas; sed nox et præda remoratus sum hostis.

A contented mind and a good conscience will make a man happy in all conditions; but destruction cometh upon the wicked man as a whirlwind; shame and repentance descend with him to the grave.

Augustus writing to Tiberius, hath these words: If we shall hear that you are sickly, I and your mother will die.

The man servant and maid, who do their duty carefully, are to be commended and rewarded.

RULE IV.

10. SUBSTANTIVES signifying the same thing agree in case.

Julius Cæsar, the first Roman emperor, was an excellent orator.

NOTE 1. This concord is called apposition, and it is not necessary that the substantives agree in gender, number, or person. The construction, strictly speaking, is elliptical, and may be supplied by the obsolete particle ens, or by qui est, qui vocatur, or the like; as, Anna soror, i. e. Anna ens soror, or qua est soror.

NOTE 2. When a plural appellative is put in apposition with two or more proper names of different genders, the appellative must be of the more worthy gender; as, Liv. Ad Ptolemaum Cleopatramque reges legati missi, not reginas. Here reges denotes both regem and reginam.

NOTE 3. The latter substantive is sometimes put in the genitive; as, Cic. In oppido Antiochie. Virg. Annis Eridani.

NOTE 4. A clause or sentence sometimes supplies the place of one of the substantives; as, Quint. Cogitet oratorem instituti, rem arduam.

The sheep, innocent creatures, are often torn and devoured by the furious ravenous wild beasts, the wolves.

Whilst these things are doing at the Hellepontus, Perdiccas is slain at the river Nile by Seleucus and Antigonus.

They say that Marcus Tullius Cicero, the orator, was a very great philosopher; he sent his son Marcus to the city Athens to attend Cratippus, a very famous teacher, and be educated by him.

In the mean time Afrubal and his colleague, who had continued in Spain with a great army, are conquered by the two Scipios, the Roman generals.

REG. IV.

SUBSTANTIVA eandem rem significantia casu concordant.

Julius Cæsar, primus Romanus imperator, fuit eximius orator.

Ovis, innoxius animal, sepe dilacero et devoro a ravidus rapax fera, lupus.

Dum hic gero apud Hellepontus, Perdiccas interficio apud flumen Nilus a Seleucus et Antigonus.

Aio Marcus Tullius Cicero, orator, sum magnus philosophus; mitto filius Marcus ad urbs Athenæ, ut audio Cratippus, celebris doctor, et instituo ab is.

Interea Afrubal et collega, qui remaneo in Hispania cum magnus exercitus, vinco a duo Scipio, Romanus dux.

Our Lord Jesus Christ, the only Saviour, came into the world, that he might redeem sinners from sin, death, and destruction, and that they who should believe in his name, might not perish, but have eternal life.

Demosthenes, the orator, that he might rouse his fellow-citizens, the Athenians, to war against Alexander, brought a man into the assembly, who affirmed that he had been wounded in a battle, in which Philip, the king, was slain.

APPENDIX.

To these four concords some add a fifth, viz. that of the responsive with the interrogative in case; as, Quis gubernat mundum? Deus. Cujus es? Amphitruonis. Cui dedisti librum? Petro. Quid meritus es? Crucem. Quo careres? Libro. But this, strictly speaking, is no concord; for the responsive does not depend upon the interrogative, but upon the verb, or some word joined with it, which is generally suppressed in the answer, and may be supplied thus: Quis gubernat mundum? Deus gubernat mundum. Cujus es? Sum servus Amphitruonis. Cui dedisti librum? Dedi librum Petro, &c. And if the word on which the answer depends require a different construction, this concord does not take place; as, Quanti emptus? Octavibus. Cujus est liber? Meus. Cuius interest Deo parere? Omnium, &c.

II. OF GOVERNMENT.

GOVERNMENT is threefold.

1. Of nouns.
2. Of verbs.
3. Of words indeclinable

II. DE REGIMINE.

REGIMEN est triplex.

1. Nominum.
2. Verborum,
3. Vocum indeclinabilium.

I. THE GOVERNMENT OF NOUNS.

§ 1. Of Substantives.

RULE I.

ONE substantive governs another signifying a different thing in the genitive.

Virtue removes the fear of death.

Nature's laws cannot be changed.

The souls of men are immortal, but their bodies return to dust.

1. REGIMEN NOMINUM.

§ 1. Substantivorum.

REG. I.

UNUM substantivum regit aliud rem diversam significans in genitivo.

Virtus tollit terrorem mortis.

Naturæ leges non possunt mutari.

Animi hominum sunt immortales, sed corpora eorum in pulverem redeunt.

NOTE 1. The Latin noun to be put in the genitive, is that which answers to the English word following the particle of, or to the word ending in 's.

NOTE 2. The pronouns hujus, ejus, illius, cujus, &c. Englished his, her, its, their, thereof, whereof, whose, have their substantive generally suppressed; as, Liber ejus, [sc. hominis, &c.] his book, or her book; Libri eorum, [sc. hominum, &c.] their books.

NOTE 3. These following adjectives, primus, medius, ultimus, extremus, infimus, imus, summus, supremus, reliquus, cætera, generally denote, pars prima, media, ultima, &c. of the substantive with which they are joined. Thus, prima fabula is the same as prima pars fabulae, and does not signify the first fable, but the first part of the fable. And summa arbor, the same as summa pars arboris, does not signify the highest tree, but the top or highest part of the tree. In like manner are to be understood, media nox, ultima platea, ima cera, supremus mons, reliqua Aegyptus, cetera turba, &c.

ANNOTATIONES.

* 12. If the last substantive have an adjective of praise or dispraise joined with it, it may be put in the genitive or ablative.

Thy brother is a boy of a fine disposition, of the strictest virtue, of a graceful mien and handsome person.

1. Si posterius substantivum adjunctum habeat adjectivum laudis vel vituperii, in genitivo vel ablativo poni potest.

Frater tuus est puer probæ indolis, summæ virtutis, honestæ facie et figura venusta.

NOTE 1. The first substantive is often suppressed; as, Hor. Di me pusilli faxerunt animi; sup. virum. Sall. Vulgus est ingenio mobilis; sup. populus.

NOTE 2. The latter substantive must signify some part or property of the first, otherwise it does not belong to this rule. Hence, from this rule are excluded, Virg. Pulchra prole parentem. Hor. Rex gelida ora. Juv. Galina filius alba. Pater optimorum liberorum. And the like, where the latter substantive signifies neither any part, nor any property of the first.

NOTE 3. The adjective is sometimes joined with the first substantive, and then the latter substantive is put in the ablative; as, Cic. Hortensius excellens ingenio, nobilitate, existimatione. Id. Vir gravitate et prudentia præstans. Sall. Antonius pedibus eger. And by the poets sometimes in the accusative; as, Virg. Os bumerosque Deo similis. Hor. Nec Maurus animum mitior angibus. Stat. Heros occurrit vultum dejectus. Hor. Miles fractus membra. Luc. In vultus effusa comas Cornelia. To which we may understand the preposition secundum or quod ad; thus, Similis Deo, secundum vel quod ad os bumerosque. Mitior, secundum vel quod ad animum. Dejectus, secundum vel quod ad vultum. Fractus, secundum vel quod ad membra. Effusa, secundum vel quod ad comas.

NOTE 4. In like manner, neuter and passive verbs are construed with the ablative; as, Hor. Et corde et genibus tremit. Liv. Lavo brachio vulneratur. And by the poets with the accusative; as, Hor. Tremis ossa pavore. Sil. Truncatur membra bipenni. Virg. Expleri mentem æquit; i. e. tremis, secundum vel quod ad ossa pavore; truncatur, secundum vel quod ad membra bipenni, &c.

NOTE 5. When the latter substantive is put in the ablative, some preposition, such as, cum, de, ex, in, a, ab, with ens, existens, natus, præditus, affectus, or the like, is understood: as, Homo antiqua virtute; i. e. ens cum antiqua virtute. Vir clarus natalibus, i. e. Natus seu ortus, de vel ex. Homo infirma valetudine; i. e. affectus, ab, &c.

* 13. An adjective in the neuter gender without a substantive, governs the genitive.

The soldiers seem to move this way, a great deal of silver glitters on their

2. Adjectivum in neutro genere absque substantivo, regit genitivum.

Milites huc tendere videntur, plurimum argenti fulget in arms, what is the meaning? what is the matter?

armis, quid causæ? quid rei est?

NOTE 1. These adjectives are generally such as signify quantity; as, multum, plus, plurimum, tantum, quantum, minus, minimum; also, id, quid, hoc, aliquid, quidquam; to which may be added, summum, extremum, ultimum, dimidium, medium; as, summum montis, extremo anni, ultimum periculi, dimidium animæ, medium noctis. To these may likewise be added a great many plural neuter; such as, Virg. Angusta viarum, opaca locorum, telluris operta. Hor. Amara curarum, cuncta terrarum, acuta belli. Liv. Incerta fortune, antiqua faderum, extrema periculorum. Tac. Occulta saltuum, inania fama, amana Asiæ. Just. Profunda camporum, prærupta collium, ardua montium, &c. And sometimes other singular neuter; as, Tac. Lubricum juventæ. Virg. Sub obscurum noctis. Ex diverso cali, &c.

NOTE 2. The substantive understood to these neuter adjectives is, negotium, tempus, locum, spatium, or the like; as, Tantum telluris; sup. spatium. Hoc noctis; sup. tempore, or ad tempus, &c.

NOTE 3. Pius and quid always govern the genitive; and, on that account, are esteemed, by many, real substantives.

NOTE 4. Opus and usus govern the ablative, and sometimes the genitive, of the thing wanted; together with the dative of the person who wants, expressed or understood; as, Cic. Auctoritate tua nobis opus est. Virg. Nunc viribus usus; sup. est vobis. Quinct. Lectionis opus est. Liv. Si quo usus operæ sit. Opus elegantly governs a participle in the ablative: And that either with a substantive; as, Plaut. Celeriter mihi hoc homine convento est opus: Or without a substantive; as, Liv. Maturato opus est. Opus is likewise sometimes joined, by way of adjective, with a substantive; as, Cic. Dux nobis et auctor opus est. Id. Dices nummos mihi opus esse. And in Plautus we find usus governing a participle in the ablative, in the same manner as opus; Bach. Quid usus est conscriptis ad hunc modum tabulis? Amph. Citius, quod non factu est usus, sit, quam quod factu est opus. And there is at least one example of its being joined by way of adjective to a substantive; Plaut. Rud. Hæc neque isti usus est; et illi miseræ suppetias feret.

11. The power of honesty is so great, that we love it even in an enemy.

Marcellus engaged with a small body of horse, and slew Viridomarus king of the Gauls.

Lampedo, the Lacedæmonian, is said to have been the only woman in any age, who was a king's daughter, a king's wife, and a king's mother.

God, who knoweth man's heart, will punish the wicked who transgress his commands.

They are not rich, whose money is increased, or whose flocks are many; but he is rich, whose mind is quiet and content.

A kindness does not consist in that which is done or given, but in the intention of the doer or giver.

My father and mother were very pi-

Vis honestas sum tantus, ut diligo est etiam in hostis.

Marcellus dimico cum parvus manus equus, et occido Viridomarus rex Gallus.

Lampedo, Lacedæmonius, dico sum unicus femina in omnis ævum, qui sum rex filia, rex uxor, et rex mater.

Deus, qui nescio homo cor, punio sceleratus qui violo is præceptum.

Ille non sum dives, qui pecunia augeo, aut qui grex sum multus; sed ille sum dives, qui animus sum quietus et tranquillus.

Beneficium non consisto in id qui fio aut do, sed in animus faciens aut dans.

Meus pater et mater sum valde gus, I will implore the divine assistance, and will follow their good example.

12. Numerianus, Carus's son, a young man of an extraordinary genius, was taken off by a plot among the Persians.

Olympias confessed, that she had conceived Alexander, not by her husband Philip, but by a serpent of a huge bigness.

Tiberius, the Roman emperor, was a man of a large and strong body, of a fair complexion, and a graceful aspect.

Catiline was a man of great vigour both of mind and body, but of a wicked and perverse disposition.

13. After the battle, much gold and other riches were found in the camp of the Persians.

As much money as any one has in his chest, so much credit has he; and he that has little money, has likewise little credit.

The victory is glorious, in which there is more of clemency than cruelty; for cruelty always occasions a great deal of mischief.

Cicero was a man of a mild disposition, and polite eloquence; he had less courage than Julius Caesar, but he had more honesty.

What news is there in the city about Nero? a little before his death he leaned down upon a bed, and drank some warm water.

After I had gone away from you, I wrote this little epistle, and I took care to avoid the words that might occasion any obscurity.

NOTE 4. They have not so much need of precept as example; the boys are now arrived at that age, that they ought to behave wisely, what need is there of words?

Now there will be need of your assistance, for in a capital affair a judge ought to act cautiously, and there is need of great evidence.

¶ The giants who assaulted heaven were buried under vast mountains; they endeavour to rise now and then, which causes the earthquake, as old poets affirm.

pius, imploro divinus opis, et sequor is bonus exemplum.

Numerianus, Carus filius, adolescens egregius indoles, occidit per insidias apud Persas.

Olympias confiteor, sui concipio Alexander, non ex vir suus Philippus, sed ex serpens ingens magnitudo.

Tiberius Romanus imperator, sum vir amplus et robustus 6 corpus, candidus 6 color, et honestus 6 facies.

Catilina sum vir magnus 6 vis et animus et corpus, sed malus pravusque 6 ingenium.

Post praelium, multum aurum et alius opes invenio in castris Persarum.

Quantum nummus quisque servo in arca suus, tantum fides habeo; et qui habeo paululum pecuniam, habeo etiam paululum fides.

Victoria sum praeclarus, in qua plus clementia sum quam crudelitas; nam crudelitas semper facio plurimum malum.

Cicero sum vir mitis 6 ingenium, et comptus 6 facundia; habeo minus fortitudo quam Julius Caesar, sed habeo plus probitas.

Ecquid novum sum in civitate de Nero? sub mors decumbo super lectus, et bibo aliquantum tepidus aqua.

Postquam discedo a tu, exaro hic literula, et curo vito verbum qui possum assero aliquid obscuritas.

Non tam ille opus sum imperium quam exemplum; puer jam pervenio ad id aetas, ut debeo ago prudenter, qui opus sum verbum?

Nunc usus sum tuus opera, nam in res capitalis iudex debeo ago caute, et opus sum magnus documentum.

Gigas qui oppugno caelum sepelio sub ingens mons; conor surgo subinde, qui efficio terra motus, ut vetus poeta affirmo.

Pompey triumphed on account of the Mithridatic war: no pomp of a triumph was ever like it; the son of Mithridates, the son of Tigranes, and Aristobulus king of the Jews, were led before his chariot.

The Athenians, that they might not be reduced to their former condition of slavery, draw together an army, and order it to be led by Iphicrates. The conduct of this youth was wonderful, nor had the Athenians ever before him, among so many and so great generals, a commander either of greater hopes, or of a riper genius.

After they had pitched their camp, they receive an account of an old story, that Cyrene, a lady of excellent beauty, carried away by Apollo from Pelion, a mountain in Thessaly, had been got with child by the god, and had brought forth four boys; and that Aristæus, one of them, had first taught the use of bees and honey, and of milk for curds.

Courage was the cause of the victory; wherefore such was the slaughter of the enemy, that the victorious Romans did not drink more water than blood of the barbarians out of the bloody river.

At last Corinth, the head of Achaia, the glory of Greece, being deserted by the inhabitants, was first plundered, and then destroyed; but what statues, what clothes, and what pictures, were seized, burnt, and thrown about!

When the old men perceived the approach of the enemy, they met them in the very entrance of the gates, and a hundred men of an age quite worn out fought against fifteen thousand, so much courage and strength does the sight of one's country and home inspire.

The first inhabitants of Italy were the Aborigines, whose king Saturn is said to have been a man of so much justice, that neither was any one a slave under him, nor had any thing of private property, but all things were common and undivided.

Numantia, the glory of Spain, a town without walls, without towers, held out against an army of forty thousand, for fourteen years; nor did it hold out only, but often mauled them; and before it

Pompeius triumpho de Mithridaticus bellum; nullus pompa triumphus unquam sum similis; filius Mithridates, filius Tigranes, et Aristobulus rex Judæus, ductus sum ante is currus.

Atheniensis, ne redigo in pristinus fors servitus, contraho exercitus, jubeoque is duco per Iphicrates. Virtus hic adolescens sum admirabilis, nec Atheniensis habeo unquam ante is, inter tot tantisque dux imperator aut magnus spes, aut maturus indoles.

Cum pono castra, accipio opinio vetus fabula, Cyrene, virgo eximius pulchritudo, raptus ab Apollo a Pelion, mons Thessalia, repleo a deus, et pario quatuor puer; et Aristæus, unus ex hic, primus trado usus apes et mel, et lac ad coagulum.

Virtus sum causa victoria; itaque is sum cedes hostis, ut victor Romanus non bibo plus aqua quam sanguis barbarus de cruentus flumen.

Tandem Corinthus, caput Achaia, decus Græcia, desertus ab incola, primum sum direptus, deinde deletus; sed quid signum, quid vestis, quidque tabula raptus, incensus, atque projectus sum!

Cum senex presentio adventus hostis, occurro in ipse angustiae porta, et centum vir effertus ætas pugno adversus quindecim mille; tantum animus viresque conspectus patria penatesque subministro.

Primus cultor Italia sum Aborigines, qui rex Saturnus trado sum tantus justitia, ut neque quisquam servio sub ille, neque habeo quicquam privatus res, sed omnis sum communis et indivisus.

Numantia, decus Hispania, oppidum sine murus, sine turris, sustineo exercitus quadraginta mille, per quatuordecim annus; nec sustineo modo, sed sæpius percel-could be taken, there was occasion for lo; et priusquam capio possum, him who had destroyed Carthage. opus sum is qui evertit Carthago.

There is but one God, the author, the creator, the governor of the world; almighty, eternal and unchangeable. Wonderful he is in all his works: his counsels are unsearchable, his goodness is conspicuous in all his works; he is the fountain of excellence, the centre of perfection; the creatures of his hand declare his goodness, all their enjoyments speak his praise.

Thales was reckoned among the wise men, because he was believed to be the first that brought geometry into Greece. He first observed the motions of the sun and stars, the origin of winds, and the nature of thunder. Being asked what he thought the most difficult thing in the world? he answered, to know one's self.

Sir William Wallace was a man of an ancient family, but of a small fortune. He performed many glorious exploits in the war against the English. Many, whom the love of their country had called together, flocked to Wallace from all parts. He quickly took the castles which the English possessed beyond the Forth. The Forth is a river and arm of the sea, which divides Lothian from Fife. The mouth of the Forth is called the Scottish sea. He led his army into England, where he found much gold and silver among the spoils of his enemies. What need had he of more?

§ 2. Of Adjectives.

RULE I.

* 14. VERBAL adjectives, and such as signify an affection of the mind, require the genitive.

This man is capable of friendship, a lover of his country, fond of learning, skilled in war, not ignorant of religion, and privy to all my designs.

§ 2. Adjectivorum.

REG. I.

ADJECTIVA verbalia, vel affectionem animi significantia, genitivum postulant.

Hic vir est capax amicitiae, amans patriae, cupidus literarum, peritus belli, haud ignarus religionis, et confusus omnium meorum consiliorum.

To this rule belong,

I. VERBALS in AX, and PARTICIPIALS in NS; as, capax, edax, fugax, pertinax, perversax, rapax, sagax, spernax, tenax, vorax, &c. amans, appetens, cupiens, experiens, intelligens, insolens, negligens, diligens, metuens, observans, patiens, impatiens, retinens, reverentior, sciens, servantissimus, timent, tolerans, fugiens, sitiens, &c.

II. ADJECTIVES signifying an affection of the mind; such as,

1. DESIRE and DISDAIN; as, cupidus, avarus, avidus, studiosus, curiosus, emulus, fastidiosus, incuriosus, profusus, &c.

2. KNOWLEDGE; as, peritus, gnarus, prudens, callidus, providus, doctus, docilis, praescius, praesagus, certus, certior, memor, expertus, consultus, affuetus, &c.

3. IGNORANCE ; as, ignarus, rudus, imperitus, imprudens, improvidus, nescius, inscius, incertus, dubius, anxius, sollicitus, immemor, ambiguus, suspensus, indoctus, inexpertus, formidolosus, pavidus, timidus, trepidus ; also, insuetus, insolitus, securus, intrepidus, interritus, impavidus, &c.

4. GUILT ; as, consciens, convictus, manifestus, suspectus, reus, noxius, compertus ; also, innoxius, innocens, insons, &c.

NOTE 1. Verbals or verbal adjectives, are adjective nouns derived from verbs ; as capax from capio, edax from edo, &c. Participials are participles turned into adjective nouns ; such as, patiens, impatiens ; doctus, indoctus ; expertus, inexpertus, &c. Here observe that the participial and participle, though the word be often the same, differ in signification, as well as in point of construction : the participle signifies a single act at a certain time ; but the participial, without regard to any particular time, denotes a habit. Thus, patiens frigus, signifies a person just now exposed to the cold, however unfit he may be to bear it ; but patiens frigoris, denotes one whom nature or custom has enabled or fitted to bear the cold with ease. Again, doctus grammaticam, signifies a person who some time ago has been taught grammar, though perhaps he never understood it, or has now forgot it ; but doctus grammaticæ, denotes one who by long study has attained a thorough knowledge in grammar, or is become a connoisseur in it. Again, participials admit the degrees of comparison, which participles do not ; thus, amans, amantior, amantissimus ; doctus, doctior, doctissimus.

NOTE 2. To this rule may be referred a great variety of other adjectives, the more common of which occur in the following phrases : “ Ab-“ jectior animi, abstemius vini, acer militiæ, illustrium domuum adversa, “ æger animi, æquales ævi, æquus absentium, illarum rerum affines, alien-“ num dignitatis, alternus animæ, amens animi, anhelus laboris, ardens ani-“ mi, atrox odii, audax ingenii, averfus animi, bibulus Falerni, blandus pre-“ cum, cæcus animi, captus animi, catus legum, commune omnium, confi“ dens animi, confirmatus animi, confusus animi, conterminus jugi, contra“ ria virtutum, credulus adversi, degener virtutis, devius æqui, disertus le“ porum, dispar sortis, dissimilis tui, diversus morum, divina avis imbrum, “ durus oris, effusissimus munificentiae, egregius animi, enunciativus corpo-“ rum, erectus animi, exactus morum, exiguus animi, eximius animi, exosa “ vitæ, externatus animi, facilis frugum, fallax amicitiae, falsus animi, felix “ cerebri, ferox animi, fervidus ingenii, fessus rerum, festinus voti, fidens “ animi, fidissima tui, finitimus fluvii, flavus comaram, floridior ævi, fluxi “ vestium, fortunatus laborum, frustratus decoris, fugitivus patriæ, furens “ animi, gaudens alci, illex animi, impiger militiæ, improba connubii, in-“ cautus futuri, inconfuctus mensæ, indecora formæ, indocilis pacis, infelix “ culpæ, ingens animi, inglorius militiæ, ingratus salutis, insanus animi, in-“ solens infamiae, integer animi, invictus laboris, lapsus animi, lassus maris, “ lentus coepti, levis opum, madidus rosis, maturus laudum, maximus ævi, “ medius coeli, miser animi, moderatus iræ, mutabile mentis, mutatus ani-“ mi, nobilis sancti, notus fugarum, obnoxius timoris, occultus odii, optimus “ militiæ, oriundus ejus patriæ, ornatus fidei, otiosi studiorum, pares æta“ tis, perfida pacti, periclitabundus sui, perinsames malificæ disciplinæ, pi-“ ger periculi, præclarus fidei, præceps animi, præcipuus virtutis, præstans “ belli, pravus favoris, primus luendæ pœnæ, properus occasionis, propriæ “ Deorum voluptates, procax otii, profugus regni, promptus belli, pulcher“ rimus iræ, recreatus animi, rectus judicii, resides bellorum, sanus mentis, “ faucibus famæ, scitus vadorum, secors rerum, secreta teporis, segnia oc-

"casum, feri studiorum, sicci sanguinis enses, significativus belli cometes, similis tui, sinister fidei, solers lyrae, spernendus morum, spreta vigoris, stabilis sui orbis, strenuus militiae, stupens animi, summus severitatis, superior sui, superstes bellorum, surdus veritatis, tantus animi, tardus fugae, tenella animi, terribus animi, turbatus animi, turbidus animi, vaser juris, vagus animi, validus opum, vanus veri, vecors animi, venerandus sceptri, versus animi, versutus ingenii, vetus regnandi, victus animi, vigil armenti, viridissimus irae, unicus rerum."

NOTE 3. Of the adjectives belonging to this rule, amulus, certus, incertus, dubius, ambiguus, conscius, manifestus, suspectus, noxius, compertus, instead of the genitive, take frequently the dative, but generally in a different sense, as will be taught in No. 16. Several also of the adjectives in Note 2, such as, adversus, equalis, affinis, alienus, blandus, communis, conterminus, contrarius, credulus, dispar, dissimilis, fidus, finitimus, par, proprius, similis, superbus, and some others, take oftener the dative than the genitive, as will likewise be taught in No. 16. And superior, captus, oriundus, gaudens, take commonly the ablative, as taught in No. 19. 20. 32.

NOTE 4. Many of the adjectives belonging to this rule admit of other constructions; as, Cic. De alieno negligens. Id. Avidus in pecuniis. Id. Certior factus de re. Liv. Securus de bello. Cic. Nulla in re rudis. Id. Doctus Latinis literis. Plin. Suspecta incestu. Cic. Reus de vi. Reus magnis criminibus. Colum. Innoxius ab injuria. Many also of those enumerated in Note 2, either take the ablative, or admit of some other construction; as, Ovid. Felix morte sua. Cic. Ferox natura. Id. Prestans ingenio et doctrina. Tac. Devius consiliis. Ovid. Fugitivus a domino. Cic. Profugi ab Thebis. Tac. Degener ad pericula. And alienus has very frequently the ablative, with a or ab; as, Ter. Homo sum; humani nihil a me alienum puto.

NOTE 5. The genitive, according to grammarians, is not governed by these adjectives; but by, in re, in negotio, in causa, or the like, understood; except in cases where the adjective is used substantively.

I. Blasius was a man capable of profound thought, firm in his resolution, despising death, and avoiding ambition; he was a quick discerner of things, and a stickler for what was right; but he was obstinate in wrath, and a devourer of much meat.

The Emperor's freed man was a man able to endure cold, and capable of bearing want; but he was afraid of the lash, and unacquainted with war: he was skilled in music, fond of pleasure, and a lover of wine: nay he was greedy of praise, covetous of applause; but equally neglectful of friends and enemies. He was however most observant of justice, and no body was more reverentful of the gods.

II. 1. The man, whom I mentioned above, was of a sickle temper: at first he was desirous of war, greedy of military glory, and weary of learning; but after Carthage, that vied with the city of Rome for so many years, was destroyed, Blasius sum vir capax altus mens, tenax propositum, spernax mors, et fugax ambitio; sum sagax res, et pertinax rectum; sed sum pervicax ira, et edax multus cibus.

Imperator libertus sum homo patiens aliorum, et tolerans penuriam; sed sum metuens flagellum, et insolens bellum: sum sciens musica, cupiens voluptas, et amans vinum: imo sum appetens laus, sitiens fama; sed aequè negligens amicus inimicusque. Sum tamen servantissimus aequum, et nemo sum reverentior deus.

Vir, qui memoro supra, sum mobilis & ingenium: primo sum avidus bellum, avarus militaris gloria, et fastidiosus literarum; sed postquam Carthago, aemula urbe Roma per tot annos, he was fond of peace, addicted to eloquence, and much taken up with physics.

2. Our general is skilled in many things, being expert at arms, well seen in the art military, versed in war, foreseeing what is to come, aware of things future, well assured of what will happen, but undaunted at danger, and not afraid of death: his son is well acquainted with learning, but apt to learn vice; he is skilled in the law, versed in country affairs, and mindful of a good turn.

3. This man is void of learning, ignorant of philosophy, unskilled at arms, unacquainted with the world, not afraid of the gods, unaccustomed to hardship, not used to slavery, fearless of death, unmindful of his condition, and regardless of reputation. His wife, ignorant of her extraction, is unsteadfast in her mind, wavering in her resolution, concerned and in pain for her affairs, and perplexed about the theft.

4. The orator defended two men accused of parricide, and suspected of capital crimes: the one had been privy to murder, and concerned in a conspiracy, who, being evidently guilty of the villainy, and convicted of the crime, was condemned; the other, being sakeless of the facts, not concerned in the plot entered into against the king's life, innocent of his brother's blood, and found guilty of no crime, was acquitted.

¶ Shame and modesty are weak restraints amongst men thirsting after power, and regardless of honour: accordingly Domitian proceeded to huge excesses of lust, rage, cruelty, and avarice, and raised so great a hatred against himself, that he quite wiped off the merits of his father and brother.

Catiline, a man of a very noble extraction, but of a very wicked disposition, with some famous indeed, but daring men, conspired against his country; his accomplices being seized, were strangled in prison; and indeed what could be hard or too severe against men convicted of such villainy?

Vespasian, the emperor, was apt not to remember offences and quarrels: he took patiently the ill language uttered by him, everso, sum cupidus par, studiosus eloquentia, et curiosus medicina.

Noster dux sum peritus multus res, gnarus arma, prudens res militaria, expertus bellum, præsciis venturum, providus res futuros, certus futurum; verum intrepidus periculum, et interitus letum: is filius sum doctus literæ, sed docilis pravum; sum consultus jus, callidus res rusticus, et memor beneficium.

Hic homo sum rudis literæ, ignarus philosophia, inciscus arma, imperitus res, haud timidus deus, insuetus labor, insolitus servitium, impavidus mors, immemor sors, et securus fama. Is uxor, nescius genus, sum incertus animus, dubius consilium, sollicitus et trepidus res fasus, et anxius furtum.

Orator defendo duo homines parricidium, et suspectus capitalis crimen: alter sum conficius crædes, et noxius conjuratio, qui, manifestus scelus, et convictus factus, condemnor: alter, innocens factum, innoxius consilium initus in rex caput, insons fraternus sanguis, et compertus nullus flagitium, absolvo.

Pudor et modestia sum infirmus vinculum apud homo avidus potentia, et securus decus: itaque Domitianus progredior ad ingens vitium libido, iracundia, crudelitas, et avaritia, et concito tantus odium in sui, ut penitus aboleo meritum pater et frater.

Catilina, vir nobilis 6 genus; sed pravus 6 ingenium, cum quidam clarus quidem, sed audax vir, conjuro adversus patria; is socius deprehensus, strangulo in carcere; et sane quis possum sum acerbus aut nimis gravis in homo convictus tantus facinus?

Vespasianus, princeps, sum immemor offensa et inimicitia; leniter sero convicium dictus in sui against him by the lawyers and philosophers: and Galba was a man not regardless of fame, not covetous of other mens money, but greedy of the public money, and not lavish of his own; could bear with his friends and freed men, was capable of empire, had he not governed.

Cineas, who was Demosthenes's scholar, and skilled in the Latin tongue, was sent to Rome by Pyrrhus, to advise the Romans to sue for peace; but the Romans afterwards dispatched generals into Greece and other quarters, who taught the nations, till that time free, and therefore unable to bear the yoke, to beg peace of them, and be subject.

Sylla was fond of pleasure, but fonder of glory, he hastened with his victorious army from Asia; and indeed since Marius had been so cruel against his friends, how great severity was there occasion for, that Sylla might be revenged of Marius?

a caufidicus et philofophus: et Galba sum vir non incuriofus fama, non appetens alienus pecunia, fed avarus pecunia publicus, et non profufus fuus; patiens amicus libertusque, capax imperium, nifi impero.

Cineas, qui sum Demosthenes discipulus, et doctus Latinus lingua, mitto ad Roma a Pyrrhus, ut hortor Romanus peto pax; fed Romanus poſtea mitto dux in Græcia aliusque pars, qui doceo gens, ad id tempus liber, et ideo impatientis jugum, peto pax a fui, et servio.

Sylla sum cupidus voluptas, fed cupidus gloria, propero enim victor exercitus ab Asia; et sane quum Marius sum tam ferus in is amicus, quantus sevitia opus sum, ut Sylla vindico de Marius?

Ageſilaus was an excellent general, undaunted at danger, able to endure want, and accustomed to hardship; he was a man of low stature, and slender body; so that strangers, when they beheld his person, despised him; but they who knew his abilities could not sufficiently admire him.

Epaminondas, the son of Polymnus the Theban, was modest, prudent, skilled in war, a lover of truth, and of a great spirit.

Nyctimene is said to have committed some horrible wickedness, for which she was changed into an owl, an ugly dismal bird, who, conscious of her guilt, never appears when the sun shines, but being driven from the society of birds, seeks to conceal her shame in the darkness of the night.

RULE II.

* 15. PARTITIVES, and words placed partitively, comparatives, superlatives, interrogatives, and some numerals, govern the genitive plural.

None of the wild beasts.
The black among vultures.
The elder of the brothers.
The most learned of the Romans.
Which of us?
One of the muses.
The eighth of the wise men.

REG. II.

PARTITIVA, et partitive posita, comparativa, superlativa, interrogativa, et quædam numeralia, genitivo plurali gaudent.

Nulla belluarum.
Nigri vulturum.
Senior fratrum.
Doctissimus Romanorum.
Quis nostrum?
Una musarum.
Octavus sapientum.

1. Partitives are adjectives, nouns, or pronouns, signifying many, or a part of many, severally, and as it were one by one; as, ullus, nullus, solus, uter, uterque, utercunque, utrovis, uterlibet, alter, alteruter, neuter, alius, aliquis, quidam, quispiam, quisque, quisque, unusquisque, aliquot, cetera, reliquus; to which add, omnis, cunctus, and the substantive nemo.

2. Words placed partitively are adjectives used in a partitive sense, or taken to signify a part of many; as, lecti juvenum, the choice of the young men; nigra lanarum, the black hair among wool; degeneres canum, sancti deorum, &c. to which may be added the substantive vulgus; as, vulgus Atheniensium, vulgus militum.

3. Comparatives are adjectives of the comparative degree; as, doctior.

4. Superlatives are adjectives of the superlative degree; as, doctissimus.

5. Interrogatives are adjective nouns or pronouns, by which we ask a question: those belonging to this rule are, quis, quisnam, quisve, uter, quot, quotus, quotusquisque.

6. Numerals are adjectives signifying number; and to this rule belong both the cardinals, such as, unus, duo, tres, &c. and the ordinals, such as, primus, secundus, tertius, &c. as also the distributive singuli; to which add, multi, pauci, plerique, medius.

NOTE 1. The partitive, &c. takes the gender of the substantive it governs, when there is no other; but if there are two substantives of different genders, it generally agrees with the first; as, Cic. Indus maximus fluminum. Id. Leo fortissimus animalium. But not always; as, Plin. Delpbinus velocissimum omnium animalium.

NOTE 2. Partitives, &c. govern the genitive singular of collectives; as, Cic. Præstantissimus nostra civitatis. Virg. Nympharum sanguinis una.

NOTE 3. The comparative, as also the partitives, uter, alter, neuter, when they govern a genitive of partition, import a comparison betwixt two only: thus, speaking of two brothers, or two persons, we say, major fratrum, uter vestrum? But speaking of three or more, we say, maximus fratrum, quis vestrum? &c.

NOTE 4. Instead of the genitive of partition, we often find the ablative with de, e, ex, or in, and sometimes the accusative with inter, or ante; as, Ovid. De tot modo fratribus unus. Cic. Unus e Stoicis. Id. Acerrimus ex omnibus nostris sensibus est sensus videndi. Senec. Crasus inter reges opulentissimus. Liv. Longè ante alios acceptissimus militum animis.

NOTE 5. After partitives, &c. we use the genitives nostrum and vestrum, but not nostri or vestri.

NOTE 6. In this construction of partitives, &c. de, e, vel ex numero, is understood or sometimes expressed; as, Juv. Quedam de numero lamiarum. V. Max. Unus e numero Persarum. Cæsar. Ex numero adversariorum sententia interfecit.

1. Augustus, after the civil wars, neither in his harangues nor in his edicts, called any of the military fellow-soldiers.

Alexander engaged with none of his enemies whom he did not conquer, and Augustus, post civilis bellum, neque in concio neque per edictum, appello ullus miles commilito.

Alexander congregior cum nullus hostis qui non vinco, et said siege to no town which he did not take.

Spain was invaded by the Romans before it knew itself, and alone of all the provinces understood its own strength after it was subdued.

Who will wonder that the enemy gave way, when one of the consuls ordered his own son, though victorious, to be slain, because he had fought contrary to orders?

What every one of your friends may have writ to the general concerning these two men, I know not; but neither of them is much to be blamed; the rest of the soldiers were also in the fault, and none of us is innocent.

This man entertains a stranger more handsomely than either of you, or any of your friends: Come, says he, here are eggs, hens, apples, and nuts; some of the apples are mellow; of the eggs, some are long, some round; choose either of them you please, for both of them are good.

2. The centurion being surrounded by the enemy, was in great danger; but the chief of his friends, the choice of the young men, and the light-armed of the soldiers, came running up to his relief.

3. & 4. The younger of the bees go abroad to their work, the more elderly labour within. Thus the most ancient of mortals practised industry; they lived without a crime, and therefore without punishment, nor was there need of rewards.

5. & 6. Who of mortals can endure regal pride? Wherefore Tarquin, the seventh and last of the Roman kings, was driven into banishment, and scarce two or three of his well-wishers were left in the city.

All Gaul is divided into three parts; whereof the Belgæ inhabit one, the Aquitani another, the Gauls the third. Of all these the Belgæ are the bravest. What numbers of men have flourished there?

¶ After Sylla came over to Africa, and to the camp of Marius with the horse, though raw before, and unacquainted with war, he soon became the obscure nullus urbs qui non expugno.

Hispania obsideo a Romanus antequam cognosco sui, et solus omnia provincia intelligo suus vires postquam vinco.

Quis miror hostis cedo, quum alter consul jubeo suus filius, quamvis victor, occido, quia pugno contra imperium?

Quis quisque tuus necessarius scribo ad imperator de hic duo vir, nescio; sed neuter is sum valde reprehendendus; reliquus miles sum etiam in culpa, et nemo ego sum innocuus.

Hic vir excipio hospes eleganter quam utervis tu, aut quicquam amicus vester: Agite, inquam, hic sum ovum, gallina, pomum, et nux; quidam pomum sum mitis; ovum alius sum oblongus, alius rotundus; eligo uterlibet hic, nam uterque is sum bonus.

Centurio circumventus ab hostis, versor in magnus periculum; sed præcipuus amicus, lectus juvenis, et expeditus miles, concurreo in auxilium.

Adolescentior apes exeo ad opera, senior operor intus. Ita vetustissimus mortalis exerceo diligentia; ago sine scelus, eoque sine poena, nec opus sum præmium.

Quis mortalis possum tolero regalis superbia? Itaque Tarquinius, septimus atque ultimus Romanus rex, ago in exilium, et vix duo aut tres fautor relinquo in urbs.

Omnia Gallia sum divisus in tres pars; qui Belgæ incolo unus, Aquitani alius, Galli tertius. Hic omnia Belgæ sum fortissimus. Quot homo ibi provenio?

Postquam Sylla venio in Africa, atque in castra Marius cum equitatus, quamvis rudis antea, et ignarus bellum, brevis sio so-most accomplished of all. But what one of a thousand of great generals is happy?

The tyrants are conquered, and fly back to the city. After this, they begged assistance of the Lacedæmonians. The war is renewed, five hundred of the Lacedæmonians are slain in battle, Critias and Hippolochus, the most cruel of all the tyrants, fall. But who amongst men, or which of the gods, bewailed their death?

Many of the soldiers were kissing the hands and feet of Otho, and calling him the only emperor; whilst, in the mean time, Vitellius, ignorant of the victory, was drawing together the remaining strength of the German army; most of the soldiers were on their march, a few only of the veterans were left in the winter-quarters.

Of Cæsar's men, not above twenty were missing, but in the castle there were none of the soldiers but were wounded, four of the centurions lost their eyes, thirty thousand arrows were shot into the castle by the enemy, and in the shield of Scæva the centurion were found two hundred and thirty holes.

Sicily at the beginning was the country of the Cyclops: after they were extirpated, Cocalus seized the government of the island; after whom each of the cities fell under the power of tyrants.

Cæsar, the most penetrating and wisest of generals, resolves to take Dumnorix along with him into Britain, because he knew him to be desirous of change, fond of power, of a great spirit, and of great authority among the Gauls; though he persisted to entreat that he might be left in Gaul.

Gordius spied a young lady of excellent beauty at the gate of the city, and asked her which of the augurs he should consult? When she understood the occasion of his question, being skilled in the art, she told him that he should be a king, and promises that she should be the companion of his life and hopes. This offer seemed the chief happiness of a kingdom.

Pylades and Orestes cherished a mutual love, and no mortal knows which of them was the more faithful.

The priestess of Apollo being asked why Jupiter was esteemed the chief lestissimus omnis. Sed quotusquisque magnus dux sum felix?

Tyrannus vinco, et in urbs refugio. Post hic peto auxilium à Lacedæmonius. Bellum redintegro, quingenti Lacedæmonius interficio in prælium, Critias et Hippolochus, omnia tyrannus levissimus, cado. Sed quisnam homo, quisve deus, lugeo mors?

Multus miles exosculor manus ac pes Otho, unicusque imperator prædico; dum, interim, Vitellius, nescius victoria, traho reliquas vires Germanicus exercitus; plerique miles sum in iter, pauci tantum veteranus relinquo in hiberna.

Cæsar miles non amplius viginti sum desideratus, sed in castellum nemo miles omnino sum quin vulnere, quatuor centurio amitto oculus, triginti mille sagitta concio in castellum ab hostis, et in scutum Scæva centurio invenio cccxx. foramen.

Sicilia a principium sum patria Cyclops: postquam ille extinguo, Cocalus occupo regnum insula; post qui singuli civitas concedo in imperium tyrannus.

Cæsar, sagacissimus ac sapientissimus dux, constituo duco Dumnorix fuicum in Britannia, quod cognosco is cupidus res novus, avidus imperium, magnus è animus, et magnus auctoritas inter Gallus; quamvis ille contendo peto, uti in Gallia relinquo.

Gordius conspicio virgo eximius pulchritudo ad porta urbs, et percontor quis augur consulto? Cum intelligo causa quaestio, peritus ars, respondeo ille sum rex, et polliceor sui fore socius vita is et spes. Hic conditio videor primus felicitas regnum.

of the gods, since Mars was the best soldier? made this answer, Mars is valiant, but Jupiter is wise.

The nation of the Suevi is the most warlike of all the Germans. The nature of their food, their daily exercise, and free manner of life, improve their strength, and make them men of huge stature of body.

When Faith, Temperance, the Graces, and other celestial powers, left the earth (says one of the ancients), Hope was the only goddess that staid behind.

The first of all virtues is Innocence, the next is Modesty. If we banish Modesty out of the world, she carries away with her half the virtue that is in it.

RULE III.

16. ADJECTIVES signifying profit or disprofit govern the dative.

Kind to me.
Agreeable to the people.
Sentenced to punishment.
Evident to all.
Bordering on the sea.
Fit for study.
Frank to petitioners.
Of the same age with Cicero.
Like his father.
Allied to heaven.
Exposed to danger.

I EG. III.

ADJECTIVA significantia commodum vel incommodum regunt dativum.

Benignus mihi.
Acceptus plebi.
Addictus supplicio.
Apertum omnibus.
Finitimus mari.
Aptus studio.
Facilis rogantibus.
Æqualis Ciceroni.
Similis patri.
Cognatus celo.
Obnoxius periculo.

To this rule belong chiefly adjectives signifying,

1. PROFIT or DISPROFIT; as, benignus, bonus, utilis, commodus, felix, faustus, fructuosus, prosper, saluber; also, calamitosus, inutilis, damnosus, dirus, exitiosus, funestus, incommodus, malus, noxius, perniciosus, pestifer.

2. PLEASURE or PAIN; as, acceptus, dulcis, gratus, gratiosus, jucundus, latus, suavis; also, acerbus, amarus, insuavis, injucundus, ingratus, molestus, tristis.

3. LOVE or HATRED; as, addictus, æquus, amicus, benevolus, blandus, carus, deditus, fidus, fidelis, lenis, mitis, propitius; also, adversus, asper, crudelis, contrarius, insensus, infestus, infidus, immitis, inimicus, iniquus, invidus, iratus, odiosus, suspectus, trux.

4. PERSPICUITY or OBSCURITY; as, apertus, certus, compertus, conspicuus, manifestus, notus, perspicuus; also, ambiguus, dubius, ignotus, incertus, obscurus.

5. PROPINQUITY; as, finitimus, propior, proximus, propinquus, socius, vicinus, affinis.

6. FITNESS or UNFITNESS; as, aptus, appositus, accommodatus, habilis, idoneus, opportunus; also, ineptus, inhabilis, importunus, inconueniens.

7. EASINESS or DIFFICULTY; as, facilis, levis, obuius, peruius; also, difficilis, arduus, grauis, laboriosus, periculosus, inuius.

8. EQUALITY or INEQUALITY; as, equalis, equus, par, compar, suppar, communis; and, inequalis, impar, dispar, discors: Also, LIKENESS or UNLIKENESS; as, similis, amulus, geminus; and, diffimilis, absonus, alienus, diuersus, discolor.

9. Also many compounded with CON; as, cognatus, concolor, concors, confinis, congruus, consanguineus, conscius, consentaneus, consonus, conueniens, conterminus, contiguus, continuus, continens, &c.

10. A great variety of other adjectives that cannot be reduced to distinct classes; as, obnoxius, subiectus, supplex, superstes, proprius, credulus, absurdus, decorus, deformis, pressus, secundus, &c.

NOTE 1. With respect to the adjectives belonging to this rule, observe,

1. That amulus, certus, incertus, dubius, ambiguus, conscius, manifestus, suspectus, noxius, compertus, &c. often govern the genitive; as was taught No. 14.

2. That though aduersus, equalis, affinis, alienus, blandus, communis, conterminus, contrarius, credulus, dispar, dissimilis, fidus, finitimus, par, proprius, similis, superstes, &c. take commonly the dative; yet sometimes they govern the genitive, as already observed in No. 14. Note 2. 3. That benignus, prosper, letus, grauis, and some others, often take the genitive or ablative, as belonging to No. 21. Here also observe, that adjectives belonging to different rules, and which admit of different constructions in different senses, sometimes take both cases after them; as, Ter. Mens sibi conscia recti.

NOTE 2. Some adjectives signifying love, hatred, or other passions toward or against a person; such as, amicus, animatus, beneficus, benevolus, benignus, pius, gratus, misericors, liberalis; acerbus, severus, seuerus, crudelis, iniquus, iniurius, insensus, &c. take often the accusative, with the preposition in, erga, or aduersus.

NOTE 3. Some adjectives signifying fitness, usefulness, or the contrary; such as, accommodatus, appositus, aptus, congruus, commodus, habilis, idoneus, opportunus, utilis; ineptus, inhabilis, inutilis, &c. take frequently the accusative with ad.

NOTE 4. Adjectives signifying motion, tendency, or propension to a thing; such as, celer, tardus, velox, piger, impiger, lentus, preceps, rapidus, segnis; decliuis, inclinabilis, procliuus, pronus, propensus, paratus, promptus, propugus, &c. take the accusative with ad or in, rather than the dative.

NOTE 5. Propior and proximus, in imitation of their primitive prope, sometimes take the accusative, the preposition ad being understood, but seldom or never expressed; as, Sall. Vitium propius virtutem. Cic. Proximus Pompeium sedebam.

NOTE 6. Substantives sometimes govern the dative; as, Virg. Erit illi mihi semper Deus. Ter. Natura tu illi pater es, consiliis ego. Hor. Mæstis præsulium reus. Virg. Tu decus omne tuis. Cic. Non hominibus sed virtutibus hostis. Plaut. Lupus est homo homini. Lucr. Urbi pater est. Ter. Nostra est faulrix familia.

NOTE 7. The dative, according to grammarians, is not, properly speaking, governed either by adjectives, verbs, or any other part of speech; but is fitly subjoined to any word, when acquisition, ademption, advantage, disadvantage, or destination, is signified.

17. Verbals, in BILIS and Verbalia in BILIS et DUS govern the dative. DUS regunt dativum.

Wonderful to you.
To be entreated by me.

Mirabilis tibi.
Exorandus mihi.

NOTE 1. The participle perfect, signifying passively, takes sometimes the dative, but oftener the ablative, with a or ab. Cic. Ego audita tibi putaram. Id. Mors Crassi est a multis desecta. Ovid. Proditus a socio est.

NOTE 2. Verbals in DUS also, instead of the dative, take sometimes the ablative, with a or ab. Cic. Admonendum a me. Id. Non eos venerandos a nobis.

16. 1. Mallows are wholesome for the body, useful to the sick, and hurtful to no man; but some medicines are unprofitable to the physician himself, destructive to health, and pernicious to the patient.

The victory which Cæsar obtained in the plains of Pharsalia, was baneful to his country, destructive to the commonwealth, pernicious to the Roman name, fatal to the city, and dismal to human kind.

Fortune is always kind to you; my trade is profitable to me; the stars are beneficial to mariners: we shall loose from the harbour to-morrow; may it be lucky, fortunate, and happy for us all.

2. My colleague is delightful to his friends, agreeable to his companions, acceptable to all, and unpleasant to no body: without him, and without the study of letters, life itself would be tasteless to me.

Dew on the tender grass is agreeable to cattle, and sleep is sweet to a traveller; a burden is irksome to a sluggish ass, and labour troublesome to a lazy person; an unripe grape is sour to the taste; and wind is a sad thing for trees.

3. Be thou just to all, kind to all, intimate with few, fawning to none, true to your lord, faithful to your master, gentle to your petitioner, merciful to Malva sum saluber corpus, utilis æger, et pestifer nemo; sed quidam medicamentum sum inutilis medicus ipse, perniciosus valetudo, et exitiosus agrotus.

Victoris qui Cæsar adipiscor in campus Pharsalia, sum calamitosus patria, damnosus respublica, exitiabilis Romana nomen, funestus urbs, et dirus humanus genus.

Fortuna semper sum benignus tu; meus ars sum fructuosus ego; stella sum commodus nauta; solvo e portus cras; qui bonus, faustus, felixque sum ego omnis.

Meus collega sum jucundus amicus, acceptus comes, gratus omnis, et injucundus nemo; sine is, et sine studium literæ, vita ipse forem insuavis ego.

Ros in tener gramen sum gratus pecus, et somnus sum dulcis viator; onus sum ingratus piger asinus, et labor molestus ignavus; immaturus uva sum acerbus gustus, et ventus sum tristis arbor.

Sum tu æquus omnis, benevolus cunctus, familiaris pauci, blandus nullus, fidus dominus, fidelis herus, lenis pre-enemies, and unjust to no body: thus you will be dear to all, and hated by none,

Nero at first was friendly to good men, and addicted to the study of the muses; but the latter part of his life was contrary to the former; for now he was harsh to and angry with those that advised him, spiteful and enraged against mankind, an enemy to all, hated by the gods, and many things were cross to him.

4. The arguments concerning the former pyramids appear dark to some, doubtful to others, and clear to few; but the three remaining pyramids, being situate on a hill, are visible to sailors, and known to all.

5. In Africa the places that are next to our sea, nigh to Carthage, or near to Mauritania, are very fertile; but the places bordering on Numidia, and nearer to the scorching heats, are more barren.

6. Decency is adapted to the nature of things; thus, some colours are proper for mourning, and others quite improper for this purpose; the morning is friendly to the muses, and fit for study; a town situated on the shore is convenient for trade; but without walls it will be exposed to enemies.

7. Nothing is difficult or hard to a brave man; to him no place is dangerous, no battle terrible, no sea impassable; all hardships are easy and light to such a man: yet his mind is always disposed to peace, but ready and prepared for war.

8. The poet married a wife equal in age, and every way a match for him; she was like her mother, her lips rivalled the roses; and, as a matron is diverse and different from a strumpet, so she was unlike her sister: but there is a fault different from this fault; her spirit was unsuitable and unequal to her fortune; sometimes she was inconsistent with herself; now she is dead; death is common to every age.

9. & 10. Heaven is allied to earth, nature is always consistent with itself, and mens fortune is agreeable to their manners; thus, the savage people bordering on Ethiopia are subject to sad slave-cans, mitis hostis, et iniquus nemo: sic sum carus omnis, et odiosus nullus.

Nero primo sum amicus bonus, et deditus studium musa; sed posterior pars vita sum contrarius prior; nam jam sum asper et iratus monitor, infestus ac infensus humanus gentis, inimicus omnis, invisus deus, et multus sum adversus ille.

Argumentum de prior pyramis video obscurus quidam, dubius alius, et perspicuus pauci; at tres reliquis pyramis, situs in mons, sum conspicuus navigans, et notus omnis.

In Africa locus qui sum proximus noster mare, propinquus Carthago, aut vicinus Mauritania, sum ferax; sed locus finitimus Numidia, et propior ardor, sum magis sterilis.

Decor sum accommodatus natura res; sic, quidam color sum conveniens luctus, et alius prorsus ineptus hic res; aurora sum amicus musa, et aptus studium; urbs appositus littus sum idoneus commercium, sed sine murus sum opportunus hostis.

Nihil sum difficilis aut arduus fortis vir; is nullus locus sum periculosus, nullus praelium gravis, nullus mare invius; omnis labor sum facilis et levis talis vir: tamen animus sum semper pronus pax, sed promptus et paratus bellum.

Poeta duco uxor æquævus, et omnimodo par fui; sum similis mater, labrum sum æmulus rosa; et, ut matrona sum dispar atque discolor meretrix, ita sum dissimilis soror; sed sum vitium diversus hic vitium; animus sum alienus et impar fortuna; nonnunquam sum discors fui; nunc mortuus sum; mors sum communis omnis ætas.

Cælum sum cognatus tellus, natura semper sum concors fui, et homo fortuna sum consentaneus mos; sic, ferus natio confinis Æthiopia sum subjectus tri-bia

ry, exposed to many hardships; and yet, if you consider their strength, they are inferior to none of the neighbouring nations.

NOTE 2. A good man is affectionate towards his parents, beneficent to his relations, benevolent to his friends, grateful to his wellwishers, well affected towards good men, kind to all, injurious to none, harsh to no body, and not cruel or severe to an enemy.

NOTE 3. This fellow is good for nothing, but his brother is good for many things; his shoes are tight and meet for his feet, his clothes are light and convenient for running, and the ground is proper for that purpose.

NOTE 4. The general is slow to punishment, swift to rewards, bent on war; his son too is alert for battle, and not backward to danger; but his mind is prone to cruelty, inclined to vice, and disposed to any wickedness.

17. Death, whose path must once be trod by all, is terrible to the wicked, with whose life all good things are extinguished; but desirable to good men, whose praise cannot die, and whose minds are conscious to themselves of integrity. Let us therefore imitate the life of good men, who are born for glory, though they be often despised by the wicked.

¶ Liberty is equally desirable to the good and to the bad, to the brave and to the dastardly: wherefore Appuleius did not cease to maintain the laws of the Gracchi, so much spirit did Marius inspire, who had been always an enemy to the nobility. But Tiberius refused the title of father of his country, lest afterwards he should be found unequal to so great an honour.

Subrius the tribune being asked by Nero, why he had not discovered the conspiracy? replied, Because I hated you; nor was any of the soldiers, quoth he, more faithful to you than I, whilst you deserved to be loved; I began to hate you after you became a murderer of your mother, and of your wife, a charioteer, a comedian, and an incendiary.

The Romans were now so powerful, that they were a match for any of the servitium, obnoxius multis injuria; et tamen, si spectro vires, sum secundus nullus finitimus gens.

Bonus vir sum pius in parens, beneficus in propinquus, benevolus erga amicus, gratus adversus fautor, bene animatus in bonus, benignus erga omnis, injuriosus in nullus, acerbus in nemo, neque crudelis aut saevus in hostis.

Hic homo sum utilis ad nullus res, sed frater sum idoneus ad multus res; cauleus sum habilis et aptus ad pes, vestis sum levis et commodus ad cursus, et locus sum opportunus ad is res.

Dux sum piger ad poena, velox ad pramium, promptus ad bellum; filius quoque sum celer in pugna, et haud ignavus ad periculum; sed animus sum praecipuus in crudelitas, propensus ad vitium, et paratus ad omnis nefas.

Mors, qui via sum semel calcandus omnis, sum terribilis malus, cum qui vita omnis bonus extingui; sed optabilis bonus, qui laus non possum emorior, et qui mens sum conscius sui rectum. Imitor igitur vita bonus, qui sum natus gloria, licet saepe sum despectus malus.

Libertas sum eque optabilis bonus et malus, strenuus et ignavus: itaque Appuleius non desisto assero Gracchianus lex, tantum animus Marius do, qui semper sum inimicus nobilitas. At Tiberius recuso appellatio pater patria, ne postea invenio impar tantus honor.

Subrius tribunus interrogatus a Nero, cur non patefacio conjuratio? respondeo, Quia oditu; nec quisquam miles, inquam, sum fidelis tu quam ego, dum mereo amo; ceppi odi, postquam existo parricida mater et uxor, auriga, histrion, et incendiarius.

Romanus jam sum adeo validus, ut sum par quilibet ex-foreign nations: wherefore the consul provides forces, arms, and other things necessary for the war very industriously; nor was the event of the war any other than the preparation had been; wherefore Antiochus was routed, and forced to fly into Asia.

Nor was fortune more favourable to the flying Gauls; but continual showers, frost and snow, fatigue and famine, consumed the miserable remains of this unhappy war. The people and nations too through which they marched, followed the scattered Gauls, and slaughtered vast numbers of them.

After the death of the king, the Alexandrians sent ambassadors to the Romans, entreating, that they would undertake the guardianship of the child, and defend the kingdom of Egypt, which they said Philip and Antiochus had divided betwixt them. This embassy was very acceptable to the Romans.

Ptolemy was as ridiculous to the Romans, as he was cruel to his own subjects. His countenance was deformed, his stature short, his belly hanging out, that he was more like a beast than a man. He sent for his son from Cyrene, and slew him, lest the Alexandrians should make him king.

After Alexander had dismissed his soldiers, being now near his death, he asked his friends standing about him, whether they thought that they could find a king like him? They all held their tongues. Then he said that he knew not that, but that he foresaw how much blood Macedonia would shed in that contest.

Nor did the friends of Alexander without reason expect his kingdom, for they were men of such valour and dignity, that you would have thought every one of them kings. Never would they have found any equal to themselves, if they had not clashed among themselves; and Macedonia would have had many Alexanders, instead of one, had not fortune armed them for their mutual destruction.

Atticus is said to have been complaisant to strangers, agreeable to his friends, just to all, and troublesome to none. He so demeaned himself, that he seemed on a level with the lowest, yet equal to the greatest, and was deservedly very dear to the Athenians. Praise is grateful to human nature.

ternus gens: itaque consul parocopia, arma, et alius necessarius bellum diligenter; nec eventus bellum sum alius quam apparatus sum; quare Antiochus fugo, et cogo fugio in Asia.

Nec fortuna sum benignus fugiens Gallus; sed assiduus imber, gelu et nix, lassitudo et fames, obtero miser reliquiae hic infelix bellum. Gens quoque et natio per qui habeo iter, sector palans Gallus, et occido magnus is numerus.

Post mors rex, Alexandrinus mitto legatus ad Romanus, orans, ut suscipio tutela pupillus, et tutor regnum Aegyptus, qui dico Philippus et Antiochus divido inter sui. Hic legatio sum gratus Romanus.

Ptolemaeus sum tam ridiculus Romanus, quam sum cruentus civis suus. Vultus sum deformis, statura brevis, venter prominulus, ut sum similis belua quam homo. Arcesso filius a Cyrenae, et interficio ille, ne Alexandrinus creo rex.

Postquam Alexander dimitto miles, jam proximus mors, percontor amicus circumstant, num existimo sui possum invenio rex similis sui? Cunctus taceo. Tum dico sui nescio is, sed sui prospicio quantum sanguis Macedonia fundo in is certamen.

Nec amicus Alexander frustra regnum specto, nam sum vir is 6 virtus ac 6 veneratio, ut singuli is rex puto. Nunquam sui par reperio, si non inter sui concurro; multusque Macedonia, pro unus, Alexander habeo, nisi fortuna is in mutus perniciēs armis.

The heart of the envious man is gall and bitterness, his tongue spitteth venom, the success of his neighbour breaketh his rest, he sitteth in his cell repining; hatred and malice prey upon his heart, and there is no rest in him. He feelth in his own breast no love of goodness, and therefore believeth his neighbour is like unto himself.

The hand of the generous man is like the clouds of heaven, which drop upon the earth, fruits, herbage, and flowers; but the heart of the ungrateful is like a desert of sand, which swalloweth the showers that fall, burieth them in its bosom, and produceth nothing.

A wise man considers that nothing is to be desired by him but what is laudable and excellent. Let us imitate the wife, and always live so as to think that an account must be given by us.

RULE IV.

* 18. ADJECTIVES signifying dimension govern the accusative of measure.

The stones of Solomon's temple were forty cubits long, twelve cubits broad, and eight cubits high.

REG. IV.

ADJECTIVA dimensionem significantia regunt accusativum mensurae.

Lapides Salomonis templi erant quadraginta cubitos longi, duodecim cubitos lati, et octo cubitos alti.

The Adjectives of DIMENSION are, altus, crassus, densus, latus, longus, profundus.

The names of MEASURE are, digitus, palmus, pes, cubitus, ulna, passus, stadium, milliare.

NOTE 1. Verbs of DIMENSION; such as, pateo, cresco, &c. govern also an accusative of MEASURE.

NOTE 2. The word of MEASURE is sometimes put in the ablative; as, Liv. Fossa sex cubitis alta. Per. Venter ejus extat sesquipede; and sometimes, but rarely, in the genitive; as, Plin. Nec longiores duodenum pedum.

NOTE 3. The measure of excess, or the word denoting how much one thing exceeds or comes short of another, is always put in the ablative.

NOTE 4. To the measure of excess may be referred these ablatives, tanto, quanto, quo, eo, hoc, aliquanto, multo, paulo, nihilo, &c. which are frequently joined in this sense with the comparative degree, or sometimes with the superlative, or with a verb importing comparison.

NOTE 5. These adjectives do not govern the accusative of themselves, the preposition ad or in being understood, or sometimes expressed; as, Plin. Longa folia habet fere ad tres digitos. Colum. Sulcum in quatuor pedes longum, in tres altum. When they take the ablative, a, ab, tenuis, or in, may be supplied; and when they take the genitive, ad mensuram vel spatium, may be understood.

The walls of Babylon were two hundred feet high, and fifty broad.

This wall is five feet six inches high, and three hundred cubits long; and Murus Babylon sum ducenti pedes altus, et quinquageni latus.

Hic maceria sum quinque pedes sex digitus altus, et trecenti cubithese trees are twenty feet long, and two feet round.

In this climate, about the day of the equinox, a gnomon seven feet high, casts a shadow not above four feet long.

NOTE 1. Tell in what country the expanse of heaven does not extend above three ells, and thou shalt be the great Apollo.

Othos and Ephialtes are said to have been of a wonderful bigness, every month they grew nine inches, at length they endeavoured to climb up into heaven.

NOTE 3. The wall is six feet higher than the rock, and the turrets are ten feet higher than the wall.

I am two feet taller than you, and you are a foot and a half taller than my brother.

The sun is many times bigger than the earth, and the earth is many times bigger than the moon.

NOTE 4. By how much the greater the battle was, by so much more famous was the victory of Conon; the Lacedæmonians being conquered, take to flight.

The disease of the covetous man is fearfully curable; for the more he has, the more he desires.

It is much more laborious to conquer one's self than an enemy; but the more difficult any thing, the more honourable it is.

This condition was so much the more grievous to them, by how much it was the latter; for formerly they had quelled, in the Delphic war, the fury of the Gauls, terrible both to Asia and Italy.

¶ The exploits of the Athenians were great and glorious enough, but yet somewhat less than they are represented; but because their writers were men of great parts and eloquence, the actions of the Athenians are celebrated through the whole world for the greatest.

This garden is an hundred cubits long and sixty broad. Here are three beds, every one of which is three feet broad and five feet long; but the middle bed, which is one foot high, is the most pleasant: upon it I often sit and read the old poets with great pleasure.

tus longus; et hic arbor sum viginti pes longus, et duo pes crassus.

In hic tractus, circa dies æquinoctium, gnomon septem pes altus, reddo umbra non amplius quatuor pes longus.

Dico qui in terra spatium cælum non pateo amplius tres ulna, et sum magnus Apollo.

Othos et Ephialtes dico sum mirus magnitudo, per singuli mensis cresco novem digitus, tandem conor ascendo in cælum.

Murus sum sex pes altior quam rupes, et turris sum deni pes altior quam murus.

Ego sum duo pes longior quam tu, et tu sum sesquipès longior quam meus frater.

Sol sum multus pars major quam terra, et terra sum multus pars major quam luna.

Quantum major prælium sum, tantum clarior sum victoriâ Conon; Lacedæmonius victus, fuga capesso.

Morbus avarus vix sum medicabilis; nam quod plus habeo, id plus cupio.

Sum multum operosior supero sui ipse quam hostis; sed quod quid sum difficilior, hoc præclarior sum.

Hic conditio sum tantum amarior is, quantum sum serior; nam antea frango, in Delphicus bellum, violentia Gallus, terribilis et Asia et Italia.

Res gestus Atheniensis sum satis amplus et magnificus, verum tamen aliquantum minor quam sero; sed quia auctor sum homo magnus ingenium et 6 facundia, factum Atheniensis celeberrimo per totus orbis pro maximus.

Hic hortus sum centum cubitus longus et sexaginta latus, Hic sum tres area, qui singuli sum tres pes latus et quinque pes longus: sed mediûs area, qui sum unus pes alvus, sum amœnissimus super is sæpe sedeo et lego vetus poeta magnus cum voluptas.

The ark in which Noah, his wife, his three sons, with their wives, and a few animals of every species, were saved, is recorded by Moses, the sacred historian, to have been 300 cubits long, 50 broad, and 30 cubits high.

The grotto in the island of Antiparos is a cavern 120 yards wide, 113 long, and about 60 yards high, and the descent to it is 480 yards deep.

There are about 400 famous pyramids in Egypt, three of which are great ones, the rest are smaller. The largest of the three great pyramids is 512 feet high, and 1028 feet broad at bottom. The second pyramid is 342 feet high, and its broadest side at the bottom 622 feet long.

A great fortune in the hands of a fool is a great misfortune. The more riches a fool has, the greater fool he is.

RULE V.

* 19. THE comparative degree governs the ablative, which is resolved by quam.

Nothing is sweeter than liberty.

Resolved thus : Nihil est dulcius quam libertas.

NOTE 1. The positive with the adverb magis sometimes governs the ablative; as, Virg. O luce magis dilecta sorori. Ovid. Purpure magis pellucida gemma.

NOTE 2. The comparative takes often the following or like ablatives; opinione, spe, equo, iusto, solito, dicto, &c.; as, opinione major, spe amplior, flagrantior equo, tristior solito, &c.

NOTE 3. Nihil with the comparative, is elegantly put for nemo or nullus; as, Nihil Virgilio doctius; None more learned than Virgil.

NOTE 4. Quam after plus, amplius, minus, is elegantly suppressed; as, Ter. Quis quingentos colaphos infregit mihi. Virg. Nocteni non amplius unam. Nep. Minus diebus triginta in Asiam reversus.

NOTE 5. To the comparative the words quam pro are sometimes elegantly subjoined; as, Curt. Majorum quam pro statu sonum reddebant glorie.

NOTE 6. Comparatives, besides the ablative of comparison, take naturally after them the case which their positives govern; as, Virg. Tbymo mihi dulcior Hybla. Senec. Nihil est dignius magno viro placabilitate.

NOTE 7. The comparative does not govern the ablative of itself, the preposition pro being understood, or sometimes expressed; as, Apul. Unus pro ceteris fortior exsurgit.

RULE VI.

* 26. THESE adjectives, dignus, indignus, contentus, præditus, captus, and fretus; also, natus, satus, ortus, editus, and the like, require the ablative.

Worthy of praise.

Content with little.

Endued with virtue.

REG. VI.

DIGNUS, indignus, contentus, præditus, captus, et fretus; item, natus, satus, ortus, editus, et similia, ablativum petunt.

Dignus laude.

Contentus parvo.

Præditus virtute.

Charmed with learning.
Trusting to his strength.
Born of a goddess.
Defended of kings.

Captus doctrina.
Fretus viribus.
Natus dea.
Ortus regibus.

NOTE 1. Like adjectives are such as, generatus, creatus, prognatus, procreatus, cretus, oriundus.

NOTE 2. Dignus, indignus, contentus, take sometimes the genitive; as, Sil. Proles digna Deum. Virg. Indignus avorum. Liv. Nec jam libertatis contentos. See captus and oriundus also governing the genitive, in No. 14. Note 2.

NOTE 3. The ablative is not governed by the adjectives mentioned in this rule, but by some preposition understood: such as, a, ab, cum, in, e, ex, de. And the genitives in Note 2. are governed by some ablative understood.

19. The first epistle of Horace is sweeter than any honey.

Nothing is sweeter to the mind than the light of truth.

In civil broils, where there is need of action rather than deliberation, nothing is safer than dispatch.

The country of Campania is the finest of all; nothing is softer than the air, nothing more fruitful than the soil, nothing more hospitable than the sea.

Amongst the Scythians no crime is more heinous than theft; they just as much despise gold and silver as other mortals covet them.

A stroke follows heavier than all that had happened before, through the violence of fire. Rome is divided into fourteen quarters, whereof three were levelled with the ground.

20. The thing was worthy of a laurel, worthy of a chariot; but Cæsar was now so great, that he might despise triumphs.

Nothing is more worthy of a great and brave man than clemency and readiness to be pacified.

To be always repining and complaining is unworthy of a man; but he who is endued with virtue, and satisfied with his lot, is truly rich and truly great.

Sylla, trusting to the strength of his party, returned from Asia: whilst he staid at Athens, he kept Pomponius with him, being charmed with the politeness and learning of the youth.

Ascanius, sprung from the ancient Trojan race, was born of a noble family; for his father Æneas was descended of Anchises and Venus, and Anchises was descended of king Aslaracus.

Prints epistola Horatius sum dulcior quivis mel.

Nihil sum dulcior mens lux veritas.

In discordia civilis, ubi opus sum factum, magis quam consulum, nihil sum tutior festinatio.

Plaga Campania sum pulcher omnis; nihil sum mollior cælum, nihil uberior solum, nihil hospitalior mare.

Apud Scythia nullus scelus sum gravior furtum; perinde aspernor aurum et argentum ac reliquus mortalis appeto.

Clades sequor gravior omnis qui ante accido, per violentia ignis. Roma divido in quatuordecim regio, qui tres solum tenuis dejicio.

Res sum dignus laurus, dignus currus; sed Cæsar jam tantus sum, ut possum contemno triumphus.

Nihil sum dignior magnus et præclarus vir clementia et placabilitas.

Semper murmuro et queror sum indignus homo; sed qui præditus sum virtus, et contentus suis fors, sum vere dives et vere magnus.

Sylla, frētus opis pars, redeo ex Asia: dum apud Athenæ moror, habeo Pomponius suicum, captus et humanitas et doctrina adolescens.

Ascanius, editus antiquis Trojanus stirps, natus sum nobilis genus; nam pater Æneas satus sum Anchises et Venus, et Anchises ortus sum rex Aslaracus.

If I be descended from a heavenly race, says Phaëton, give me a token of such a great descent. Your father's palace, replied his mother, is contiguous to our earth; go, and inquire of himself, of what blood thou art sprung.

¶ After him Aurelianus undertook the government, born in Dacia, a man powerful in war, yet of a violent temper, and somewhat too inclinable to cruelty, who likewise most valiantly beat the Goths.

Cæsar, descended of the most noble and most ancient family of the Julii, not content with very many and very fortunate victories in Gaul, carried over his army into Britain.

The Gauls boast that they are all descended of Pluto, and for that reason compute their reckonings of time, not from the number of days, but nights; and they so regulate their birth-days, and the beginnings of their months and years, that the day comes after the night.

There were with Cæsar two brothers, Roscillus and Agus, men of singular courage: these, on account of their bravery, were not only in high esteem with Cæsar, but were even accounted dear by the army; but depending on Cæsar's friendship, they despised their comrades.

Cyrus, after this victory, carried the war into Lydia, where he routs Cræsus's army; Cræsus himself is taken. By how much slighter this war was than the former, by so much the milder was the victory. Cræsus obtains the city Barce; in which, though he did not lead a king's life, yet he led a life next to royal majesty. This clemency was no less useful to the conqueror than the conquered.

Sandrocottus, a man born of a mean family, was the assertor of their liberty; but after his success, he turned the title of liberty into slavery. This man being ordered to be slain by Alexander, whom he had offended, made his escape; after which fatigue, as he lay fast asleep, a lion of a huge bigness came up to him as he slept, and wiped off the sweat.

Duilius the admiral, not satisfied with the triumph of one day, ordered, during his whole life, when he returned from supper, torches to be lighted up, and

Si sum creatus cœlestis stirps, inquam Phaëton, edo nota tantus genus. Paternus domus, respondeo mater, sum conterminus noster terra; gradior, et scitor ab ipse, quis sanguis sum cretus.

Post is Aurelianus suscipio imperium, Dacia oriundus, vir potens in bellum, tamen immodicus animus, et aliquantum propensior ad crudelitas, quique strenuissime Gothi vinco.

Cæsar, genitus nobilis et antiquus Julii familia, haud contentus multus ac felix victoria, in Gallia, trajicio exercitus in Britannia.

Galli prædico fui omnis prognatus Dis, et ob is causa finio spatium tempus, non ex numerus dies, sed nox; et sic observo dies natalis, et initium mensis et annus, ut dies subsequor nox.

Sum apud Cæsar duo frater, Roscillus et Agus, homo singularis virtus: hic, propter virtus, sum non solum in honor apud Cæsar, sed etiam habeo carus apud exercitus; sed fretus Cæsar amicitia, despicio suos.

Cyrus, post hic victoria, transfero bellum in Lydia, ubi fundo Cræsus exercitus; Cræsus ipse capio. Quantum levior hic bellum sum prior, tantum mitior sum victoria. Cræsus impetro urbs Barce; in qui, etsi non dego regius vita, tamen dego vita proximus regius majestas. Hic clementia non sum minus utilis victor quam victus.

Sandrocottus, vir natus humilis genus, sum auctor libertas; sed post victoria, verto titulus libertas in servitus. Hic vir iussus interficio ab Alexander, qui offendo, aufugio; ex qui fatigatio, cum jaceo captus somnus, leo ingens forma accedo ad dormiens, et detergo sudor.

Duilius imperator, non contentus unus dies triumphus, jubeo, per omnia vita, ubi redeo a corna, funale præluceo, et tibia flutes to play before him, as if he would triumph every day. Thus, all mortals know the actions of those, who, endued with great power, pass their life in an exalted station.

The Macedonian war was by so much the more famous than the Carthaginian, by how much the Macedonians excelled the Carthaginians; wherefore the Romans raised more legions than usual, and sent for aid from Masinissa king of the Numidians, and all their other allies.

It was indeed a sort of prodigy, that, out of fifty children, not one was found whom either paternal majesty, or the veneration of an old man, or the indulgence of a father, could reclaim from so great a barbarity. Was a father's name so contemptible among so many sons? But the cause of the parricide was more wicked than the parricide itself.

The piety of a child is sweeter than incense, more delicious than odours, wafted by the gales, from a field of spices.

Wisdom is more precious than rubies; length of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand riches and honour. Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.

When Chiron, whose actions are worthy of honour, was handling the arrows of Hercules, one of them, that had been dipped in the poisonous blood of the Lernean Hydra, fell upon his foot, and made a wound that was incurable, and pains that were intolerable, insomuch that he desired to die, but could not, because he was descended of two immortal parents.

præcino, quasi quotidie triumpho. Ita, cunctus mortalis nescio factum is, qui, præditus magnus imperium, ago ætas excelsus.

Bellum Macedonicum sum tantum clarior Punicus, quantum Macedo antecedo Pœni; quare Romanus conscribo legio plus solitus, et accio auxilium a Masinissa rex Numidæ, cæterque omnis socius.

Sum prorsus ostentum genus, ut, ex quinquaginta liberi, nemo invenio qui aut paternus majestas, aut veneratio senex, aut indulgentia pater, a tantus immanitas revoco. Sumne paternus nomen adeo villis apud tot filius? Sed causa parricidium sum sceleratior ipse parricidium.

RULE VII.

21. AN adjective of plenty, want, and privation, governs the genitive or ablative.

Rich in horses.
Rich in lands.
Void of reason.
Wanting words.
Free from faults.
Free from vices.

REG. VII.

ADJECTIVUM copiæ, inopie, et privationis, regit genitivum vel ablativum.

Dives equorum.
Dives agris.
Inops rationis.
Inops verbis.
Immunis delictorum.
Immunis vitiiis.

To this rule belong,

I. Adjectives of PLENTRY; such as, "abundans, beatus, copiosus, dives, ferax, fertilis, fecundus, fœtus, frequens, frugifer, gravis, gravidus, immodicus, largus, prælargus, locuples, mactus, nimius, oneratus, onustus, opulentus, plenus, re-

"fertus, differtus, satur, tentus, distentus, tumidus, turgidus, uber;" to which add, "benignus, firmus, instructus, lætus, liberalis, munificus, paratus, prodigus, prosper, satiatus, infatiatus, infatiabilis."

II. Adjectives of WANT; such as, "egenus, indigus, inops, jejunus, inanis, modicus, pauper, sterilis, tenuis, vacuus."

III. Adjectives of PRIVATION; such as, "cassus, expers, exfors, diffors, exsul, extorris, exhæres, immunis, irritus, mutilus, nudus, orbus, truncus, viduus." OF PARTICIPATION; as, "confors, particeps." OF POWER and IMPO-TENCE; as, "compos, pollens, potens; impos, impotens." To which add, "liber, solutus, imparatus, infirmus, parcus, purus."

Of these, some govern,

1. The genitive only; as, "benignus, exfors, impos, impotens, irritus, liberalis, munificus, prælargus."

2. The ablative only; as, "beatus, differtus, frugifer, mutilis, tentus, distentus, tumidus, turgidus, paratus, imparatus, instructus."

3. The genitive more frequently; as, "compos, confors, particeps, egenus, diffors, exsul, exhæres, expers, fertilis, indigus, parcus, pauper, prodigus, sterilis, prosper, infatiatus, infatiabilis."

4. The ablative more frequently; as, "abundans, cassus, extorris, fœtus, frequens, gravis, gravidus, jejunus, liber, locuples, nudus, oneratus, onustus, orbus, pollens, solutus, truncus, viduus, lætus, firmus, infirmus, satiatus, tenuis."

5. The genitive or ablative indifferently; as, "copiosus, dives, fœcundus, ferax, immunis, inanis, inops, largus, mactus, modicus, immodicus, nimius, opulentus, plenus, potens, refertus, satur, purus, vacuus, uber."

NOTE 1. Neither the genitive nor the ablative, strictly speaking, depend upon the adjectives; for the genitive is governed by the ablative re or negotio, understood; and these, and all other ablatives, by in, a, ab, or ex.

NOTE 2. Of the above adjectives, copiosus, firmus, paratus, imparatus, inops, instructus, extorris, orbus, pauper, tenuis, fecundus, modicus, parcus, immunis, inanis, liber, nudus, solutus, vacuus, potens, sterilis, have frequently the preposition expressed; as, Cic. Locus copiosus a frumento. Id. Ab equitate firmus. Id. Ab omni re paratus. Id. Imperatus a pecunia. Id. Inops ab amicis. Id. Instructus a doctrina. Hor. Meo sum pauper in arc. Id. Tenuis in verbis ferendis. Plin. Parcus in victu, modicus in cultu. Vell. Liber a conspectu, immunis ab arbitris. Cic. Messana ab his rebus vacua atque nuda est. Id. Solutus a cupiditatibus, liber a delictis. Quinct. In affectibus potentissimus. Ovid. Herba potens ad opem. Liv. In res bellicas potens. Apul. Civitas ab aquis sterilis.

NOTE 3. Benignus, prosper, lætus, gravis, and some others in a different sense, govern the dative, by No. 16.

NOTE 4. Some grammarians refer the adjectives governing the genitive only, to No. 14. And it would not have been repugnant to method and good order to have framed No. 20. so as to comprehend those which govern the ablative only.

I. This island is rich in cattle, well stored with goats, overflowing with milk, fertile in grain, fruitful in corn, and abounding in herbs. Its mountains are stored with brass and lead, and covered with woods.

This man is blessed with wealth, and rich in money; his house is full of plate, replenished with precious things, and stuffed with jewels; his pockets are always loaded with silver, and strutted with gold.

This soldier formerly was frank of his money, abounding in wealth, profuse of his gold, lavish of praise, proud of victory, extravagant in his mirth, and too high-spirited; now he is loaded with years, cloyed with age, his wife is big with a boy.

These fields are rich in grain, fertile in corn, fruitful in victual, gay with grain and flowers; the cows and sheep are fat, their udders are strutted with milk.

II. Your brother is moderate in his desire, but yet he is in want of every thing, in need of help, poor in silver and gold, weak in strength, destitute of friends, but free from guilt.

No letter comes from you empty, or void of something useful, which I the rather admire and commend, because this age is barren in virtues, and fruitful in vices.

III. This gentleman is free of all vice, void of a fault, and clear of wickedness; yet he is in want of help, being banished his country, forced from his city and home, disappointed of his hope, deprived of his paternal estate, and destitute of all his possessions.

This young lady, deprived of her parents, and wanting a portion, was the sharer of my dangers, and shall be the partner of my kingdom; her life has not been free of troubles, nor is her breast void of love.

The governor of the city, which is destitute of a garrison, is a man endued Hic insula sum dives pecus, copiosus capra, abundans lac, fertilis fruges, fecundus annona, et ferax herba. Mons is sum uber æs et plumbum, et frequens sylva.

Hic homo sum beatus ÷ divitiæ, et opulentus pecunia; domus is sum plenus vas, satur pretiosus res, et refertus ÷ gemma; crumena sum semper onustus ÷ argentum, et turgidus ÷ aurum.

Hic miles olim sum liberalis pecunia, largus opis, prodigus aurum, munificus laus, tumidus ÷ successus, immodicus lætitia, et nimis animus; nunc sum gravis ÷ ævus, satiatus ævum, uxor sum gravidus ÷ puer.

Hic ager sum locuples ÷ fruges, fœtus ÷ frumentum, frugifer ÷ alimentum, lætus fruges et flos; vacca et ovis sum pinguis, uber sum distentus ÷ læ.

Tuus frater sum modicus votum, attamen sum egenus omnis res, indigus opis, pauper argentum et aurum, tenuis ÷ vires, inops amicus, sed vacuus ÷ crimen.

Nullus epistola venio a tu junus, aut inanis aliquis ÷ res utilis, qui ego magis miror et laudo, quia hic seculum sum sterilis virtus, et fecundus vitium.

Hic vir sum immunis omnis ÷ vitium, exfors culpa, et purus scelus; tamen sum indigus opis, exsul patria, extorris ÷ urbs domusque, irritus spes, exhaeres paternus bonum, et expers omnis ÷ fortuna.

Hic virgo, orbus ÷ parens, et cassus ÷ dos, sum particeps meus periculum, et sum consors regnum; vita non sum vacuus ÷ molestia, nec pectus sum viduus ÷ amor.

Præfectus urbs, qui sum nudus ÷ præsidium, sum vir compos vir-with virtue, abounding in wealth, but sparing of his money, mighty in war, but unable to restrain his passion; his mind however is generally calm, free from fear, and disengaged from all cares.

Some animals are destitute of feet; but in Germany there are wild beasts that are called aices, whose shape is like that of goats, which have legs without joints, and they are void of horns.

¶ The victorious Regulus, an honest man, and of ancient morals, lovely to all, though ignorant of the liberal arts, after he had widely spread the terror of his name, and slain a great number of the Carthaginian youth, sent a fleet to Rome loaded with abundance of spoil, and heavy with a triumph.

Alexander, though full of dust and sweat, yet taken with the pleasantness of the river Cydnus, threw himself into the cold water; then on a sudden a numbness seized his nerves: yet afterwards he recovered his health, and took Persepolis, the metropolis of the Persian empire, a famous city, filled with the spoils of the world.

Man, who is partaker of reason and speech, is more excellent than beasts, who are void of reason and speech; but the mind of man has got reason in vain, unless he is mindful of his duty, and do the things that are agreeable to reason and nature.

The Egyptians boast that Egypt was always so temperate, that neither the winter's cold, nor the heats of the summer sun, did incommode its inhabitants; that the soil is so fertile, that no country is more fruitful in food for the use of man.

Alcibiades, the Athenian, born of a great family, in a very great city, was much the handsomest of all the men of his time, fit for all things, and abounding in sense: it is agreed amongst all, that nobody was more eminent than he, either in vices or in virtues.

Historians say, that Cyrus king of Persia, who conquered the greatest part of Asia, waged war at last against the Scythians, whose queen was named Tomyris; that his army was routed, he him-tus, pollens 6 opis, sed parvus pecunia, potens 6 bellum, sed impotens ira; animus tamen sum fere tranquillus, liber 6 terror, et solutus omnis 6 cura.

Quidam animal sum truncus pes; sed in Germania sum belua qui appello alx, qui figura sum confimilis capra, qui habeo crus sine nodus, sumque mutilus 6 cornu.

Victor Regulus, probus vir, et vetus mos, amabilis cunctis, quamvis expert liberalis ars, quum late circumfero terror suus nomen, et cædo magnus vis juvenis Punicus, ad Roma mitto classis onustus ingens 6 prædo, et gravis 6 triumphus.

Alexander, etsi plenus pulvis ac sudor, tamen captus amenitas flumen Cydnus, projicio sui in præfrigidus aqua; tum repente rigor occupo nervus: tamen postea recipio sanitas, et expugno Persepolis, caput Persicus regnum, urbs illustis, refertus 6 spoliis terra orbis.

Homo, qui sum particeps ratio et oratio, sum præstans fera, qui sum expert ratio et oratio; sed animus homo fortior ratio frustra, nisi sum memor officium suus, et ago is qui sum consentaneus ratio et natura.

Ægypti prædico Ægyptus sum semper ita temperatus, ut neque hibernus frigor, nec ardor æstivus sol, premo is incola; solum ita secundus, ut nullus terra sum ferax alimentum in usus homo.

Alcibiades, Athenienfis, natus summus genus, in amplus civitas, sum multum formosus omnis suus ætas, aptus ad res omnis, pleniusque consilium: constat inter omnis, nihil sum excellens ille, vel in vitium vel in virtus.

Auctor narro, Cyrus rex Persia, qui domo magnus pars Asia, gero bellum tandem contra Scythia, qui regina appello Tomyris; exercitus is deleo, ipse occido; self slain; that his head was cut off, and thrown into a vessel full of blood.

All men hate those that are unmindful of a kindness, and all men love a mind grateful, and mindful of a good turn. Mutual benevolence is the great bond of human society; and without it life itself is grievous, full of fear and anxiety, and void of all comfort and pleasure. Let us therefore avoid the crime of ingratitude above all others.

caput is abscindo, et conficio in vas plenus sanguis.

Omnis odi is qui sum immemor beneficium, et omnis amovimus gratus, et memor beneficium. Mutuus benevolentia sum magnus vineulum humanus societas; et sine is vita ipse sum gravis, plenus timor et anxietas, et vacuus omnis 6 solatium et voluptas. Fugio igitur crimen ingratus animus præ reliquus.

If we lift up our eyes to the heavens, the glory of God shineth forth: if we cast them down upon the earth, it is full of his goodness: The hills and the valleys rejoice and sing; fields, rivers, and woods, resound his praise.

Human life is never free from troubles; all places are full of fraud, treachery, and snares.

The Roman soldiery made Veteranio emperor, who was a good man, and of ancient morals, but void of all the liberal arts.

No man can be said to be great or powerful, who is not master of himself.

II. THE GOVERNMENT OF VERBS.

§ 1. Of personal Verbs.

RULE I.

* 22. SUM, when it signifies possession, property, part or duty, governs the genitive.

This field is my father's, but the orchard belongs to my uncle.

It is the property of a fool to persist in an error.

It is the part of a poor man to number his flock.

It is the duty of soldiers to fight for their country.

II. REGIMEN VERBORUM.

§ 1. Personalium.

REG. I.

SUM, quoties possessionem, proprietatem, munus aut officium, significat, regit genitivum.

Hic ager est patris, at pomarium est avunculi.

Insipientis est perseverare in errore.

Pauperis est numerare pecus.

Militum est pro patria pugnare.

NOTE 1. Both in this and in the following rule, officium, munus, opus, negotium, res, proprium, or some other word to be gathered from the sense, is understood, and is sometimes expressed; as, Cic. Principum munus est resistere levitati multitudinis. Sometimes the preceding substantive is to be repeated; as, Hic liber est [liber] fratris. Hoc pecus est [pecus] Melibæi.

NOTE 2. To this rule may be referred the following and like expressions. Virg. Grates persolvere dignas non opis est nostra. Cæf. Est hoc Gallicæ consuetudinis. Plin. Moris antiqui fuit. Cic. Qua rei evertendi reip. solent esse. Sall. Regium imperium, quod initio conservanda libertatis fuerat. Id. Qua postquam gloriosa modo, neque belli patrandi cognovit, sup. esse.

23. These nominatives, meum, tuum, suum, nostrum, vestrum, are excepted. Excipiuntur hi nominativi, meum, tuum, suum, nostrum, vestrum.

It is my duty to confess.

It is your duty to forgive.

Meum est fateri.

Tuum est ignoscere.

NOTE 1. The meaning of the rule is, that instead of the primitive pronouns, mei, tui, sui, nostri, vestri, in the genitive, we must use their possessives, meum, tuum, suum, nostrum, vestrum, in the nominative case, and in the neuter gender.

NOTE 2. POSSESSIVE nouns, such as, regius, humanus, belluinus, Romanus, &c. admit of the like construction; as, Cic. Hoc quam regium sit, quem preterit? Ter. Humanum est errare. Proverb. Belluinum est ventri servire. Liv. Et agere et pati fortia Romanum est. Ter. Hoc patrum est. Cic. Gladiatorum id quidem.

RULE II.

* 24. MISEREOR, miseresco, and satago, govern the genitive.

Take pity on your countrymen.

Take pity on the king.

He has enough to do with his own affairs.

REG. II.

MISEREOR, miseresco, et satago, regunt genitivum.

Miserere civium tuorum.

Miserescite regis.

Satagit rerum suarum.

NOTE 1. Several other verbs signifying an affection of the mind, govern sometimes the genitive, but chiefly with the poets; as, Cic. Pendeo animi. Ter. Diserucior animi. Plaut. Fastidit mei. Hor. Decipitur laborum. Plaut. Fallebar sermonis. Hor. Invidit ciceris. Virg. Lator malorum. Hor. Abstinento irarum. Id. Desine querelarum. Virg. Desistere pugne. Hor. Regnavit populorum. Tac. Adipiscetur dominationis. Plaut. Levat laborum, &c. But these and the like are much oftener otherwise construed, viz. some take the accusative, others the ablative, and that either with or without a preposition, &c.

NOTE 2. In assigning the reason of this rule, grammarians differ; some take all such constructions to be Grecisms, or imitations of the Greek: others consider them as elliptical Latin expressions, and pretend to supply them by some general word; such as, negotio, re, causa, nomine, or the like, with the preposition in, de, or a. Others again think, if they are to be supplied, that some particular word suited to the sense of the expression, must be understood: thus, Miserere civium, sc. miseria. Diserucior animi, sc. dolore. Regnavit populorum, sc. in catu. Levat laborum, sc. onere, &c.

RULE III.

25. EST taken for habeo [to have] governs the dative of a person.

REG. III.

EST pro habeo regit dativum personarum.

Every one has their own way.

We have many books.

Don't you know that kings have long hands?

Suus cuique mos est.

Sunt nobis multi libri.

An nescis longas regibus esse manus?

NOTE. That foret and suppetit, as also suppeditat, when used in a neuter sense, are likewise often taken for babeo, and admit of the same construction. Mart. Si mihi cauda foret. Hor. Cui rerum suppetit usus. Tac. Publius neque animus in periculis, neque oratio suppeditavit.

RULE IV.

26. SUM taken for affero [to bring] governs two datives, the one of a person, and the other of a thing.

The sea brings ruin upon mariners.

King Philip brought aid to the Romans.

Every one minds his own pleasure.

REG. IV.

SUM pro affero regit duos dativos, unum personæ, alterum rei.

Mare est exitio nautis.

Philippus rex Romanis auxilio fuit.

Curæ est sua cuique voluptas.

NOTE 1. Other verbs sometimes govern two datives; such as, forem, duco, babeo, tribuo, relinquo, verto, venio, mitto, and some others.

NOTE 2. To this rule may be referred such phrases of naming, as these, Est mihi nomen Joanni. Just. Ptolemæus, cui cognomento Philopatri fuit. Virg. Ascanius, cui nunc cognomen Iulo additur. As also the following, or like expressions, Esse cordi, usui, derisui, prædæ, ludibrio, &c. alicui. Alicui dicto audiens esse. Habere curæ, quæstui, &c. sibi. Canere receptui, &c. militibus, &c.

NOTE 3. Instead of the dative of the THING, the nominative is sometimes used; as, Virg. Idem amor exitium per vi est, pecorisque magistro; for exitio.

22. The books which you see were my cousin's, but now they are my brother's.

Cæsar Augustus dwelt hard by the Forum, in a house that had belonged to Calvus the orator.

Never was there a more bloody battle; at last, however, the victory was the Lacedæmonians.

It is the property of a coward to wish for death; but it is the property of a great soul to despise an injury.

It is the part of a foolish boy to love play, and neglect his studies; and it is the part of a good shepherd to shear his sheep, not to slay them.

It is the duty of children to love and reverence their parents, and it is the duty of a scholar to honour his master.

23. It is my part to teach and direct; it is thy part to study hard, if thou desirest to be a scholar.

Liber qui video sum consobrinus meus, sed nunc sum frater.

Cæsar Augustus habito juxta Forum, in domus qui sum Calvus orator.

Nunquam sum cruentus prælium; ad postremum, tamen, victoria sum Lacedæmonii.

Sum timidus opto more; sed sum magnus animus despicio injuria.

Sum stultus puer amo lusus, et negligo studium; et sum bonus pastor tondeo pecus, non deglobo.

Sum liberi amo et revercor parens, et sum discipulus honoro magister.

Sum meus doceo et præscribo; sum tuus studio diligenter, si volo sum doctus.

It is our part to regulate your courage; and it is your duty not to pry into the orders of your officers, but submissively to obey.

24. Look about, says Tellus, take pity on your own heaven; the poles are smoking, which, if the fire shall destroy, your palaces will tumble down.

Pity such great hardships; take pity also on me, and be not troublesome; I am busy in my own affairs.

Xantippe, Socrates's wife, by day and by night was sufficiently employed in womanish quarrels and brawlings.

25. Cæsar the dictator rivaled the greatest orators, and Augustus had a ready and fluent eloquence.

Thou mayest rest with us upon the green grass; we have mellow apples, soft chestnuts, and plenty of curdled milk.

26. Conon, when he heard that his country was invaded, did not inquire where he might live safely; but from whence he might bring relief to his countrymen.

The loss, however, of the human race, was matter of grief to all the gods; and they asked, what would be the appearance of the earth destitute of mortals?

The vine is an ornament to the trees, grapes are an ornament to the vines, bulls to the flocks, and growing corns to the fertile fields.

NOTE I. Micipsa imagined that Jugurtha would be an honour to his kingdom, and thought it a glory to himself, that he was called the friend and ally of the Roman people.

The complainers charged it as a crime against Gallius, that he had provided poison; and who is it that would not have imputed it to him as a fault?

These gentlemen strut in state before your noses, and boast of their triumphs, just as if they reckoned them an honour to them, and not rapine.

The girl was left to this woman as a pledge for the money; but it is charged upon you as laziness, that you write so few letters to your friends.

Chabrias too was reckoned amongst the greatest generals, and performed many things worthy of memory; but Sum noster rego vester virtus; et vester sum non sciscitor imperium dux, sed modeste pareo.

Circumspicio, aio Tellus, misereor cælum vester; polus fumo, qui, si ignis violo, atrium vester ruo.

Misereor tantus labor; miseresco quoque ego, ac ne sum molestus; satago res meus.

Xantippe, Socrates uxor, per dies perque nox satago muliebris ira et molestia.

Cæsar dictator sum æmulus summus orator, et Augustus promptus ac profluens eloquentia.

Tu possum requiesco egocum super viridis frons; sum ego mitis pomum, mollis castanea, et pressus copia lac.

Conon, quum audio patria obfideo, non quæro ubi ipse vivo tuto; sed unde sum præsidium civis suus.

Jactura, tamen, humanus genus, sum dolor omnis superi; et rogo, qui sum forma terra 6 mortalis orbis?

Vitis sum decus arbor, uva sum decus vitis, taurus grex, et seges pinguis arvum.

Micipsa existimo Jugurtha forem gloria regnum suus, et duco sui gloria, sui voco amicus et socius populus Romanus.

Accusator do crimen Gallius, is paro venenum; et quis sum qui non verto is vitium?

Hic vir incedo per os vester, et ostento suus triumphus, perinde quasi habeo is honor sui, ac non præda.

Adolescentula relinquo hic mulier arrhabo pro argentum; sed tribuo tu ignavia, quod scribo tam rarus litera ad amicus.

Chabrias quoque habeo in summus dux, geroque multus res dignus memoria; sed ex his, of these, his invention in the battle which he fought at Thebes, when he came to the relief of the Boeotians, is the most famous.

¶ After this a battle is fought: the Macedonians rush upon the sword, with contempt of an enemy so often conquered by them: Alexander himself attempted the most dangerous things; where he saw the enemy thickest, there he always thrust himself, and had a mind the dangers should be his own, not his soldiers.

Rashness is the property of youth, prudence of old age; and to love riches is the property of a little and narrow soul, as to despise them, in comparison of virtue, is the property of a great and noble mind.

Virginus begged that they would pity him and his daughter, that they would not hearken to the entreaties of the Claudian family, but to the entreaties of Virginia's relations; and the tribunes, who being created for the assistance of the commons, did implore their protection and aid.

Part advised to call in Mithridates king of Pontus, part Ptolemy king of Egypt: but Mithridates was full of business of his own, and Ptolemy had always been an enemy to Syria: wherefore all agreed upon Tigranes king of Armenia; who being sent for, held the kingdom of Syria for eighteen years.

The nation of the Catti have robust bodies, compact limbs, a stern countenance, great vigour of mind, a great deal of sense and address; they confide more in their general than in their army: over the blood and spoils of an enemy they uncover their face, and boast that they are then worthy of their country and their parents.

Now I come to Cicero, who had the same contest with his contemporaries, that I have with you; for they admired the ancients, he preferred the eloquence of his own times.

The Macedonians had perpetual wars with the Thracians and Illyrians: the latter despised the infancy of the Macedonian king, and invaded the Macedonians; who being beat, brought out their king, and placed him behind their army inventum is in praelium qui apud Thebæ facio, cum venio subsidium Boeotii, maxime claudio.

Post hic praelium committo: Macedo ruo in ferrum, cum contemptus hostis toties a sui victus: Alexander ipse aggredior quique periculosus; ubi conspicio hostis confertus, eo sui semper ingero, voloque periculum sum suus, non miles.

Temeritas sum florens ætas, prudentia senectus; et amo divitiæ sum parvus angustusque animus, ut contemno is, præ virtus, sum magnus et sublimis animus.

Virginus oro ut misereor sui et filia, ne audio precis gens Claudius, sed precis Virginia cognatus; et tribunus, qui creatus ad auxilium plebs, implores is fides et auxilium.

Pars suadeo arcesso Mithridates rex Pontus, pars Ptolemæus rex Ægyptus; sed Mithridates satago res suas, et Ptolemæus semper sum hostis Syria: itaque omnis consensio in Tigranes rex Armenia; qui accitus, teneo regnum Syria per octodecim annus.

Gens Catti sum durus corpus, strictus artus, minax vultus, magnus vigor animus, multum ratio ac solertia; repono plus in dux quam in exercitus; super sanguis et spoliis hostis revelo facies, et fero sui sum tum dignus patria et patrens.

Nunc ad Cicero venio, qui idem pugna sum cum equalis suis, qui ego sum tuum; ille enim antiquus miror, ipse suis tempus eloquentia antepono.

Macedo sum assiduus bellum cum Thracæ et Illyrii: posterior condemno infantia Macedonicus rex, et invado Macedo; qui pulsus, profero rex suus, et pono pone acies in cu-in his cradle, and then renewed the dispute more briskly.

As soon as Philip king of Macedonia entered upon the government, all people had great hopes of him, because of his parts, and because of the old oracles of Macedonia, which had given out that the state of Macedonia should be very flourishing under one of the sons of Amyntas.

After this Alexander orders himself to be adored, not saluted. Callisthenes was the most violent among the recusants; which thing brought ruin both on him, and on many great men of Macedonia; for they were all put to death under pretence of a plot.

He ordered Marcus Claudius the consul, to retain a sufficient garrison at Nola, and send away the rest of the soldiers, that they might not be a burden to their allies, and a charge to the government.

Cæsar Octavianus, Mark Antony, and Lepidus, divided the Roman empire among themselves. Asia and Egypt were Mark Antony's; he married Cleopatra, the most beautiful woman of her age, who, desirous of the empire of the world, stirred him up to make war against Cæsar Octavianus, which brought destruction on them both.

It is the part of a wise man to look to the end of things. When, therefore, the fatherless call upon thee; when the widow's heart is sunk, and she imploresth thy assistance; it is thy duty to pity her affliction, and relieve those who have no helper.

Every thing is common among ants. An ant never works for herself, but for the whole society of which she is a member. Whereas bees, of which so wonderful stories are told, have each of them a hole in their hives; their honey is their own, and every bee is wholly taken up about her own concerns.

Idleness is the parent of want and pain, but the labour of virtue bringeth forth pleasure. The hand of the diligent defeateth want; prosperity and success are the industrious man's attendants. But the slothful man is a burden to himself; he loitereth about, and knoweth not what he would do.

ne, et tunc repeto certamen acriter.

Ut Philippus, rex Macedonia, ingredior imperium, omnis sum magnus spes de ille, propter ipse ingenium, et propter vetus fatum Macedonia, qui cano status Macedonia sum florens sub unus filius Amyntas.

Deinde Alexander jubeo sui adoro, non salutor. Callisthenes sum acer inter recusans; qui res sum exitium et ille, et multus princeps Macedonia; siquidem omnis interficio sub spectis insidiæ.

Jubeo Marcus Claudius consul, retineo idoneus præsidium ad Nola, et dimitto cæter miles, ne sum onus socius, et sumptus respublica.

Cæsar Octavianus, Marcus Antonius, et Lepidus, partior Romanus imperium inter sui. Asia et Ægyptus sum Marcus Antonius; duco Cleopatra, pulcher femina seculum suus, qui, cupidus imperium terra orbis, impello is gero bellum contra Cæsar Octavianus, qui sum perniciēs uterque.

RULE V.

27. A VERB signifying advantage or disadvantage governs the dative.

I am not profitable to myself.

REG. V.

VERBUM significans commodum vel incommodum regit dativum.

Mihi minus proficia.

Fortune favours the brave.

Wise men command their passions.

Cæsar threatened the eaglebearer.

Fools trust to dreams.

The girl married her cousin-german.

It is the part of a good man to satisfy his conscience.

I was present at the battle.

The last hand is put to the work.

Man who is partaker of reason, excels the brutes.

A boy takes pleasure to play with his equals.

The sailors ply the oars.

Fortuna favet fortibus.

Sapientes imperant cupiditatibus suis.

Aquilifero Cæsar comminatus est.

Stulti fidunt somniis.

Consohrino suo nupsit puella.

Est boni viri satisfacere conscientie suæ.

Aderam pugnae.

Accessit operi manus extremæ.

Homo, qui rationis particeps est, antecellit bestia.

Puer gessit paribus colludere.

Nautæ incumbunt remis.

To this rule belong a great variety of verbs, mostly neuter, viz.

I. Verbs of various significations, importing,

1. To PROFIT or HURT; as, "proficio, placeo, commodo, prospicio, caveo, metuo, timeo, consulo," to provide for or against; also, "noceo, officio, incommodo, displiceo, infidior."

2. To FAVOUR, to HELP, and their contraries; as, "faveo, gratulor, gratificor, grator, ignosco, indulgeo, annuo, parco, studeo, adulator, plaudo, blandior, lenocinor, palpor, assentor, supplico, supparasitor;" also, "refutor, adminiculator, subvenio, succurro, patrocinor, medeor, medicor, opitulor;" also, "derogo, detraho, invideo, æmulo."

3. To COMMAND, OBEY, SERVE, and RESIST; as, "impero, præcipio, mando, moderor," to restrain; also, "parco, ausculto, obedio, obsequor, obtempero, morigeror, obsecundo;" also, "famulor, servio, inservio, ministro, ancillor;" also, "repugno, obisto, reluctor, renitor, resisto, refragor, adversor;" and with the poets, "pugno, certo, bello, contendo, concurro, luctor."

4. To THREATEN, or to be angry with; as, "minor, comminor, interminor, irascor, succenseo."

5. To TRUST; as, "fido, confido, credo;" also, "diffido, despero."

6. A great many other verbs that cannot be reduced to any distinct head; such as, "nubo, excello, hæreo, cedo, operor, præstolor, prævaricor, recipio," to promise, "pepigi," to promise, "renuncio, respondeo, tempero, vaco, convicior, aio, luceo, sapio, sordeo, dormo," &c.

II. Verbs compounded with SATIS, BENE, and MALE; as, "satisfacio, satifido, benefacio, benedico, benevolo, malefacio, maledico."

III. All the compounds of the verb SUM, except possum; as, "adsum, profum, obfum, defum, infum, interfum, præsum, "superfum," &c.

IV. A great many verbs compounded with these nine PREPOSITIONS, "ad, ante, con, in, inter, ob, præ, sub, super."

AD; as, "accedo, accresco, accumbo, acquiesco, adno, adaa- to, adequito, adhæreo, adrepo, adito, adstipulor, advolvor, af- fulgeo, allabor, allaboro, annuo, appareo, applaudo, appropin- quo, arrideo, aspiro, assentior, assideo, assisto, assuesco, assurgo."

ANTE; as, "antecello, anteeo, antesto, anteverto."

CON; as, "colludo, concino, confono, convivo."

IN; as, "incumbo, indormio, inhio, ingemisco, inhæreo, in- nascor, innitor, insidio, insto, infisto, infudo, insulto, invigilo, "illacrymo, illudo, immineo, immorior, immoror, impendeo."

INTER; as, "intervenio, intermico, intercedo, intercido, in- terjaceo."

OB; as, "obrepo, obluſtor, obtreſto, obſtrepo, obmurmuro, occumbo, occurro, occurſo, obſto, obſiſto, obvenio."

PRÆ; as, "præcedo, præcurro, præco, præſideo, prælu- ceo, prænitico, præſto, prævaleo, præverto."

SUB; as, "ſuccedo, ſuccumbo, ſufficio, ſuffragor, ſubcreſ- co, ſuboleo, ſubjaceo, ſubrepo, ſupplico."

SUPER; as, "ſupervenio, ſupercurro, ſuperſto."

NOTE 1. Some few of these verbs; such as, fido, confido, innitor, cedo, vaco, instead of the dative, take sometimes the ablative, as will be taught No. 30.

NOTE 2. The verbs, jubeo, offendo, ledō, and juvo, though reducible to some of the above classes, do not govern the dative, but the accusative; as, Luc. Silentia jussit. Hor. Cur ego amicum offendam in nugis? Cic. Neminem laſit. Ovid. Juvit facundia causam.

NOTE 3. Verbs of LOCAL MOTION; such as, eo, vado, curo, propero, festino, pergo, fugio, &c. and verbs denoting tendency to MOTION; such as, tendo, vergo, specto, pertineo, &c. instead of the dative, take the accusative, with the preposition ad or in.

NOTE 4. A great many of the verbs belonging to this rule admit of other constructions; as, Plaut. Parcere pecuniam. Id. Auscultare aliquem. Cic. Desperare rempublicam. Cæſ. Ad hæc respondit. Cic. Adesse in pugna. Sall. Accedere ad urbem. Cic. Accedere in oppidum. Virg. Accedere domos infernas. Sall. Antire omnes gloria. Id. Colludere cum aliquo. Plaut. Incumbere gladium. Cic. Incumbere ad studia, in studium. Petron. Incumbere super prædam. Plin. Interjacet duas fyrtes. Cic. Obrepere in animos, ad bonos. Virg. Præcedere agmen. Sall. Succedere murum. Liv. Succedere ad urbem in pugnam. Virg. Superflare aliquem, &c.

I. 1. It is the part of a wise man to please God, to do good to men, to take care of himself, to provide for his own safety, to be concerned for his friends, and study their interest, to do harm to none, to displease no body, neither to hurt the miserable, nor lay snares for the innocent.

2. A good man favours the good, and Sum sapiens placeo Deus, proficio homo, caveo sui, prospicio salus suus, metuo amicus, et consulo utilitas, officio nullus, displicio nemo, neque noceo miser, neque insidior innocuus.

Bonus faveo bonus, et gratirejoiceth with them upon any happy event; he is always disposed to spare the vanquished, and forgive what is past; he neither entertains resentment, nor flatters any one; he knows, that those who detract from good men, derogate from themselves; he therefore envies nobody, but zealously imitates the most worthy.

It is the property of a generous man to assist the poor, to aid the needy, to succour the distressed, to heal their wounds, to patronize the orphans, to help his countrymen, to study their advantage, and to pray to God, that he would second his endeavours; whilst the covetous man flatters and caresses the rich, and applauds himself when he looks at his money in his chest.

3. God hath commanded us to rule our lusts, to govern our spirit, to listen to his word, to obey his admonitions, to be subject to his laws, to be submissive to parents, to comply with their will, to serve and wait upon them, and obey their orders, and not to be a slave to passion.

A Christian ought to oppose vicious pleasure, to struggle against and withstand the beginnings of anger, to resist evil, to oppose the corrupt practices of those who despise virtue and religion, and not to be a slave to lust, nor humour wicked men.

4. & 5. The general was angry and enraged at the soldiers, he threatened the standard bearers, he threatened the runaways; but as he durst not depend on the courage of his men, he resolved to retreat, and trust to the night and the darkness. Though at first he did not believe the things that were said concerning the enemy, yet now he began to give up his affairs for lost, and despair of safety.

6. I cannot restrain my tongue, says the gentleman to his companion, the sun shines on the wicked, and few are wise for themselves. I bewail the misfortune of the unhappy young lady; she excelled all the girls of the east, she was taken up with the liberal sciences, and was always intent upon philosophy.

Many young men courted this girl, and presents sent by many lovers were disdained by her; at length, however, the lör is de aliquis res felix; semper paratus sum parco victus, et ignosco præteritus; neque indulgeo ira, neque adolor quicquam; nosco is, qui detraho bonus, derogo sui; ideo invidio nemo, sed æmulo dignus.

Sum generosus auxilior pauper, subvenio inops, succurro miser, medeor vulnus, patrocinator orbus 6 parens, opitulator civis, studeo commodum, et supplico Deus, ut annuo aulum; dum avarus assentor et blandior dives, et plaudo sui, cum contempler nummus in arca.

Deus præcipio ego ut impero cupiditas, moderor animus, aucto verbum is, pareo monitum, obedio lex, obtempero parens, obsecundo voluntas is, famulor et ministro ille, et obsequor imperium, neque servio iracundia.

Christianus debeo repugno vitiosus voluptas, reluctor et obisto principium ira, resisto malum, adverfor pravus mos is qui contemno virtus et religio, neque interservio cupiditas, neque morigeror malus homo.

Dux succenseo et irascor miles, minor signifer, comminor fugiens; sed cum non audeo confido virtus miles, statuo recedo, et fido nox et tenebræ. Quamvis primo non credo is qui narro de hostis, tamen nunc cæpi diffido res suas, et despero salus.

Non possum tempero lingua, aio vir comes, sol luceo scelestus, et pauci sapio sui. Doleo casus infelix virgo; excello omnis puella oriens, operor liberalis studium, et semper vado philosophia.

Multus juvenis, peto hic puella, et munus missus a multus proci sordido ille; tandem, ta-yielded to the gentle command of her parents, and married a Roman knight; but the event did not answer people's expectation, he was a bad husband, and the poor creature has bid adieu to life; my voice clings to my jaws!

II. An honest man endeavours to satisfy his creditors, and to act well for the commonwealth, which is a fine thing; he endeavours also to speak well of good men, to revile nobody, and to do an ill turn to none. God often blesses such a man, which he does when he gives him prosperity, enlarges his fortune, and shows him favour.

III. Parents often outlive their children; and as some men have a weakness of judgment, and others want prudence, an old man of this sort ought to be present at public deliberations, and have the charge of the thing to be done; not that he may have it in his power to hurt any one, but that he may be able to do good to many; and God sometimes favours such an undertaking.

IV. Ad. The thing pleased me much; for the young man had resolved to rest in your opinion, and adhere to virtue. Fortune, therefore, smiled upon him, and favoured his first attempt; and great courage was added to his men, who rode up to the very gates of the city.

The enemy threw themselves into the river, and endeavoured to swim to land. Our general returned victorious with twelve serjeants, who attended him, and all rose up before him, as he came into his tent, where he sat down to a feast. The grandees sat by him, and six boys waited at table.

Ante & Con. Virtue, which is always consistent with itself, excels all other things, and the endowments of the mind excel strength of body; but they often beget pride. There was a comedian in Greece, of a celebrated character, with whom I lived a long time, who far excelled most actors and musicians; he used to boast and say, Let the boys play with their equals, and sing to themselves and the muses.

In. This villain mocks and insults all good men; he is said never to have groanmen, cedo lenis imperium parens, et nubo Romanus eques; sed res non respondeo hominū opinio, sum durus maritus, et miser renuncto vita; vox faux hæreo!

Probus vir conor satisfacio creditor, et benefacio republica, qui sum pulcher; conor quoque benedico bonus homo, maledico nemo, et malefacio nullus. Deus sæpe benedico talis homo, qui facio cum do prosper, augeo bonum, faveoque.

Parens sæpe superfluum liberi; et ut quidam homo infum imbecillitas iudicium, et alius defum prudentia, senex ejusmodi debeo interflum publicus consilium, et præflum res faciendus: non ut possum obflum quivis, sed ut possum profum multus; et Deus nonnunquam adflum talis inceptum.

Res arrideo ego valde; nam adolescens statuo acquiesco sententia tuus, et adhæreo virtus. Fortuna, igitur, affulgeo ille, et aspiro primus labor; et ingens animus accedo miles, qui adquito ipse porta urbs.

Hostis projicio sui in fluvius, et conor adno terra. Noster dux redeo victor cum duodecim licitor, qui appareo is, et omnis assurgo is, veniens in tabernaculum, ubi accumbo epulæ. Primores assideo ille, et sex puer adsto mensa.

Virtus, qui semper consono sui, anteco omnis alius res, et dos animus antecello vires corpus; at sæpe gigno superbia. Sum histrio in Græcia, celebr fama, qui diu convivo, qui longe antesto plerique actor et citharædus: soleo gloriol et dico, Puer colludo par, et contino sui et musa.

Hic scelestus illudo et insulto omnis bonus; dico nunquam ined or wept at the death of a friend; but he gapes after gain, and sleeps on his bags of money; he obstinately persists in, and pursues his former course, though danger seems to hang and hover over him; for a pain has lately settled in his feet, which obliges him to lean on a staff, as a soldier leans on a spear, or as a house leans on pillars.

Inter. There was an alliance for a long time betwixt this people and their neighbours; a war, however, at last broke out between them; they joined battle in a valley full of ferns, which use to grow in neglected fields: at first the sun was shining, and the gold glittered on their bright armour; many were slain on both sides, who were all buried in pits that lay betwixt the hills, and more would have fallen had not night come on during the time of the battle.

Ob. The lot that has fallen to men is mortal: mortality occurs, nay often occurs to our thought, and all men struggle against death in vain; but yet vices creep in upon us, wickedness stands in the way of piety, one decries and depreciates the merits of another, few withstand the allurements of pleasure, and nobody is disposed to die for his country.

Pro. Mercury is said to preside over gain; but a fair reputation is better than riches. Masters ought and use to lead the way to their scholars, and the boy is worthy of honour who outshines his ancestors, or outstrips his contemporaries. Providence over-rules human devices, and certain signs sometimes go before certain events.

Sub & Super. Wave succeeds wave, grief comes in the midst of joy, old age and poverty steal upon you; but do not sink under the burden; for your farm, which lies under the hill, is far better than its rent, and will find a purchaser; and as you are content with little, if but a small part of the price shall be left to you, you will be richer than a covetous man, whom the wealth of Croesus would not satisfy.

Note 3. All the rivers run into the sea, and we all hasten to one habitation. My brother enlisted in the army, went to a battle; but being worsted, he hafgemo aut illachrymo mors amicus; sed inhio lucrum, et indormio foccus pecunia; pertinaciter insto, et inhareo prior vestigium, etiamsi periculum video impendeo et immineo is; nam dolor nuper infideo pes, qui cois innitor baculum, ut miles insto hasta, aut ut tectum incumbo columna.

Amicitia diu intercedo hic populus cum finitimus; bellum, tamen, tandem exorior inter is; committo praelium in vallis plenus 6 filix, qui soleo innascor neglectus ager: primo sol splendeo, et aurum intermico fulgens arma; multus interficio utrinque, qui omnis sepelio in fovea qui interjaceo mons, et plus cado nisi nox intervenio praelium.

Sors qui obvenio homo sum mortalis: mortalitas occurro, imo occurro animus, et omnis obluor mors frustra; attamen vitium obrepro ego, scelus obfisto pietas, alter obfistrepo et detrecto laus alter, pauci obfisto blanditiæ voluptas, et nemo sum paratus occumbo mors pro patria.

Mercurius dico præfideo lucrum; sed bonus existimatio præsto divitiæ. Præceptor debeat et soleo præco discipulus, et puer sum dignus honor qui præluceo majores, aut antecelio æqualis. Providentia prævaleo humanus consilium, et certus signum interdum præcurro certus res.

Unda succedo unda, luctus supervenio lætitia, senectus et paupertas subrepro tu; sed ne succumbo onus; nam ager tuus, qui subjaceo mons, longe supercurro vestigal, et invenio emptor; et cum sum contentus parvum, si modo exiguus pars prætium supersto, tu sum ditior avarus, qui opis Croesus non sufficio.

Omnis fluvius curro in mare, et ego omnis sedes propero ad ubi. Meus frater co in militia, vado in praelium; sed victus, tened to the shore, fled into Africa, and went to the city Carthage. His friends, to whom the business chiefly belonged, afterwards brought him back; his years are now on the decline towards old age. Virtue aims at high things.

¶ So great a madness had seized their cruel minds, that they did not spare the age, which even enemies would have spared; and carried on a destructive war against their children, and childrens mothers, for whom wars used to be undertaken. So great was the havoc, that the gods seem to have agreed, together with men, for the destruction of the parricides.

The chief of the fathers said, that his speech was worthy of the consular office, worthy of so many consulships, worthy of his whole life, full of honour; that other consuls had, by betraying their dignity, flattered the common people; that he, mindful of the majesty of the fathers, had made a speech suitable to the times.

Polycletus, a man terrible to our own soldiers, is sent into Britain; but he was an object of derision to the enemy, amongst whom the power of freed men was not yet known, and they wondered that an army should obey a slave.

The Christian religion not only commands us to help our friends, but to relieve those that are enemies to us; for so we shall make them our friends, and shall promote love, kindness, peace, and good-will among men; which things please God.

The Parthians were formerly the most obscure among the people of the east. When the empire of Asia was transferred from the Medes to the Persians, they were a prey to the conquerors: finally, they were subject to the Macedonians, that it may seem strange to any one that they are arrived to such a flourishing condition, that they now command those nations to which they formerly were under subjection.

He that resisteth his own evil inclinations, obeyeth God; and deserves greater praise than the general who vanquishes mighty armies, and takes the festino ad littus, fugio in Africa; et pergo ad urbs Carthago. Amicus, ad qui res maxime pertineo, postea reduco; annus jam vergo in senium. Virtus ad arduus tendo.

Tantus rabies invado ferus animus, ut non parco ætas, qui etiam hostis parco; geroque internecivus bellum cum liberi, liberique mater, pro qui bellum soleo suscipio. Tantus strages sum, ut deus videor consentio, pariter cum homo, in exitium parricida.

Primores pater dico, concio is dignus sum imperium consularis, dignus tot consulatus, dignus totus vita, plenus 6 honor; alius consul, per proditio dignitas, adulor plebs; is, memor majestas pater, habeo ratio accommodatus tempus.

Polycletus, vir terribilis nostri miles, misso in Britannia; sed sum irrisus hostis, apud qui potentia libertus nondum cognosco, mirorque quod exercitus obedio servitium.

Christianus religio non modo præcipio ego opitulor amicus, sed succurro is qui sum inimicus ego; sic enim reddo is amicus, et promoveo amor, benignitas, pax, et benevolentia inter homo; qui placeo Deus.

Parthi sum olim obscurus inter populus oriens. Cum imperium Asia transfero a Medus ad Persa, sum præda victor: postremo, servio Macedo, ut videor mirus quivis is proveho ad tantus felicitas, ut nunc impero is gens qui olim servio.

Qui repugno suus malus affectus, obedio Deus; et mereor magnus laus quam dux qui fundo magnus copiz, et expugno mu-strongest cities, but serves his passions, which he cannot govern.

Taken with the sweetness of that power, you suffer any wickedness to lurk under it. Let them say the same things which they bawl out here, in the camp, and amongst the soldiers; and let them corrupt our armies, and not suffer them to obey their commanders, since that is at last the liberty of Rome, not to reverence the senate, the magistrates, or the laws.

The Lacedæmonians, after the manner of mankind, the more they have, the more they desire; for, not content with the accession of the Athenian powers, they begun to affect the empire of all Asia, the greatest part of which was subject to the Persians.

King Eumenes met the Romans with aid, and a little after a battle was fought with Antiochus: a Roman legion was beat in the right wing, and fled to the camp; but M. Æmilius, a tribune of the soldiers, who had been left for the security of it, commands his soldiers to take arms, and threaten the runaways.

Hiero was descended of Hierocles; his very education was ominous of his future grandeur; he had a remarkable handsomeness of person; he was smooth in his address, just in business, moderate in command, that there seemed nothing at all wanting to him suitable for a king, but a kingdom.

And that no misery might be wanting to the most honourable families, he obliges their wives and daughters to marry their slaves, that he might render them more faithful to himself, and more violent against their masters. But such dismal matches were more grievous to the matrons than sudden death.

We were not born for ourselves only; we ought therefore to consult the interest of our friends, to be beneficial to mankind, and serviceable to human society.

Canute, one of the kings of England, piously acknowledged, that none truly deserves the name of King, but he whose eternal laws heaven, earth, and seas obey.

Agamemnon, king of the Argives, commanded the Grecian fleet in the expedition against Troy. But Diana was angry with Agamemnon, because he had killed one of her deers. Wherefore the provoked goddess caused such a calm, that the Grecian ships became fixed and immoveable.

nitus urbs, sed servio cupiditas, qui non possum moderor.

Captus dulcedo is potestas, sino quilibet scelus lateo sub is. Dico idem, qui vociferor hic, in castra, et apud miles; et corumpo exercitus, nec patior is pareo dux, quoniam is demum sum libertas Roma, non revereor senatus, magistratus, aut lex.

Lacedæmonius, de mos genus humanus, quod plus habeo, id plus cupio; nam, non contentus accessio opis Atheniensis, cepi affecto imperium totus Asia, qui magnus pars pareo Persia.

Rex Eumenes occurro Romanus cum auxilium, et paulo post prælum committo cum Antiochus: Romanus legio pello in dexterius cornu, et fugio ad castra; sed M. Æmilius, tribunus miles, qui relinquo ad tutela is, impero miles capio arma, et minor fugiens.

Hiero gigno Hierocles; ipse educatio sum prænuncius futurus majestas; sum is insignis pulchritudo corpus; sum blandus in alloquium, justus in negotium, moderatus in imperium, ut nihil prorsus videor defum is regium, præter regnum.

Et ne quid malum defum honestus domus, compello uxor is filiaque nubo servus suus, ut reddo is fidus fui, et infestus dominus. Sed tam lugubris nuptiæ sum gravis matrona repentinus funus.

Hereupon they consulted the soothsayers, who ordered to sacrifice one of Agamemnon's children, and so satisfy the winds and Diana. Accordingly his daughter Iphigenia is brought; but whilst the young lady stood at the altar, the goddess pitied her, and substituted a hind in her stead. Iphigenia was sent into the Chersonese, where she presided over the sacrifices of Diana.

Is it not better to die by bravery, than by disgrace to lose a miserable and inglorious life, after you have been the sport of other men's insolence? But surely we have the victory in our hands; our age is fresh, our minds are vigorous: On the other hand, all things are decayed to them; there is need only of a beginning. Who of mortals, that has the spirit of a man, can endure that they should have an excess of wealth, and that a private estate is wanting to us even for necessities? In short, what have we left except a miserable life?

RULE VI.

REG. VI.

28. A VERB signifying actively VERBUM active significans regit accusativum.

Love God.

Ama Deum.

Reverence your parents.

Reverere parentes.

NOTE 1. The infinitive or a sentence sometimes supplies the place of the accusative; as, Gell. Penitere tanti non emo; for penitentiam. Ter. Fecit servo libertus ut esset mihi; for feci te libertum.

NOTE 2. NEUTER VERBS have sometimes an accusative: 1. Of their own or the like signification; as, vivere vitam, gaudere gaudium, servire servitutum, ire viam longam, pugnare prælum, garrere nugas, prandere olus, cenare aprum, sive sanguinem, &c. 2. When taken in a metaphorical, or in an active sense; as, Gorydon ardebat Alxuin, crepat sulcus et veneta, saltare Cyclopa, sonat vitium fidelia, olet hircum, spirat deam: Abolere maculam, laborare arma, clamare aliquem, horret mare, sensum pulchre callos, medias fraudes poluit, &c. But some preposition, such as, ad, in, ob, circa, per, is always understood.

NOTE 3. The accusatives hoc, id, quid, aliquid, quicquid, nihil, idem, illud, tantum, quantum, multa, pauca, alia, cetera, omnia, are often governed by propter, ob, or circa, understood; as, Ter. Num id lacrimat virgo? Plaut. Scio quid erres. Hor. Quicquid delirant rages plentur Achivi.

NOTE 4. ADVERBS are often joined to verbs, nouns, and other parts of speech, to express some circumstance, quality, or manner of their signification.

NOTE 5. The poets frequently use the neuter gender of adjectives adverbially, or instead of adverbs; as, Virg. Tororumque repente clamant; for torve. Hor. Mens letatur turbidum; for turbide. Virg. Et pedit terram crebra feris; for crebro. Id. Transversa tuentibus hircis; for transverse.

NOTE 6. The accusative after active verbs, in some figurative expressions, is governed, not by the verb, but by some preposition understood, while the true accusative to the verb is suppressed; thus, ferire, laere, percutere fadus, is put for ferire, &c. porcum ad-fun-tiendum fadus. Plangere funera, damna; for, Plangere pectus ad-funera, ad-damna. Conferere prælum; for, conferere manus ad prælum faciendum.

* 29. Recordor, memini, reminiscor, and obliscor, govern the accusative or genitive.

I remember the battle.
I remember the victory.
I mind the place.
I mind the day.
He remembers the time.
He remembers the night.
We forget reproaches.
We forget hardships.

Recordor, memini, reminiscor, et obliscor, regunt accusativum vel genitivum.

Recordor pugnam.
Recordor victoriæ.
Memini locum.
Memini diem.
Reminiscitur tempus.
Reminiscitur noctis.
Obliscimur contumelias.
Obliscimur laborem.

NOTE 1. Memini, when it signifies to make mention of, takes the genitive or the ablative with de, but never the accusative; as, Cæf. Cujus supra meminimus. Quint. De quibus multi meminerunt.

NOTE 2. The verbs belonging to this rule are generally esteemed neuter, and when they take the accusative, ad, or quod ad, is understood; when they take the genitive, quod ad negotium, or in negotio, is suppressed.

NOTE 3. The phrase, Venit mihi in mentem, seems someway allied to this rule, and admits of three varieties, viz. Venit mihi in mentem hæc res, hujus rei, de hac re: To the last two may be understood memoria, or recordatio; as, Cic. Si quid in mentem venit. Id. Mihi solet venire in mentem illius temporis, quo fuimus una. Plaut. In mentem venit de speculo.

28. I love virtue, thou seekst praise, he despises pleasure, we practise charity, ye fear God, they honour the king.

The boy deserves praise, the slave shall suffer punishment, the man defames his wife, care attends money, pride accompanies honours.

God wisely governs the world, riches sometimes procure envy, birds do not every where build their nests, the dogs nimbly pursue the hare.

Discord always produces strife, strife generally begets hatred, quarrels often break up friendship, honours commonly change manners.

29. A good man easily forgets injuries, but always remembers a good turn: a wicked man sees the faults of others, and forgets his own, but at length with sorrow shall he remember his villanies.

Cæsar settled the differences among the Æduans, and having exhorted them to forget their disputes and quarrels, he returned to the camp. They remembered his advice, and complied with his admonitions.

¶ In the mean time the Roman people received a terrible stroke from the Apo virtue, quero laus, contemno voluptas, colo caritas, timeo Deus, honoro rex.

Puer mereor laus, servus patior pœna, vir criminor uxor, cura sequor pecunia, superbia comitor honor.

Deus sapienter gubernat mundus, divitiæ interdum contrahunt invidia, avis non ubivis struat nidos, canis strenue sectatur leporem.

Discordia semper parit lites, lites plerumque generant odium, jurgium sæpe dissolvit amicitia, honor vulgo muto mos.

Bonus vir facile obliviscitur injuria, sed semper reminiscitur beneficium; improbus cernit vitium alius et obliviscitur suum, sed tandem cum dolor recordatur flagitium suum.

Cæsar componit lites inter Æduos, et cohortatur ut obliviscantur controversia ac dissentio, redeo ad castra. Ille memini consilium, et parco monitum.

Interim Romanus populus accipio gravis vulnus a Parthis: nec

Parthians: nor can we complain; for after Crassus had pitched his camp at Nicephorium, deputies sent by king Orodus advised him to remember the treaties made with Pompey and Sylla. But the consul was gaping after the Parthian gold.

Let not the glare of gold and silver dismay you, which neither protects nor wounds. In the very host of the enemy we shall find our troops, the Britons will espouse their own cause, the Gauls will reflect on their former liberty, and the Germans will abandon the Romans.

Antiochus, though he approved of Annibal's advice, yet would not act according to his counsel, lest the glory of the victory should be Annibal's, and not his own. He was conquered therefore, and remembered Annibal's counsel when it was too late.

Remember the counsel which I gave, it will profit thee very much if thou dost not forget it: obey the laws of Almighty God, obey the king and all other subordinate magistrates, in all things that are lawful; resist the beginnings of anger, and yield not to the allurements of pleasure.

Such was the greatness of Alexander's soul, that though he left a son who was called Hercules, a brother who was named Aridæus, and his wife Roxane with child, he forgot his relations, and named the most worthy his heir, just as if it was unlawful for any other than a brave man to succeed a brave man.

Difficulties stupify the sluggard, and terrify the fearful, but animate the courageous.

A faithful friend is the medicine of life, and they that fear the Lord shall find him.

That man is of a happy memory, who forgets injuries, and remembers those things that are worthy of his character.

Egeon, called also Briareus, was one of the giants: Virgil says that he had 50 heads and 100 hands. He tore up solid rocks from the foundation, and hurled them against Jupiter; yet Jupiter overcame him, and thrust him under Mount Ætna; where, as often as he moves his side, the mountain casts forth streams of liquid fire.

The poets mention a river in hell called Lethe, of the water of which, if any one drinks, he immediately forgets all things past; so that the soul of the pious, when they drink of the water of this river, straightway forget the miseries which they suffered in this world.

possum queror; nam postquam Crassus pono castra apud Nicephorium, legatus missus a rex Orodus denuncio ut memini fœdus percussus cum Pompeius et Sylla. Sed consul inhio Parthicus aurum.

Ne fulgor aurum atque argentum terreo tu, qui neque tego neque vulnero. In ipse acies hostis invenio noster manus, Britanni agnosco suus causa, Galli recordor prior 4 libertas, et Germani desero Romanus.

Antiochus, tametsi probò consilium Annibal, tamen nolo ago ex sententiâ ille, ne gloria victoria sum Annibal, et non suus. Vinco igitur, et memini consilium Annibal cum sum fero.

Memini 4 consilium qui do, profum tu plurimum si 4 is non obliviscor: obedio lex omnipotens Deus, obedio rex et omnis alius inferior magistratus, in omnis qui sum licitus; repugno principium ira, et ne cedo blanditiæ voluptas.

Tantus sum magnitudo animus Alexander, ut quamvis relinquo filius qui appello Hercules, frater qui nomino Aridæus, et uxor Roxane prægnans, obliviscor necessitudo, et nuncupo dignus hæres, prorsus quasi nefas sunt alius quam vir fortis succedo vir fortis.

RULE VII.

* 30. VERBS of plenty and scarcity; also, utor, abutor, fruo, fungor, potior, vescor, and some others, generally govern the ablative.

He abounds in riches.
He is free from every fault.
He uses deceit.
He abuses books.
We depend on hope.
You take pleasure in poems.
The boy is sick of a fever.

REG. VII.

VERBA copiae et inopiae; item, utor, abutor, fruo, fungor, potior, vescor, et quaedam alia, plerumque ablativum regunt.

Abundat divitiis.
Caret omni culpa.
Utitur fraude.
Abutitur libris.
Nitimur spe.
Gaudes carminibus.
Puer febri laborat.

To this rule belong,

1. Verbs of PLENTY; as, "abundo, exubero, redundo, scateo, affluo, circumfluo, diffluo, superfluo."
2. Verbs of SCARCITY; as, "careo, egeo, indigeo, vaco," to want; to which add, "deficio, destitutor."
3. "Utor, abutor, fruor, fungor, potior, vescor."
4. "Nitor, innitor, epulor, nascor, creor, glorior, lator, lector, gaudeo, vivo, victito, fido, confido, exulto, sto, consto, confisto, cedo, supersedeo, laboro."

NOTE 1. Egeo and indigeo frequently take the genitive; as, Cæf. Egere auxilii. Cor. Opis indiget. Also among the more ancient writers, scateo and careo; as, Lucr. Terra scatet ferarum. Plant. Tui arcendum erat. Sometimes careo and egeo take the accusative; as, Plant. Id careo. Gell. Multa egeo.

NOTE 2. Potior sometimes governs the genitive; as, Sall. Potiri urbis, to make himself master of the city. Id. Potiri hostium, to get his enemies into his power. Cic. Potiri rerum, to have the chief command.

NOTE 3. Potior, fungor, vescor, and epulor, sometimes take the accusative; as, Cic. Geni urbem nostram positura. Tac. Ut munera fingerentur. Plin. Si caprinum jecur vescantur. Id. Pullus epulari. As also, among the more ancient writers, utor, abutor, and fruo; as, Plaut. Uteris, ut voles, operam meam. Ter. Operam abutitur. Id. Ingenium frui.

NOTE 4. The ablative is not governed by these verbs, but by some preposition understood; such as, a, ab, de, ex, in. And when any of these verbs take the genitive, some ablative, such as, re, negotio, causa, presentia, ope, copia, imperio, or the like, with a preposition, is understood.

NOTE 5. With some of these verbs the preposition is frequently expressed; as, Liv. Ne a metu vacarent. Cic. Cum consensum ex animo et corpore. Id. Cum graviter ex intestinis laborarem. Id. Cujus in vita utebatur salus civitatis. Id. In virtute recte gloriamur.

NOTE 6. The verbs fido, confido, innitor, cedo, vaco, instead of the ablative, take frequently the dative, as was taught No. 27.

1. Many men abound in gold and silver, whose houses are full of wickedness.

Some men flow in wealth, nay, overflow in money, and yet desire those things most with which they abound.

Neglected fens use to swarm with vermin, and neglected fields with noxious weeds; but yet this garden abounds in apples.

This man pleads the cause with great vigour; he is all bedewed with sweat; he is over copious in his language; his discourse however abounds with all manner of ornaments.

2. Nature needs few things; he however that wants friends, and he that is weak in judgment, or is disappointed of his expectations, stands in need of advice; but to be free from a fault is a great comfort.

3. We ought to use diligence, and not to abuse time; the life which we enjoy is short, let us therefore do our duty carefully; thus at length we shall obtain the golden fleece, we shall feed on milk and honey.

4. Men ought to depend on virtue rather than blood; for if any one persist in this practice, and take pleasure in equity, he deserves praise. But fools often labour under this distemper, that they glory in their faults, rejoice at other mens misfortunes, are delighted with vain hope, and exult on success.

The rich feast on dainty dishes, but the poor live on barley bread, nay, some live on husks. Let us lay aside prolixity of words, for many poor people, descended of honourable parents, have retired from the city, on account of the dearth of corn.

Some men trust to strength of body, and the stability of fortune, as stags trust to their running; brave men, say they, descend from brave men, and a pretty girl cannot be born of a disgraceful mother.

This field consists of vineyards and woods; I might retain it, but I will stand by my bargain and my promise; thus good men will praise me, the poor will bless me.

In Thessaly, Caesar's army enjoyed very good health, and very great Multus homo abundo aurum atque argentum, qui domus scelus affluo.

Quidam homo circumfluo opis, imo, superfluo pecunia, et tamen desidero is maxime qui abundo.

Neglectus ulcer soleo scateo vermis, et neglectus ager noxius herba; sed tamen hic hortus exubero pomum.

Hic vir ago causa strenue; diffuso sudor; redundo eloqui um; oratio tamen abundo omnis ornamentum.

Natura egeo pauci; qui autem careo amicis, et qui deficior ratio, aut destitutor spes, indigeo consilium; sed vaco culpa magnus sum solatium.

Debeo utor diligentia, et non abutor tempus; vita qui fruor sum brevis, fungor igitur officium sedulo; sic tandem potior aureus vellus, velcor lac et mel.

Homo debeo nitor virtus potius quam sanguis; nam si quis innitor hic ars, et gaudeo aequitas, mereor laus. Sed stultus saepe is morbus laboro, ut glorior vitium suus, laetor alienus malum, delector vanus spes, et exulto successus.

Dives epulor opimus dapes, sed pauper victito hordeaceus panis, imo, quidam vivo filiqua. Superfedeo multitudo verbum, nam multus pauper, prognatus honestus parens, cedo urbs, propter caritas annona.

Quidem homo confido firmitas corpus, et stabilitas fortuna, ut cervus fido cursus; fortis, inquam, creor fortis, et formosus puella non possum nascor mater pudendus.

Hic ager consto vinca et sylva; possum retineo, sed sto pactum et promissum; sic bonus ego laudo, pauper ego benedico.

In Thessalia, Caesar exercitus utor bonus valetudo, summusque co-plenty of water, and abounded in every kind of provision, except corn.

Great armies need great generals. Though Cæsar's soldiers had long wanted corn, and had endured the most pinching famine, yet no word was heard from them unworthy of the majesty of the Roman people, or of their former victories.

He seems to me to live, and enjoy life, who, intent on business, pursues the glory of some famous action or useful art. But in the great multitude of affairs, nature has pointed out different ways. It is a glorious thing to act well for the public, and it is no despicable thing to speak well.

The victory was the Thebans; but Epaminondas, whilst he performed the office, not only of a general, but also of a very gallant soldier, was grievously wounded. It is uncertain whether he was a better man or general; he was frugal of the public money; he was more greedy of glory than of riches.

After this, Vitellius obtained the government, a man of an honoured rather than noble family; he, as he had a mind to be like Nero, was slain by Vespasian's generals, and, being thrown into the Tiber, wanted common burial.

The Scythians have not any house, or dwelling, or habitation; they carry their wives and children along with them in waggons, which they use instead of houses; they live on milk and venison; the use of wool is quite unknown to them.

Do you think that this most beautiful city consists of houses, roofs, and a pile of stones? These dumb and lifeless things may perish, and be repaired: the eternity of the state, and the peace of nations, depend upon the safety of the senate.

The land of Canaan, into which Moses conducted the Israelites, not only flowed with milk and honey, but with wine also; as appears from the large bunch of grapes which the spies brought to Moses. It abounded also in springs of water.

The poor man wants some things, the luxurious man many, and the covetous man wants all things.

When Babel was a building, they made use of burnt bricks instead of stone, and slime instead of mortar. Strabo affirms the tower to have been 660 feet high. It consisted of eight square towers, one above another, which gradually decreased in breadth. This, with the winding of the stairs from top to bottom on the outside, rendered it in some sort like a pyramid.

pia aqua, abundoque omnis genus comminatus, præter fumentum.

Magnus exercitus egeo magnus dux. Quamvis Cæsar miles diuturno frumentum, et sustento extremus fames, tamen nullus vox audio ab is indignus majestas populus Romanus, aut superior victoria.

Is videor ego vivo, et fruor anima, qui, intentus negotium, quæro gloria aliquis præclarus facinus aut bonus ars. Sed in magnus copia res, natura ostendo diversuiter. Sum pulcher benefactor republica, et non sum absurdus benedico.

Victoria sum Thebanus; sed Epaminondas, dum fungor officium, non tantum dux, verum etiam fortis miles, gravior vulnero. Sum incertus summe vir bonus an dux; sum parvus publicus pecunia; sum cupidus gloria quam divitiis.

Dein, Vitellius potior imperium, vir honoratus magis quam nobilis 6 familia; hic, cum volo sum similis Nero, occido a Vespasiano dux, et, dejectus in Tiberis, carco communis sepultura.

Scythia non sum ullus domus, aut tectum, aut sedes; veho uxor liberique suicum in plastrum, qui utor pro domus; vestor lae et ferina; usus lana sum prorsus ignotus is.

Tu credo hic pulcher urbs sto domus, tectum, et congestus lapis? Iste mutus et inanimus possum intercido, ac reparo: æternitas res, et pax gens, incolumitas senatus nitor.

Active VERBS governing another case together with the accusative.

* 31. VERBS of accusing, condemning, acquitting, and admonishing, with the accusative of the person, govern also the genitive of the crime or thing.

He accuses me of theft.

I condemn myself of laziness.

They acquit him of manslaughter.

We put the grammarians in mind of their duty.

VERBA Activa alium macum accusativo casum regentia.

1. VERBA accusandi, damnandi, absolvendi, et admonendi, cum accusativo personæ, regunt etiam genitivum criminis aut rei.

Arguit me furti.

Meipsum inertie condemno.

Illum homicidii absolvunt.

Grammaticos officii sui commoneamus.

1. Verbs of ACCUSING are, "accuso, ago, appello, arcesso, anquiro, arguo, incuso, infimulo, interrogo, postulo, aligo, astringo, defero, compello."
2. Verbs of CONDEMNING are, "damno, condemnno, infamo, noto."
3. Verbs of ACQUITTING are, "absolvo, libero, purgo."
4. Verbs of ADMONISHING are, "moneo, admonéo, commoneo, commonefacio."

NOTE 1. Verbs of ACCUSING, CONDEMNING, and ACQUITTING, instead of the genitive, take frequently the ablative, and that either with or without the preposition de; as, Cic. Accusare me de epistolarum negligentia. Id. De repetundis eum postulavit. Id. De pravariatione eum absolvere. Id. Eum de vi condemnavit. Id. Suis eum criminibus accusabo. Id. Metuit ne scelere se alliget. Liv. Consulem suspitione absolvere. Cic. Librarios culpa libero. Tac. Adolescens crimine purgavit. Virg. Damnabis tu quoque volis. Cic. Condemnabo te eodem crimine. Eut. Plurimos capite damnavit.

NOTE 2. Accuso, incuso, infimulo, sometimes take two accusatives; as, Plaut. Si id me non accusas. Ter. Quæ me incusaveras. Plaut. Sic me infimulare falsum facinus.

NOTE 3. Verbs of ADMONISHING, instead of the genitive, take sometimes the ablative with de; as, Cic. Ut Terentium moneatis de testamento. Id. De quo vos paulo ante admonui. Id. Te de indulgentia patria commonebat. And sometimes they govern two accusatives; as, Cic. Eos hos moneo. Ter. Id unum te moneo. Id. Istuc me admonere.

NOTE 4. The genitive, strictly speaking, is not governed by the verbs mentioned in this rule, but by some ablative understood; such as, crimine, scelere, peccato, culpa, pena, actione, multa, nomine, re, causa, ergo, &c.; as, Accuso te furti, i. e. crimine furti. And these, or any other ablative, is always governed by de or in expressed or understood. When verbs of admonishing take two accusatives, circa, or quod ad, may be understood to the accusative of the thing.

1. He that accuses another of a crime, ought to look well to himself; for it is the property of a fool to accuse another of a fault, of which he himself is guilty.

Qui incuso alter probum, debeo intueor sui ipse; nam sum stultus accuso alter peccatum, qui ipse sum conscius

The soldiers were in a rage, and began to charge the tribunes with treason and treachery, and to accuse the centurions of avarice.

The deputies have accused this man of extortion; he cannot govern his tongue, he will make himself guilty of theft or bribery.

2. Forbear to charge your friend with villany, or reproach him with arrogance. he condemns himself of rashness, he condemns himself of foolishness.

3. The senate neither freed the man of the fault, nor accused him; but after he had cleared himself of all the things that were alleged, the judges acquitted him of the trespass.

4. Our infirmity often reminds us of mortality, sickness warns us of death, adversity ought to admonish us of our duty, and put us in mind of religion.

¶ Julius Cæsar was a very spare drinker of wine, and so easy as to his diet, that he is said once to have made use of old oil, served up instead of fresh, that he might not seem to accuse his landlord of carelessness or clownish ignorance.

Not long after, Cæpio and Hispo accused Marcellus, prætor of Bithynia, of high treason. The calamities of the times and the insolence of men rendered Hispo and his way of life afterwards famous: at first he was needy and obscure, but turbulent; he made his court to the cruelty of the prince. There remained even then some traces of expiring liberty.

Capito objected, that Thrasea, though invested with the priesthood, had never made oblations for the safety of the prince, and that he had not attended the funeral of Poppea. Capito was an enemy to Thrasea, because he had supported the deputies of the Cilicians, when they accused him of extortion.

A certain informer long ago accused this honest man of a wicked action; the judges however did not find him guilty of the villany, but absolved him from the charge. The cursed rogue was cast into prison, where he leads a life worse than death. He often blames the times for the mishap, of which he himself is the cause.

Miles fremo, et cœpi argueo tribunus majestas ac proditio, et infimulo centurio avaritia.

Legatus postulo hic homo repetundæ; ipse non possum moderor lingua, alligo sui furtum aut ambitus.

Parco damno amicus tuus scelus, aut infamo is arrogantia; condemno sui ipse temeritas, condemno sui ipse amentia.

Senatus nec libero homo culpa, neque arguo; sed postquam purgo sui omnis qui assero, judex absolvo is injuria.

Imbecillitas noster sæpe admonet ego mortalitas, morbus moneo ego mors, res adversus debeo commonefacio ego officium noster, et commoneo ego religio.

Julius Cæsar sum parvus vinum, et adeo indifferens circa victus, ut dico quondam appeto conditus oleum, appositus pro viridis, ne videor arguo hospes negligentia aut rusticitas.

Nec multo post, Cæpio et Hispo postulo Marcellus, prætor Bithynia, majestas. Misericordia tempus et audacia homo facio Hispo et forma vita postea celebris: primo sum egens et ignotus, at iniques; adrepro sævitia princeps. Manco etiam tum quidam vestigium moriens libertas.

Capito objecto, Thrasea, quamvis præditus sacerdotium, nunquam immolo pro salus princeps, et non intersum funus Poppea. Capito sum inimicus Thrasea, quod juvo legatus Cilix, dum interrogo is repetundæ.

Delator quidam olim accuso hic probus vir facinus; judex tamen non condemno is scelus, sed absolvo is crimen. Sceleratus homo conjicio in carcer, ubi vita gravis mors exigo. Sæpe damno tempus infelicitas, qui ipse sum causa.

On the other side, the consul bade the Romans remember their former bravery; he put them in mind of the Aventine and Sacred mount, that they should fight for their liberty, which they had lately recovered.

When the army of the thirty tyrants, of which the greatest part were Athenians, fled, Thrasylbulus called out, and put them in mind of their relations, their laws, and their old fellowship during so many wars, and begged that they would pity their banished countrymen.

Alexander, in his passage, put the Thessalians in mind of the kindnesses of his father Philip, and his mother's alliance with them by the family of the Æacidae. The Thessalians heard these things gladly, and made him captain-general of the whole nation.

Midas requested of Bacchus, that whatever he touched might become gold: Bacchus consented. Whatever, therefore, Midas touched, instantly became gold; nay, when he touched his meat or drink, they also became gold. Midas, now sensible of his mistake, accused himself of folly, and desired Bacchus to remove this pernicious gift. Bacchus complied; and bade him bathe in the river Pactolus. Midas did so; and hence the sand of that river became gold.

Sesostris, king of Egypt, had his chariot drawn by four captive kings, whom he had not condemned to die. But as one of them continually fixed his eye upon the chariot-wheel, Sesostris asked him what he meant? The captive king replied, The turning of the wheel puts me in mind of our fortune: for that part which is now highest presently becomes lowest; and that which is lowest becomes highest.

* 32. Verbs of valuing, with the accusative, govern such genitives as these, magni, parvi, nihili, &c.

I value you much.

You little regard me.

Verbs of VALUING are, “æstimo, existimo, duco, facio, habeo, pendo, puto, taxo;” to these ad sum and fio, which likewise govern the genitive of value, but do not take the accusative.

The rest of these genitives are, “tanti, quanti, pluris, minoris, maximi, minimi, plurimi;” also, “allis, nauci, flocci, piluli, teruncii, hujus, penſi.”

NOTE 1. To this rule may be referred these phrases, æqui bonique facio; or æqui boni facio; and bont consulo.

NOTE 2. The verb æstimo, instead of the genitive, takes sometimes these ablatives, magno, permagno, parvo, nihilo, nonnibilo; as, Senec. Data magno

Ex alter pars, consul jubet Romanus meminisse pristina virtus; admoneo is Aventinus et Sacer mons, ut pugno pro libertas, qui nuper recuperō.

Cum exercitus triginta tyrannus, qui pars magnus sum Atheniensis, fugio, Thrasylbulus exclamo, et admoneo is cognatio, lex, et vetustus commilitum per tot bellum, et oro ut misereor exul civis.

Alexander, in transitu, admoneo Thessalus beneficium pater Philippus, et maternus necessitudo cum hic ab gens Æacides. Thessalus audio hic cupide, et creō is dux universus gens.

2. Verba æstimandi, cum accusativo, regunt hujusmodi genitivos, magni, parvi, nihili, &c.

Æstimo te magni.

Tu me parvi pendis.

astimas, accepta parvo. Cic. Quia sit nonnibilo astimandum. Id. Tu ista permagno astimas.

NOTE 3. The substantive understood to the adjectives magni, parvi, &c. is pretii, aris, ponderis, momenti, or the like; and the construction may be thus supplied: Astimo te magni, i. e. astimo te esse hominem magni pretii. Astimat pecuniam parvi, i. e. astimat pecuniam esse rem parvi momenti; or thus, astima te pro homine magni pretii, astimat pecuniam pro te parvi momenti. In like manner, Istbuc equi bonique facio, i. e. facio istbuc rem equi bonique hominis vel negotii. And some way similar to this is that of Nep. Que ille unversa naturali quodam bono fecit lucri, i. e. fecit rem lucri.

Epicurus valued pleasure at a great rate; but a wise man values pleasure at a very low rate.

Brave men little regard big words, and they value threats as nothing.

I do not value those men a farthing, I do not value the augur a rush, I value you more than them all.

That fellow did not value me one penny, he went off, nor did he value a pin what I said.

Cassius likewise plighted his own faith, which Jugurtha valued no less than that of the public.

Most men value money very much, and gold is valued a great deal every where.

Every evil is as great as we rate it: a wise man, however, values reputation more than life itself.

There is nobody in all this house who regards what he either says or does before the child.

War makes many bishops, who in peace were not valued so much as a farthing or a pin.

It is not the part of a wise man to say, I will live well to-morrow. Virtue is the most precious of all things. It is therefore the part of a fool to despise that which all men ought to value more than riches or pleasure.

A wise man values pleasure very little, because it is the bane of the mind, and the cause of all wickedness and misery; but he values no possession more than virtue, because it is an ornament in prosperity, a comfort in adversity, and the fountain of all public and private happiness.

Thebes, both before Epaminondas was born, and after his death, was always subject to a foreign power; on the other Epicurus voluptas magnum astimo; sed sapiens voluptas minimum facio.

Vir fortis jactans verbum parvum pendendo, et minz nihilum facio.

Non is teruncius facio, non nauci augur habeo, tu plus quam omnis ille puto.

Iste homo non unus as ego astimo, abeo, neque qui dico floccus existimo.

Cassius quoque fides suus interpono, qui Jugurtha non minus quam publicus ducio.

Plerique homo pecunia maximum facio, et passim plurimum fio aurum.

Unusquisque malum sum tantum quantum ille taxo: sapiens, tamen, astimo fama plus quam vita ipse.

Nemo sum in hic totus domus qui pensum habeo quis coram infans aut dico aut facio.

Bellum gigno multus episcopus, qui in pax nequidem teruncius aut pilus fio.

Non sum sapiens dico, vivo bene cras. Virtus sum preciosus omnis res. Sum itaque stultus sperno is qui omnis debeo astimo plus quam divitiarum aut voluptas.

Sapiens facio voluptas minimum, quia sum pestis animus, et origo omnis scelus et miseria; sed astimo nullus possessio plus quam virtus, quia sum ornamentum in res secundus, solatium in adversus, et fons omnis publicus et privatus felicitas.

Thebes, et ante Epaminondas natus, et post is interitus, perpetuo pareo alienus imperium; con-hand, as long as he governed the commonwealth, it was the head of all Greece. From which it may be understood, that one man was more worth than the whole city, and that an army is just as much worth as the general is.

A boar had made the fountain muddy, out of which a horse of a proud spirit used to drink. The horse, full of wrath, entreated a man that he would assist him against the boar. The man leaped upon the back of the horse, and slew the boar. The horse was glad; nothing was more joyful than the foolish horse. The man then spoke to the horse thus: I value you more than the boar which I have slain; a horse is the most useful of all quadrupeds; hitherto you have been free from labour, you shall not return to your former way of life. The horse now sadly accused himself of great madness: Pride, says he, hath pushed me on to revenge; my foolish pride is now a grief to my heart; I wish I had forgotten the small injury done by the boar; I am no more my own master.

tra is, quamdiu ille præsens respublica, sum caput totius Græcia. Ex qui possum intelligo, unna homo sum plus quam totus civitas, et exercitus sum tantum quantum imperator.

33. VERBS of comparing, giving, declaring, and taking away, govern the dative with the accusative.

I compare Virgil to Homer.

Give every man his own.

You tell a story to a deaf man.

He rescued me from death.

Give not up your mind to pleasure.

3. VERBA comparandi, dandi, narrandi, et auferendi, regunt dativum cum accusativo.

Comparo Virgilium Homero.

Suum cuique tribuito.

Narras fabulam surdo.

Eripuit me morti.

Ne addideas animum voluptati.

1. Verbs of COMPARING are, "comparo, compono, confero, æquo, æquiparo;" also, "antepono, antefero, præpono, præfero;" and, "postpono, posthabeo, postfero," &c.

2. Verbs of GIVING are, "do, tribuo, largior, præbeo, ministro, suggero, suppedito." To which ad verbs of RESTORING; as, "reddo, restituo, retribuio, rependo, remetio;" or;" of ACQUIRING, as, "quæro, acquiro, paro, pario;" of PROMISING, as, "promitto, polliceor, recipior, spondeo;" also, "debeo, solvo, assero, vindico, mitto, relinquo," and innumerable others.

3. Verbs of DECLARING are, "narro, dico, memoro, loquor, nuncio, refero, declaro, aperio, expono, explico, figo, nifico, indico, monstro, ostendo," &c. To which add verbs of DENYING; as, "nego, inficio;" and CONFESSING; as, "fateor, confiteor," &c.

4. Verbs of TAKING AWAY are, "aufero, adimo, eripio, eximo, demo, surripio, detraho, excutio, extorqueo," &c.

6. To these may be added a great many active verbs, compounded with the prepositions ad, in, ob, præ, sub, and innumerable other verbs that cannot be reduced to distinct classes. In short, any active verb may govern the dative with the accusative, when, together with the thing done, is also signified the person or thing to or for whom or which it is done.

NOTE 1. Comparo, confero, compono, instead of the dative, take frequently the ablative with cum; as, Cic. Ut hominem cum homine comparetis. Sall. Dicitur cum facili componere. Cic. Conferre hanc pacem cum illo bello.

NOTE 2. Verbs of TAKING AWAY, instead of the dative, have often the ablative with a, ab, de, e, or ex; as, Ter. Auferre ab aliquo triginta minas. Cic. Eripite nos ex miseriis. Plaut. De magnis divitiis si quid demas, &c. The preposition is sometimes suppressed; as, Vagina eripit ensen.

NOTE 3. The accusative is sometimes suppressed; as, Supplicare alicui, sc. genus. Nubere alicui, sc. se vel vultum. Imponere alicui, sc. sarcinam vel ridiculi quiddam. Detrahens alicui, sc. laudem. Ignoscere alicui, sc. culpam, &c.

NOTE 4. These verbs, hortor, invito, voco, provoco, animo, stimulo, consermo, lasso, insigo, incito, suscito, allino, pellicio, and the like, instead of the dative, take the accusative, with the preposition ad, or sometimes in.

1. The covetous man compares great things with small, and disregards every thing in comparison of money. Old men compare themselves with old men, and prefer retirement to business; but boys generally postpone serious matters to diversion.

Fools compare themselves with great men, and prefer pleasure to virtue; but wise men put themselves on a level with their inferiors, and prefer friendship to money; they less value wealth than liberty, and prefer death to slavery.

2. God hath given an erect countenance to man, bestowed on him many endowments of mind, and granted him the earth for an habitation, which yields grass for cattle, affords flowers for bees, finds food for man, and furnishes fuel for fire.

If this tyrant will not restore liberty to the citizens, return things to their owners, refund the money to the people, or repay to every one his own, the people ought to seek for themselves another governor, and procure an enemy to their foe.

This covetous fellow lays up riches for others, but he will not gain praise to himself: he hath lately betrothed his daughter to a gentleman, to whom he has promised a large portion; but he will not perform what he has promised to him; for he designs to leave a very great estate to his son.

The gentleman who used to send letters and presents to you, begins now to claim and assume high titles to himself; you owe him a great sum, and it is not Avarus compono magnus parvus, et postpono omnis numerus. Senex comparo fui senex, et antefero otium negotium; at puer fere posthabeo serius ludus.

Stultus confero fui magnus, et praepono voluptas virtus; sed sapiens æquo fui inferior, et praefero amicitia pecunia; postfero opis libertas, et antepono mors servitus.

Deus do sublimis os homo, tribuo is multus dos animus, et largior is terra in domicilium, qui suggero gramen pecus, ministro flos apis, suppedito alimentum homo, et praebeo materia ignis.

Si hic tyrannus nolo reddo libertas civis, restituo res dominus suus, retribuo pecunia populus, aut rependo quisque suus, populus debeo quero alius praefectus fui, atque acquiro hostis inimicus suus.

Hic avarus paro divitiæ alius, sed non pario laus sui: nuper spondeo filia vir, qui polliceor amplius dos; sed non praesto qui promitto is; nam statuo relinquo permagnus hereditas filius.

Vir qui soleo mittolitera et munus tu, nunc incipio assero et vindico magnus titulus fui; debeo ille grandis pecunia, et non sum tuus your part to pay him bad money instead of good; you owe your life to him.

3. This man brings good news to us; he has told the whole affair to his master, and has assigned me the reason why he did so. I give credit to his words, for he does not use to tell a falsehood to any one, but speaks the truth to all; in this affair he has behaved well, I will return him the favour.

It is the part of a fool to discover his sentiments to every one, to unfold his thoughts to mockers, to expose his mistakes to enemies, or to open his ears to flatterers; but we may discover any thing to a true friend, or signify our mind to him by a letter.

It is the part of a good man to show the way to him that wanders, and point out to him his road. It is also the part of a good man to confess his sins to God, and own his mistakes to men. But he does wickedly, who denies aid to his country, or refuses a legacy to the man to whom the testator hath left it.

4. Pain takes away the enjoyment of pleasure from men, and often removes sleep from their eyes. Wine removes the load from an anxious spirit, and takes off the gloom from the brows. But it is the property of philosophy to remove error from the mind.

Fortune often snatches away wealth from the rich, but she cannot filch away honesty or probity from the virtuous. It is not easy, however, to extort money from a covetous man; you will sooner wrest the club from Hercules. But you may easily strike fire from a flint.

5. A wise man suits himself to nature, and adds virtue to virtue; but a fool gives up his mind to intemperance, and brings misery on his country; sometimes he turns robber, and puts a sword to the throat of his countrymen, he joins wicked fellows as comrades to him; and adds strength to the mischief.

A brave man easily pardons others many things, himself nothing; he proclaims war against his lusts, but never desires to make war upon his country, or engage himself in civil broils; he rather chooses to fasten his darts in the backs of enemies, solvo is adulterinus nummus pro bonus; debeo vita ille.

Hic homo nuncio res letus ego; narro omnis res dominus, et memoro ego causa quare ita facio. Tribuo fides verbum, non enim soleo dico falsus quivis, sed loquor verum omnis; hic in res ago bene, retero is gratia.

Sum stultus declaro sententia suus quivis, explico cogitatio suus irrisor, expono error suus inimicus, aut aperio auris assentator; at possum, indico quivis res verus amicus, aut significo mens is per litera.

Sum bonus vir monstro vias errans, et ostendo is iter. Sum etiam bonus vir confiteor peccatum Deus, et fateor error homo. At improbe facio, qui nego opis patria, aut inficio legatum homo qui legator relinquo.

Dolor aufero fructus voluptas homo, et saepe adimo somnus oculus. Vinum eximo onus sollicitus animus, et demo nubes supercilium. Sed sum proprius philosophia detraho error mens.

Fortuna saepe eripio opis dives, at non possum surripio honestas aut probitas bonus. Haud facilis, tamen, sum extorqueo pecunia avarus; cito extorqueo clava Hercules. Sed possum facile excutio ignis flix.

Sapiens accommodo sui natura, et addo virtus virtus; at stultus addico animus intemperantia, et adfero calamitas patria; interdum fio latro, et admoveo gladius jugulum civis, adjungo pravus homo socius sui, et adjioco vires malum.

Fortis vir facile ignosco alius multus, sui nihil; indico bellum cupiditas suus, sed nunquam cupio infero bellum patria, aut infero sui civilis dissensio; malo infigo telum ter-to strike a terror into them, or to inflict punishment on criminals.

We ought to oppose a stout heart to hard fortune; but we ought not to throw ourselves in among the darts of the enemy, and expose our life to danger without cause, especially now when night begins to spread darkness over the earth.

The bees prepare meat for the winter; and a king ought to imitate them, and provide those things that are necessary for war or a siege; he ought to set a general and lieutenants over his forces, and prescribe to every one his duty, that he may be able to prevent access to the enemy.

The king being frightened, puts spurs to his horse, and withdraws himself from the battle; his army was routed and put to flight; the cities and towns soon after began to submit themselves to the conqueror, to put their neck under his yoke, and subject themselves to his government.

Gold and poverty have often persuaded men to bad things; but I give thanks to God, that my brother has done you no wrong: I give credit to the words of the messenger more than to yours; I will not shut my ears to the truth.

God, who has threatened most dreadful punishment to the wicked, commands us to set bounds to our desires, and give a check to lust; let us, therefore, lend a patient ear to his admonitions; let us not devote ourselves to pleasure, nor give up ourselves to sloth or idleness.

NOTE 4. The general conformed himself to the inclination of the prince, and called the rogues before him; they had provoked us to anger, had challenged us to a combat, had spirited up others to the same crime, and spurred them on to arms. The next day, however, the general invited them all to a feast, and exhorted them to peace.

The love of praise rouses men to their duty, disposes their minds to industry, and incites them to glorious actions. But the love of money prompts men to villanous practices, allures them to wickedness, and entices maids to dishonesty.

¶ When Eumenes understood these things, he called his soldiers together, and first he gives them thanks, that none was found who preferred the hopes of a gum hostis, incutio terror ille, aut irrogo poena peccans.

Debeo oppono fortis pectus adversus res; sed non debeo objicio ego telum hostis, et offero caput periculum sine causa, praesertim nunc cum nox incipio offundo caligo terra.

Apis praepero cibum hiems; et rex debeo immorari, et paro is qui sum necessarius bellum aut obfidio; debeo praeficio dux et legatus copiae, et praescribo unusquisque munia suus, ut possum praeludo aditus hostis.

Rex territus, subdo calcar equus, et subtraho sui pugna; exercitus is fundo fugoque; urbs et oppidum mox cepti submitto sui victor, suppono collum jugum, et subicio sui imperium is.

Aurum et paupertas saepe suadeo Malum homo; sed ago gratia Deum, quod frater meus facio tu nullus injuria: habeo fides verbum nuncius magis quam tuus; nolo claudio auris veritas.

Deus, qui minor gravis supplicium impius, jubeo ego statuo modus cupido noster, et injicio fraterum libido; commodo, igitur, patiens auris monitum is; ne dedo ego voluptas, neque trado egomet secordia aut ignavia.

Dux conformo sui ad voluntas rex, et scelestus ad sui voco; lacezzo ego ad ira, provo ego ad certamen, animo alius ad idem crimen, et stimulo is ad arma. Postridie, tamen, dux invito omnis ad epulae, et hortor is ad pax.

Amor laus fuscito homo ad officium suus, inclino animus ad diligentia, et incito is ad praecclarus facinus. Sed amor nummus instigo vir in malus ars, allicio is ad nequitia, et pellicio virgo ad stuprum.

Cum Eumenes cognosco hic, convoco miles, et primo ago is gratia, quod nemo invenio qui antepono spes cruentus premibloody reward to the obligation of his oath; then he cunningly subjoins, that he had forged these letters, that he might try their affections.

After this, Alexander invites his friends to a feast; where, when mention was made of the things which Philip his father had done, he began to prefer himself before his father, and to extol the greatness of his own exploits to heaven, whilst the greater part of the guests said as he said.

When the ambassadors of the Athenians came to Alcibiades, he promised them the king's friendship, if the government should be transferred from the people to the senate. The Athenians, because the danger of the war hung over them, had a greater care of their safety than honour; wherefore the government is transferred to the senate.

The coming of the Carthaginians into Sicily recalled Dionysius the tyrant out of Italy. Hanno the Carthaginian was general of that war, whose enemy, Suniatus, the most powerful of the Carthaginians, endeavoured to give notice of his coming to Dionysius; but Hanno intercepted the letter, and condemned Suniatus of treachery.

Virginus weeping said never a word a long time; at last he lifted up his hands to heaven, and begged of his fellow-soldiers that they would not ascribe the villainy of Appius Claudius to him; that they would not abhor him as the murderer of his children. He told them, that the life of his daughter was dearer to him than his own.

After Alexander, Arrybas's stepson, and brother of Olympias, was come to the age of twenty years, Philip, king of Macedonia, took the kingdom of Epirus from Arrybas, and gave it to the youth; being wicked towards both; for he did not observe the laws of affinity towards him from whom he took the kingdom, and he made him to whom he gave it a debauchee, before he made him a king.

Alexander commends the loyalty of the Persians, as well to their former kings as to himself. He puts them in mind of his kindnesses to them, how he had never treated them as a conquered um fides sacramentum; tum callide subneâo, sui confingo hic epistola, ut experior animus.

Post hic, Alexander voco amicus ad convivium; ubi, cum mentio orior res qui Philippus pater is gero, corpi præfero sui pater, et extollo magnitudo res suus cælum tenus, dum magna pars conviva assensor.

Cum legatus Atheniensis venio ad Alcibiades, polliceor is amicitia rex, si respublica translatus forem a populus ad senatus. Atheniensis, quod periculum bellum is imminco, sum magnus cura salus quam dignitas; itaque imperium transfero ad senatus.

Adventus Carthaginienfis in Sicilia revoco Dionysius tyrannus ex Italia. Hanno Carthaginienfis sum dux is bellum, qui inimicus, Suniatus, potens Poenus, conor prænuncio adventus is Dionysius; sed Hanno comprehendo literæ, et damno Suniatus proditio.

Virginus flens mitto nullus vox diu; tandem tendo manus ad cælum, et oro commilito ne attribuo scelus Appius Claudius sui; ne averfor sui ut parricida liberi. Dico is, vita filia sum carus sui suus.

Postquam Alexander, Arrybas privignus, et frater Olympias, pervenio ad ætas viginti annus, Philippus, rex Macedonia, eripio regnum Epirus Arrybas, et do puer; scelestus in uterque; nam non servo jus cognatio in is qui adimo regnum, et facio is qui do impudicus, antequam facio rex.

Alexander laudo fides Persa, tum in pristinus rex tum in sui. Admoneo is beneficium suus in is, ut nunquam habeo is quasi victus, sed veluti sepeople, but as the companions of his victory; and now he says, that he would trust the guard of his person, not only to the Macedonians, but to them too.

Almost all the east appointed divine honours and temples for Jason; which, after many years, Parmenio, a general of Alexander the Great, ordered to be pulled down, lest the name of any one should be more venerable in the east than the name of Alexander. After the death of Jason, Medius his son built the city Medea, in honour of his mother.

The Athenians, therefore, against so great a storm of war, choose two generals, Pericles, a man of tried conduct, and Sophocles, the writer of tragedies; who both laid waste the lands of the Spartans, and added many cities of Achaia to the empire of the Athenians. This affair procured to the generals the love of the citizens.

Wherefore, as all the pretenders were invited to the wedding, the Grecian strangers are desired likewise to the feast; then the young lady being introduced, was ordered by her father to deliver water to him, whom she chose for her husband. She turning to the Greeks, delivers the water to Protis, who afterwards built Massilia nigh the mouth of the river Rhone.

Claudius Cæsar made war upon Britain, which none of the Romans after Julius Cæsar had meddled with; he added likewise some islands lying in the ocean beyond Britain to the Roman empire, which are called the Orkneys, and gave the name of Britannicus to his son.

Vespasian was a prince of the most charming goodness, as who did not easily punish those guilty of treason against him beyond the pain of banishment; but he was too greedy of money, yet so that he took it from nobody unjustly, and bestowed it very liberally on people in want. He added two very potent nations, twenty towns, and the isle of Wight near Britain, to the Roman empire. Under him too Judea was added to the Roman empire, and Jerusalem, the most famous city of Palestine.

Cyrus takes Sybaris, and returns to Persepolis; where he called the people cious victoria; et nunc aio, si credo custodia corpus suus, non tantum Macedo, sed et etiam.

Totus fere oriens constituo divinus honor et templum Jason; qui, post multus annus, Parmenio, dux Alexander Magnus, jubeo diruo, ne nomen quicquam sum venerabilis in oriens nomen Alexander. Post mora Jason, Medius is filius condo urbs Medea, in honor mater.

Atheniensis, igitur, adversus tantus tempestas bellum, deligo duo dux, Pericles, vir spectatus virtus, et Sophocles, scriptor tragœdia; qui et vasto ager Spartanus, et adjicio multus civitas Achaia imperium Atheniensis. Is res concilio dux amor civis.

Itaque, cum omnis procus invito ad nuptiæ, Græcus hospes rogo etiam ad convivium; deinde virgo introductus, jubeo a pater porrigo aqua is, qui eligo, vir. Ille conversus ad Græcus, porrigo aqua Protis, qui postea condo Massilia prope ostium amnis Rhodanus.

Claudius Cæsar infero bellum Britannia, qui nullus Romanus post Julius Cæsar attingo; addo etiam, quidam insula positus in oceanus ultra Britannia Romanus imperium, qui appello Orcades, imponoque nomen Britannicus filius suus.

Vespasianus sum princeps placidus bonitas, ut qui non facile punio reus majestas contra sui ultra pœna exilium; sed sum avidus pecunia, tamen ita ut aufero is nullus injuste, et largior is studiose indigens. Adjicio duo validus gens, viginti oppidum, et insula Vectæ proximus Britannia, Romanus imperium. Sub hic quoque Judea accedo Romanus imperium, et Hierosolyma, clarus urbs Palestina.

Cyrus assumo Sybaris, et regredior ad Persepolis; ubi con-together, and orders them all to be ready with hatchets, and cut down the wood which hung over the highways; which when they had readily done, he invites them all to a feast the day after.

Annibal's advice pleased king Antiochus: wherefore one of Annibal's companions is sent into Africa to the Carthaginians, to encourage them to the war, and tell them that Annibal would come presently with an army; that nothing was wanting but the countenance of the Carthaginians.

Whilst all were amazed at the cruel tyranny of Aristotimus, Hellenicus, an old man, who had no children, gathers together his friends, and exhorts them to the delivery of their country. They conspire together against the tyrant's life, and Aristotimus is taken off.

It is a commendable thing for a boy to apply his mind to the study of good letters; they will be always useful to him, they will procure him the favour and love of good men, which those that are wise value more than riches and pleasure.

God has bestowed upon all his creatures some arms or weapons for their defence: To the birds he has given wings; to the lions strength; horns to the bulls; stings to the bees; and to man he hath given wisdom, which is a more excellent weapon, and sharper than a two-edged sword.

Do not, says Hanno, give yourselves up to an immoderate joy; Mago deceives you. It is only imaginary triumphs he promises you. If we are to believe him, Annibal has cut the Roman armies to pieces; why, therefore, does he ask more soldiers? He has twice taken and plundered the Roman camp; he is loaded with booty; why, therefore, should we send him more money and provisions? The Romans do not desire peace, and consequently are not so much humbled as he would persuade us. Let us not exhaust ourselves merely to satisfy Annibal's pride.

When Caius, a Roman nobleman, had beaten Pyrrhus king of Epirus, and driven him out of Italy, he divided some lands among his soldiers; to every man he distributed four acres, and reserved no more for himself; for none, said he, ought to be a general, who will not be content with the share of a common soldier; I would rather, quoth he, rule over rich men, than be rich myself.

There are a great many miseries, to which nothing but death can give relief. Death puts an end to the sorrows of the afflicted and oppressed; it sets the prisoners at liberty; it dries up the tears of the widows and fatherless; it eases the complaints of the hungry and naked; it tames the proudest tyrants; and puts an end to all our labours.

* 34. VERBS of asking and teaching admit of two accusatives, the first of a person, and the second of a thing.

voco populus, et jubeo omnis præsto sum cum securus, et excido sylva qui immineo via; qui cum strenue facio, invito omnis ad epulum postredie.

Annibal consilium placeo rex Antiochus: quare unus ex comes Annibal mitto in Africa ad Carthaginiensis, ut hortor is ad bellum, et nuncio Annibal mox venio cum exercitus; nihil desum nisi animus Carthaginiensis.

Cum omnis stupeo ad sævus dominatio Aristotimus, Hellenicus, senex, qui nullus liberi sum, contraho amicus suus, et hortor is ad vindicta patria. Conjuro in caput tyrannus, et Aristotimus opprimo.

Laudabilis sum puer adjungo animus ad studium bonus litera; sum semper utilis ille, concilio ille favor et amor bonus, qui sapio æstimo plus quam divitiæ et voluptas.

4. VERBA rogandi et docendi duos admittunt accusativos, priorem personæ, posteriorem rei.

Beg pardon of God.
He taught me grammar.

Posce Deum veniam.
Docuit me grammaticam.

1. Verbs of ASKING are, "rogo, oro, exoro, obsecro, precor, posco, reposco, flagito."
2. Verbs of TEACHING are, "doceo, edoceo, dedoceo, erudio."

NOTE 1. The verb celo also governs two accusatives; as, Cela hanc rem uxorem; Conceal this affair from your wife. But we also say, Celo te de hac re, and celo tibi hanc rem.

NOTE 2. Verbs of ASKING often change the accusative of the person into the ablative, with a, ab, or abs; as, Plaut. Ab amico argentum roges. Cic. Quid studia a te flagitent tu videbis. Virg. Veniam optemus ab ipso. Plaut. Res quedam est, quam volo ego me abs te exorare.

NOTE 3. Verbs of TEACHING frequently change the accusative of the thing into the ablative with de; as, Cic. Quid est tam arrogans, quam de rebus divinis collegium pontificum docere? Sall. De itinere hostium senatum edocet.

NOTE 4. We say, instruo, instituo, formo, informo, imbuo, aliquem artibus, generally without any preposition.

NOTE 5. Other verbs are sometimes found construed with two accusatives; as, Ter. Argentum, quod habes, condonamus te. Cic. Litteras ad te, a consule, non que te aliquid juberent sumpsimus. Ter. Scin' quod ego te volebam. Sall. Multa prius de salute sua Pomptinum obsecratus.

NOTE 6. The accusative of the thing is not governed by the verb, but by ad, quod ad, secundum, circa, or ab, understood.

1. When I ask money of you without a pawn, you say, I have none.

This one thing I beg of you, that you would give over lying; grant that I may obtain this favour of you.

We all beg peace of you, the soldiers beseech this of you, the general himself entreats this of you.

He ordered that they should go to Verres, and demand of him the statue of Ceres and Victory.

I have a bounteous stock of natural sense, and the rich court me, though poor; I importune the gods for nothing more, nor do I dun my potent friend for greater things.

2. Poverty teaches some men temperance, and makes them relinquish their former fashions; but those men act wisely, who ask life, health, and subsistence of God.

Minerva taught Telemachus all her arts, she taught him the laws and precepts of war.

NOTE 4. Instruct this boy in the Greek and Latin languages, he is a youth of extraordinary hopes, and of the highest Cum rogo tu nummus sine pignus, non habeo, inquam.

Hic unus tu oro, ut desino mentior; sino ut exoro tu hic venia.

Pax tu posco omnis, miles tu hic obsecro, dux ipse hic tu precor.

Jubeo ut adeo ad Verres, et reposco is simulacrum Ceres et Victoria.

Sum ego benignus vena ingenium, divesque ego peto; pauper; laceffo deus nihil supra, nec flagito potens amicus largus.

Egestas doceo aliquis temperantia, et dedoceo is prior moe; sed hic homo ago prudenter, qui rogo Deus vita, salus, et victus.

Minerva edoceo Telemachus omnis ars suus, erudio is lex præceptumque bellum.

Instituo hic puer Græcus et Latinus litera, sum adolescens eximius spes, et summus virtus; virtue; instruct him in all the arts which you yourself have studied; and this I chiefly beg of you, that you season his mind with piety.

¶ The people conferred on him the sovereignty; they did not take the advice of the more elderly, nor asked them their opinion. Thus, whilst they are angry at the senate's power, they deliver themselves, with their wives and children, into slavery; wherefore the tyrant seizes sixty senators, lays them in chains, and threatens them with death.

After they all with tears had begged peace with the king, he replied, if they would give him pledges, that he might know they would do the things which they had promised, and if they would satisfy his allies and neighbours for the injuries which they had done him, that he would make peace with them.

Vitellius, bent on the death and punishment of almost every one, cut off a great many noblemen; he scarcely spared any of the usurers and publicans, who had ever demanded of him a debt or duty; he put to death also some of the commons, because they had cursed the blue faction.

After him, Marcus Antoninus held the government alone, a man of the most frank generosity, whom all men admired; he was trained up to philosophy by Apollonius; to the knowledge of the Greek tongue by Sextus, the grandson of Plutarch; Fronto the orator taught him the Latin tongue.

Pythagoras taught the matrons chastity, and complaisance to their husbands; he taught the boys modesty, and the study of letters; amidst these things he inculcated upon all frugality, as the mother of virtues; he recommended temperance, and recounted every day the mischiefs of luxury. So great was the admiration of this man, that, after his death, they made a temple of his house, and worshipped him for a god.

Catiline taught the youth whom he had seduced, many wicked practices; for as every one's fancy, according to their age, was fired, he furnished whores to some, bought dogs and horses for others; in short, he spared neither expence nor instruo ille omnis ars qui tu ipse studeo; et hic præsertim tu oro, ut animus is pietas imbuo.

Plebs defero is summus imperium; non consule senior, neque rogo is sententia sua. Ita, dum irascor senatus potentia, trado sui, cum conjux et liberi, in servitus; itaque tyrannus comprehendo sexaginta senator, compingo in vinculum, et minor ille mors.

Postquam omnis cum lacryma posco rex pax, respondeo, si do fui obsecro, ut intelligo is facio is qui polliceor, et si satisfacio socius et finitimus suus de injuria qui infero ipse, sui facio pax cum is.

Vitellius, pronus ad nex atque supplicium fere quisque, occido multus nobilis vir; vix parco ullus fenerator publicanusque, qui unquam flagito sui debitum aut portorium; interimo et quidem de plebs, quod maledico venetus factio.

Post is, Marcus Antoninus teneo respublica solus, vir promptus liberalitas, qui omnis miror; instituo ad philosophia per Apollonius; ad scientia Græcus litera per Sextus, nepos Plutarchus; Fronto orator doceo is Latinus litera.

Pythagoras doceo matrona pudicitia, et obsequium in vir; doceo puer modestia, et studium litera; inter hic ingero omnis frugalitas, velut genetrix virtus; laudo temperantia, et enumero quotidie vitium luxuria. Tanta sum admiratio hic vir, ut, post mors is, facio templum ex domus is, colloque is pro deus.

Catilina edoceo juvenus qui illicio, multus malus facinus; nam uti quisque studium, ex ætas, flagro, præbeo scortum alius, mercor canis atque equus alius; postremo, parco neque sumptus his own modesty, provided he could neque modestia suus, dum facio make them subject and trusty to him. ille obnoxius fidusque fui.

Solomon asked wisdom of God; and God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked of me long life, nor riches, nor the life of thine enemies, behold I have done according to thy word. Lo! I have given thee a wise and understanding heart, and have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, riches and honour.

Before Jove, no husbandman manured the fields, the earth of itself produced every thing. But now sturdy steers turn up the soil, harrows break the sluggish clods, and the swains pray to the gods for moist summers and serene winters.

When Hercules killed the giants Albion and Bergion, his arrows were wasted in the fight, so that he wanted arms; wherefore he begged aid of Jupiter, and obtained from him a shower of stones.

Teach thy son obedience, and he shall bless thee; teach him temperance, and he shall have health; teach him prudence, and fortune shall attend him; teach him science, and his life shall be useful; teach him religion, and his death shall be happy.

* 35. Verbs of filling, loading, binding, depriving, clothing, and some others, require the accusative with the ablative.

He filled the bowl with wine.
They load the ship with gold.
He bound Gaul in fetters.
He deprived his father of life.
He clothed the wall with pictures.
He exchanges squares for rounds.
We present you with this pipe.
You give me great joy.

5. Verba implendi, onerandi, astringendi, privandi, vestiendi, et quarundam alia, accusativum cum ablativo petunt.

Implevit pateram mero.
Navem onerant auro.
Vinculis Galliam astrinxit.
Patrem vita privavit.
Parietem tabulis vestiebat.
Mutat quadrata rotundis.
Hac te donamus cicuta.
Afficis me magna latitia.

1. Verbs of FILLING are, "impleo, compleo, expleo, repleo, fatus, obsatus, satio, refectio, ingurgito, doto," and the like.

2. Verbs of LOADING are, "onero, cumulo, premo, operio, operio, obruo:" to which add verbs of UNLOADING; such as, "levo, exonero."

3. Verbs of BINDING are, "astringo, alligo, devincio, impedio, irretio, illaqueo," &c.: to which add verbs of LOOSING; such as, "solvo, exsolvo, libero, laxo, expedio."

4. Verbs of DEPRIVING are, "privo, nudo, orbo:" to which add verbs of SPOILING; such as, "spolio, fraudo, emungo."

5. Verbs of CLOTHING are, "vestio, amicio, induo, cingo, tego, velo, coronatio, calceo:" to which add their contraries, "exuo, discingo."

6. The other verbs belonging to this rule are, "muto, dono, munero, remunero, communico, pascō, beo, impertior, dignor, afficio, prosequor, spargo, incesso, infector, oblecto," and the like.

NOTE 1. Impleo, compleo, and expleo, sometimes take the accusative and genitive; as, Liv. Adolescentem sua temeritatis implet. Plaut. Erroris illos, et dementiæ complebo. Virg. Animumque expleisse iuvabit ultionis flammæ. And among the more ancient authors, also saturo and obsaturo; as, Plaut. Hæ res vita me saturant. And hence their passives sometimes retain the genitive; as, Virg. Implentur veteris Bacchi. Cic. Cum completus jam mercatorum carcer esset. Lucret. Sanguinis expletis naribus. Ter. Istius obsaturabere.

NOTE 2. These passive verbs of clothing, induo, amicio, vestio, cingo, accingo; also exuo, discingo, and their participles, have frequently the accusative with the poets; as, Ovid. Induitur faciem cultumque Dianæ. Virg. Inutile ferrum cingitur. Id. Exuvias indutus Achillei. Claud. Canas vestita nives. Sil. Exuta pudorem. But with prose authors they have the ablative; as, Curt. Veste Arabica induitur. Liv. Hispano cingitur gladio. Cic. Pallium quo amictus. Tac. Exutus omnibus fortunis.

NOTE 3. Pascor dep. instead of the ablative, sometimes takes the accusative; as, Virg. Pascuntur sylvas.

NOTE 4. The ablative is not governed by the verbs belonging to this rule, but by some preposition understood; such as, a, ab, de, e, ex, cum, pro; and which are sometimes expressed; as, Mart. De flava loculos implere moneta. Cic. Arce[m] urbis ab incendio liberaui. Liv. Laxare animum a laboribus. Cæsar. Solvere nares e portu. Sall. Mutare bellum pro pace. Plin. Mentionem alicujus cum bonore summo prosequi. When the passive verbs of clothing take the accusative, ad, quod, or per, is understood. And when any verb belonging to this rule takes the genitive, some ablative, such as, re, negotio, causa, or the like, with a preposition, is understood.

NOTE 5. Several of these ablatives may be referred to the cause, manner, or instrument, of which in No. 53.

1. The tyrant filled his country with blood and slaughter, he filled the city with havock and carnage, he filled every house with mourning, which filled men's ears with dismal stories.

After he had satiated himself with revenge, after he had glutted himself with slaughter, after he had satiated himself with the blood of citizens, he sat down to a feast, and glutted himself with meat and drink.

2. After they had loaded the altar with presents, they disburden themselves of cares, and load the ship with arms and provision, and sailing out of the harbour they covered the whole sea with their fleet.

But Æolus, who controuls the winds with imperial sway, had resolved, when night should cover the earth with darkness, to bury them under the waves, whilst there should be none at hand that could relieve their minds from the distress.

Tyrannus impleo patria sanguis et cædes, repleo civitas strages et internecio, compleo omnis domus luctus, qui refectio homo auris dirus rumor.

Postquam expleo sui ultio, postquam satio sui cædes, postquam saturo sui sanguis civis, accumbo epulum, et ingurgito sui cibus potusque.

Postquam cumulo altare donum, exonero sui cura, et onero navis arma et comæatus, et egressus e portus operio totus pelagus classis.

At Æolus, qui ventus imperium premo, statuo, cum nox obruo terra enebras, opimo is fluctus, dum nullus adsum qui levo animus agritudo.

3. You will easily gain over good men by acts of kindness; but it is necessary to tie up some men by laws, to bind others with chains, that they may not obstruct the public good by their private quarrels.

The wicked endeavour to insnare others with the allurements of vice; but they cannot disengage themselves from troubles, or extricate themselves from sorrows; for though fortune sometimes delivers them from punishment, she never frees them from fear.

4. This new philosophy deprives us of our rest, despoils us of our judgment, bereaves us of our senses; it cheats the young men out of their diversions, cozens the old men out of their money, nay, it robs the temples of presents.

5. The ancients used to clothe their bodies with the skins of wild beasts, and to cover the temples of the gods with boughs; but men now clothe themselves with garments of silk, even when winter has covered the earth with snow.

The Athenians used to crown their conquerors with olive, or bedeck the temples of their heads with laurel, when they had forced an enemy from their camp, or saved a citizen by their arms; they used also to crown their poets with ivy or laurel; they shod their comedians with sandals, and their tragedians with buskins.

6. The man who doth not pursue his enemy with curses, nor maul him with darts, but exchanges resentment for friendship, is worthy to be loved. The poets will present him with immortality, they will reward him with encomiums, they will extol him with honour, and celebrate him with praises. Others will enrich him with gifts, and entertain him at their table.

That fellow bestrews the ground with leaves, he feeds himself with herbs, and amuses himself with trifles; I will not compliment him with a salutation, I will not dignify him with such an honour.

Some men value reputation more than riches, or life itself; wherefore the tyrant, whilst he thinks himself despised, is in a rage, and resolves to fill the city with slaughter; but it was to no purpose to be angry with those who did not value him a rash.

Facile devincio bonus beneficium; at necesse sum ligo quidam lex, astringo alius vinculum, ni impedio bonum publicus privatus simulas.

Malus conor irretio alius illecebra vitium; at non possum laxo sui molestia, aut expedio sui ærumna; licet enim fortuna interdum libero is supplicium, nunquam solvo is metus.

Hic novus philosophia privo ego quies, spolio ego iudicium, orbo ego sensus; fraudo adolescens oblectamentum, emungo senex argentum, imo, nudo fanum donum.

Vetustus soleo vestio corpus spoliū fera, et velo delubrum deus frons; at nunc homo induo sui sericus vestimentum, etiam cum bruma amicio terra nix.

Atheniensis soleo corona victor olea, aut cingo tempus laurus, cum exuo hostis castra, aut tego civis arma; soleo etiam corono poeta hedera aut laurus; comædus calceo foccus, et tragædus cothurnus.

Vir qui non insector inimicus maledictum, aut incesso is jaculum, sed muto ira amicitia, sum dignus amo. Poeta dono is æternitas, remuneror is elogium, afficio is honor, et prosequor is laus. Alius beo is munus, et communico is mensa.

Iste homo spargo humus folium, pascō sui herba, et oblecto sui nugæ; ego non impertior is salus, haud dignor is talis honor.

Quidam æstimo fama plus quam divitiæ, aut vita ipse; itaque tyrannus, dum puto sui contemno, sævio, et statuo repleo civitas cædes; sed de nihilum sum irascor ille qui is non floccus facio.

When Alcibiades returned, the Athenians loaded him not only with all human honour, but divine; they compensated his losses with presents: they had not the unfortunate battle of Sicily in their mouths, but the conquest of Greece; nor did they make mention of Syracuse, but of Ionia and the Hellespont.

After he had obliged the neighbouring princes with acts of kindness and complaisance, he lays a plot for his sister's son, whom he resolves to deprive of life and of his possessions; and he would have robbed him of his kingdom, had not a mutiny of the soldiers ensued, whom he had cheated of their pay.

At Aleſia, Cæſar drew two ditches fifteen feet broad, the innermost of which he filled with water conveyed from the river. This the enemy afterwards endeavoured to cover over with hurdles, and fill up with the rampart.

Varro ſays, that he had a lioness of marble, and winged Cupids sporting with her, some of which were holding her tied fast, others were forcing her to drink out of a horn, others were shoeing her with sandals, and that all were of one stone.

Such was the slaughter of the scattered soldiers, that the Athenians sustained more damage in that battle, than they had caused in the former; and so great was the despair among the Athenians, that immediately they changed their general Alcibiades for Cónon.

If I shall only touch upon the most considerable virtues of Pelopidas, I fear, lest it may less plainly appear to those ignorant of the Greek tongue how great a man he was: after his death, the cities of Theſſaly complimented his children with a great deal of land.

He was glad that his rival was forced into banishment, and rejoiced at his misfortune; but never did an exile affect the eyes of beholders with greater compassion: his enemies indeed filled the palace with shoutings, but the people bedecked his statues with flowers.

The Germans do not mind husbandry, and the greater part of their food consists in milk, and cheese, and flesh: nor has any one a certain portion of land, or Cum Alcibiades redeo, Athenienſis onero is non tantum omnis humanus honor, ſed divinus; expleo detrimentum munus: non ille in os ſum adverſus pugna Sicilia, ſed victoria Græcia; nec Syracuſa, ſed Ionia Hellespontuſque, memini.

Poſtquam devincio finitimus rex beneficium et obſequium, ſoror filius inſidiæ inſtruo, qui ſtatuo privo vita et poſſeſſio; et ſpolio is regnum, ni ſeditio miles inſequor, qui ſtipendium fraudo.

Apud Aleſia, Cæſar perduco duo ſoſſa quindecim pes laſus, qui interior compleo aqua ex flumen derivatus. Hic hoſtis poſtea conor integro crates, atque expleo agger.

Varro trado, ſui habeo leæna marmoreus, aligerque Cupido ludens cum is, qui alius teneo is religatus, alius cogo is bibo ex cornu, alius calceo is foccus, et omnis ſum ex unus lapis.

Tantus ſum cædes palans miles, ut Athenienſis accipio plus vulnus in is prælium, quam do in ſuperior; et tantus ſum deſperatio apud Athenienſia, ut ſtatim muto dux Alcibiades Cónon.

Si tantum modo ſummus virtus Pelopidas attingo, vereor, ne rudis Græcus litera minus lucide appareo quantus vir ille ſum: poſt mors, civitas Theſſalia liberi is multus ager dono.

Gaudeo æmulus ago in exilium, et lætor caſus is; ſed nunquam exul oculus viſens magnus miſericordia afficio: inimicus quidem compleo palatium clamor, ſed populus imago is ſlos ſpargo.

Germanus agricultura non ſtudeo, magnuſque pars victus is lac, et caſeus, et caro, conſiſto; neque quiſquam certus modus a-distinct boundaries, left, taken with the pleasure of fields; they should exchange the study of war for agriculture.

ger, aut finis proprius, habeo, ne captus amoenitas ager, studium bellum agricultura commuto.

Two brothers, kings of Thrace, chose Philip, king of Macedonia, umpire of their differences; but Philip at first filled their minds with vain hopes, at last he bound both princes with chains, robbed them of their kingdom, and stripped them of all their possessions.

The Chimæra, according to the poets, is a monster, which vomiteth forth fire; he hath the head and breast of a lion, the belly of a goat, and the tail of a dragon. A volcano in Lycia gave occasion to this fable; for in the top of the mountain were lions, the middle of it abounded with goats, and the bottom of it was full of serpents. Bellerophon rendered the mountain habitable; and hence he is said to have bound the monster with fetters, and to have killed or deprived the Chimæra of life.

Hamilcar being chosen general, discharged that office with great applause. He soon restored to his country all the revolted cities, and among these Utica and Hippo, the strongest of all Africa. Nor was he content with this, but likewise extended the bounds of the empire. He subdued several great and warlike nations in Spain; and enriched all Africa with horses, arms, men, and money.

ANNOTATIO.

* 36. The passives of such active verbs, as govern two cases, do still retain the last of them.

Quorum activa duos casus regunt, eorum passiva posteriorem retinent.

I am accused of theft.

Accusor furti.

Slaves are rated at more.

Mancipia pluris aestimantur.

Virgil is compared to Homer.*

Virgilius comparatur Homero.

I am taught grammar.

Doceor grammaticam.

The bowl is filled with wine.

Patera impletur mero.

1. The passives of verbs of accusing, condemning, acquitting, and admonishing, retain the genitive.

2. The passives of verbs of valuing, retain the genitives magis, parvi, nibili, &c.

3. The passives of verbs of comparing, giving, declaring, and taking away, retain the dative.

4. The passives of verbs of asking and teaching, retain the accusative of the thing.

5. The passives of verbs of filling, loading, binding, depriving, clothing, &c. retain the ablative.

1. He was accused of most heinous crimes, but he was cleared of all; and deservedly; for he was accused of faults, of which he was innocent.

Accuso gravis scelus, sed absolvo omnis: et merito; nam arguo culpa, qui sum insons.

Albucilla, the famous woman, was accused of disaffection toward the emperor; but she was accused of this crime by her enemies.

Albucilla, famosus mulier, defero impietas in princeps; sed compello hic crimen ab inimicis.

One was condemned for murder, and Alius damno cædes, aliis ther was condemned for extortion, a third was condemned for bribery and the public money.

If any Roman knight was seen to have a horse somewhat lean, or not very sleek, he was censured for clownish carelessness.

We are admonished of many things by our friends; do not therefore take it ill that you are put in mind of your duty.

2. Silver is valued much, gold is valued more, but virtue ought to be valued most.

The sayings of wise men are sometimes little esteemed, but the words of a fool are always regarded less.

3. Death is rightly compared to sleep, and fortune is very rightly compared to the wind, to which it is very like.

Speech is given to all, wisdom to few; and the way to true happiness is shown to us from the word of God only.

Virtue can neither be forced away, nor stolen away from any one; but nobody can serve pleasure and virtue together.

4. The consul, when he understood these things were designed, calls the senate; and Silanus was first asked his opinion, because he was consul elect.

Nor was the earth called upon for corn and food only, but riches are dug up, and now the iron comes out, and gold more hurtful than iron.

This age is fertile in vice; a young lady takes pleasure to be taught the Ionic dances, and thinks on love from her tender years.

5. Neither are bees satisfied with heather, nor kids with leaves, nor cruel love with tears.

The man is amused with trifles, he is surfeited with feasting; but the sea is not overcharged with waters. The valleys are covered with darkness, though the mountains are clothed with snow.

¶ When Pausanias, king of the Lacedæmonians, came to the assistance of the Athenians, he made peace betwixt Thrasybulus and those who held the town. Thrasybulus also made a law, that nobody should be called to an account for things past, nor punished; and they called that an act of oblivion.

He that is accused of a wicked action, damno repetundæ, alius condemnno ambitus et publicus pecunia.

Si quis Romanus eques videor habeo equus gracilentus, aut parum nitidus, noto impolitia.

Admoneo multus ab amicis; nolo igitur ægre fero tu officium tuus commoneo.

Argentum æstimo magnam, aurum æstimo plus, sed virtus debeo æstimo plurimum.

Dictum sapiens interdum parvum existimo, sed verbum stultus minor semper duco.

Mors recte comparo somnus, et fortuna recte comparo ventus, qui sum similis.

Sermo do cunctus, sapientia pauci; et via ad verus felicitas ostendo ego ex verbum Deus solus.

Virtus nec possum cripio, nec furripio quisquam; at nemo possum servio voluptas et virtus simul.

Consul, ubi cognosco is paro, convoco senatus; et Silanus primus rogo sententia, quod sum consul designatus.

Nec humus tantum posco feges alimentumque, sed opis effodio, jamque ferrum prodeo, et aurum nocens ferrum.

Hic seculum sum fecundus culpa; virgo gaudeo doceo motus Ionicus, et meditor amor de tener unguis.

Nec cythus saturo apis, nec frons capella, nec lacryma crudelis amor.

Homo oblecto nugæ, onero epulæ; at fretum non satio aqua. Vallis tenebræ tego, licet mons amicio nix.

Cum Pausanias, rex Lacedæmonius, venio auxilium Atticus, facio pax inter Thrasybulus et is qui teneo urbs. Thrasybulus quoque fero lex, ne quis accuso antea res, neve multo; appelloque is lex oblivio.

Qui accuso facinus, aut qui or he that is called in question about any thing, is called in Latin reus: but he that is accused of a fault, is not consequently in a fault; nor ought he to be accounted guilty of the crime, till it be proved; for if to accuse any one of a crime were sufficient for condemnation, who could be safe?

Who doubts but many innocent persons have been tried for life, and condemned to death; and that a great many wicked villains have been tried for life, and absolved from the crimes of which they were guilty? But they will not escape in the world to come, God will not absolve them from the wickedness which they have committed.

Hippias ordered the murderer of his brother to be seized; who, being forced by torments to name those that were guilty of the murder, named all the tyrant's friends; who were slain. Thus the citizens were put in mind of their liberty, and Hippias was forced into banishment.

If cunning valuers of things esteem meadows and fields at a great rate, because that sort of possession can least be damaged; at how great a rate ought virtue to be esteemed, which can neither be forced away nor stolen from any one?

After some days, another letter of Darius is delivered to Alexander, in which the marriage of a daughter, and a part of his kingdom are offered him: but Alexander returned answer that his own was given him, and ordered Darius to come, and leave the disposal of his kingdom to the conqueror.

When Eumenes was returned to the camp, letters were found scattered throughout the camp, in which great rewards were promised to those that should bring the head of Eumenes to Antigonus. But this project was vain, for none of the soldiers would betray their general.

He that only pleases himself, does himself no kindness, because he displeases God his creator, who commands us to be kind and good to all men, and to do to others those things which we incline should be done to ourselves. This precept is delivered to us in the gospel, and postulo de res aliquis, voco Latine reus: sed qui accuso culpa, non sum continuo in culpa; nec debeo existimo conscius crimen, donec probó; nam si accuso aliquis crimen sum satis ad condemnatio, quis possum sum tutus?

Quis dubito quin multus homo innocens accuso caput, et damno caput; et multus homo facinorosus accuso caput, et absolvo crimen qui sum conscius? Sed non effugio in seculum futurus, Deus non absolvo is scelus qui perpetro.

Hippias jubeo interfecto frater suus comprehendo; qui, coactus per tormentum nomino is qui sum conscius cades, nomino omnis tyrannus amicus; qui interficio. Sic civis admoneo libertas, et Hippias ago in exilium.

Si callidus aestimator res aestimo pratum et area magnum, quod is genus possessio possum minime lædo; quantum debeo virtus aestimo, qui nec possum eripio nec surripio quisquam?

Post aliquot dies, alius epistola Darius reddo Alexander, in qui matrimonium filia, et portio regnum offero is; sed Alexander rescribo suus do sui, et jubeo Darius venio, et permitto arbitrium regnum victor.

Cum Eumenes revento in castra, litera invenio abjectus per castra, in qui magnus præmium promitto is qui desere caput Eumenes ad Antigonus. Sed hic consilium sum irritus, nam nemo miles volo prodo imperator.

Qui tantum placeo sui, non profum sui, quia displiceo Deus creator suus; qui jubeo ego sum benignus et beneficus omnis, et facio alius is qui volo fio ego ipse. Hic præceptum trado ego in evangelium, et complec-comprehends almost the whole duty of a Christian.

Trajan succeeded him, descended of an ancient rather than an illustrious family; he so managed the government, that he is deservedly preferred to all the emperors. He was a man of unusual moderation and bravery; he extended far and wide the boundaries of the Roman empire, which had been defended rather, after Augustus, than nobly enlarged.

When Cato was asked his opinion, he made a speech to this purpose: Do you demur, quoth he, what you should determine with respect to the most barbarous parricides? They have conspired to set their country in flames; they solicit to the war the nation of the Gauls, the most spiteful to the Roman state.

Cicero had been informed of every thing by the deputies; wherefore he unfolds the whole affairs to the pretors, who immediately beset the Mulvian bridge. The Allobroges without delay surrender themselves to the pretors. All things are instantly notified to the consul by messengers; but a vast concern and joy seized him at once: for glad he was that the city was rescued from danger, but he thought the punishing of the conspirators would be a burdensome task to himself.

The ambassadors of the Gauls returning, set forth the enemy's wealth and negligence; they said, that their camp was filled with gold and silver; and that they neglected all military duty, as if they did not want the help of the sword, because they abounded in gold.

This place is encompassed on all sides with craggy rocks, that it needs no defenders; and such is the fruitfulness of the adjacent soil, that it is filled with its own riches; and such is the plenty of fountains and woods, that it abounds with water, and wants not the diversions of hunting.

Mars was accused of murder and incest, and obliged to undergo a trial before twelve gods as judges; but was acquitted of the crimes. The place of trial, which was near Athens, became afterwards the seat of a court, and was called Areopagus, that is, the hill of Mars. The judges were called Areopagites, who were men of the strictest integrity, and of the most blameless life.

tor pene totus officium Christianus.

Trajanus succedo is, natus antiquus magis quam clarus familia; ita administro respublica, ut merito præfero omnis princeps. Sum vir inusitatus civilitas et fortitudo: diffundo longe lateque finis Romanus imperium, qui sum defensus magis, post Augustus, quam nobiliter ampliat.

Cum Cato rogo sententia, habeo oratio hujuscemodi: Tu cunctor, inquam ille, quis statim de crudelis parricida? Conjuro incendio patria; arcesso ad bellum gens Gallus, infestus Romanus nomen.

Cicero edoceo cunctus per legatus; itaque aperio res omnia prætor, qui statim obsideo Mulvius pons. Allobroges sine mora dedo fui prætor. Omnis propere declaro consul per nuncios; at ingens cura atque lætitia simul occupo ille; nam lætor civitas eripio periculum, credo autem poena conjuratus forem onus fui.

Legatus Gallus reversus, ostendo hostis opis et negligentia; dico, castra repleo aurum et argentum; et is intermitto omnia militaris officium, quasi non indigeo auxilium ferrum, qui abundo aurum.

Hic locus cingo undique præruptus rupes, ut ego nullus defensor; et tantus sum fertilitas circumjacens solum, ut expleo proprius opis; et is sum copia fons et sylva, ut abundo aqua, nec careo voluptas venatio.

Heaven is the lofty throne of God; but to describe the glory of it, is more than human tongue can do. The grandeur and state we behold on earth cannot be compared with it. It is the abode of the just, the resting-place of the weary, and the reward of the faithful. There are rivers of pleasures, and crowns of glory. Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

When Cicero was asked his opinion concerning the immortality of the soul, he replied, For many reasons I persuade myself that the soul is immortal; and if in this I err, I err with pleasure; nor will I ever be forced out of an opinion which yields me so much delight.

In Britain, says Cæsar, there is a vast number of inhabitants; the buildings are numerous, and much like those of Gaul; the country abounds in cattle; instead of money, the Britons make use of brasa, or pieces of iron of a certain weight. They do not sow much corn; but live on milk and flesh, and are clothed with skins.

§ 2. The government of impersonal verbs.

RULE VIII.

37. AN impersonal verb governs the dative.

It happened to me.

It is profitable for the state.

No man is allowed to sin.

§ 2. Regimen verborum impersonalium.

REG. VIII.

VERBUM impersonale regit dativum.

Accidit mihi.

Exedit reipublicæ.

Licet nemini peccare.

The impersonal verbs belonging to this general rule, excluding those contained in the following exception, are such as, "accidit, contingit, evenit, conducit, expedit, lubet, libet, licet, placet, displicet, vacat, restat, præstat, liquet, nocet, dolet, sufficit, apparet," &c. Together with the dative, they have frequently an infinitive after them, which supplies the place of a nominative before them.

NOTE 1. The dative is often suppressed; as, Cic. Sexcenta licet ejusmodi proferre, sc. nobis. Ter. Faciat quod lubet, sc. sibi.

NOTE 2. impersonal verbs are sometimes used personally, especially with the pronouns id, hoc, illud, quod, and the like; as, Cic. Si tibi id minus libebit. Id. Non idem mihi licet. Id. Si habes quod liquent. Suet. Qua cuique libuissent. Catul. Marito ista non licent.

EXCEPTIONES.

* 38. Refert and interest require the genitive.

It concerns my father.

It is the interest of all.

1. Refert et interest genitivum postulant.

Refert patriæ.

Interest omnium.

NOTE 1. Refert and interest, beside other genitives, admit also of these, santi, quanti, magni, permagni, parvi, pluris; as, Cic. Parvi refert ab te jus dici. Id. Magni interest mea una nos esse.

NOTE 2. They are sometimes used personally, and admit not only of the nominatives quid, quod, id, hæc, illud, &c. but of others also; as, Ter. Tua quod nihil refert. Cic. Illud non magni interest. Id. Non quo mea interest loci natura. Lucr. Magni refert studium atque voluntas.

NOTE 3. The adverbs, tantum, quantum, multum, plurimum, infinitum, parum, nihil, maxime, minime, and the like, are often joined with them; as, Mart. Multum refert. Juv. Plurimum intererit, &c.

NOTE 4. The construction is elliptical, and may be thus supplied: Refert patris, i. e. refert se ad negotia patris. Interest omnium, i. e. est inter negotia omnium.

* 39. But mea, tua, sua, nostra, versa, are put in the accusative plural.

At mea, tua, sua, nostra, vestra, ponuntur in accusativo plurali.

I am not concerned.

Non mea refert.

It concerns both you and me.

Et tua et mea interest.

NOTE 1. We may say indifferently, cujus, or cujus interest; as, Cic. Detur ei cuja interfuit, non ei cuja nihil interfuit. Id. Quis enim est bodie, cujus interfuit istam legem manere?

NOTE 2. The construction may be thus supplied: Refert mea, i. e. refert se ad me negotia. Interest tua, i. e. est inter tua negotia.

* 40. These five, miseret, pœnitet, pudet, tædet, and piget, govern the accusative of a person with the genitive of a thing.

2. Hæc quinque, miseret, pœnitet, pudet, tædet, et piget, regunt accusativum personæ cum genitivo rei.

I pity you.

Miseret me tui.

I repent of my sin.

Pœnitet me peccati.

I am weary of my life.

Tædet me vite.

NOTE 1. The infinitive frequently supplies the place of the genitive; as, Pœnitet me peccasse, for pœnitet me peccati. Tædet me vivere, for tædet me vite.

NOTE 2. The accusative of the person is often suppressed; as, Hor. Sœclerum si pœnitet, sc. nos.

NOTE 3. These verbs are sometimes used personally; as, Lucr. Ipse sui miseret. Plaut. Me hæc conditio non pœnitet. Plaut. Id quod pudet facilius feratur, quam id quod piget.

NOTE 4. The genitive is governed by some substantive understood, such as, negotium, factum, status, fortuna, respectus, cogitatio, or the like; and the construction may be thus completed; Miseret me tui, i. e. negotium tui mali miseret me, or respectus tui miseret me. Pœnitet me peccati, i. e. negotium peccati, or cogitatio peccati pœnitet me.

* 41. These four, deceat, delectat, juvat, oportet, govern the accusative of the person with the infinitive.

3. Hæc quatuor, deceat, delectat, juvat, oportet, regunt accusativum personæ cum infinitivo.

It does not become you to scold.

Non deceat te rixari.

I delight to study.

Delectat me studere.

NOTE 1. Decet, instead of the accusative, sometimes takes the dative; as, Ter. Ita nobis decet. Gell. Ætatis ejus decetbat.

NOTE 2. Oportet is elegantly joined with the subjunctive mood, ut being understood; as, oportet facias, for oportet te facere.

NOTE 3. Fallit, fugit, præterit, latet, when used impersonally, take also the accusative with the infinitive; as, Cic. Fugit me ad te scribere, &c.

NOTE 4. Attinet, pertinet, and spectat, when used impersonally, have the accusative with ad; as, Ter. Pereat, nihil ad me attinet. Cic. Ad rempublicam pertinet me conservari. Incert. Spectat ad omnes bene vivere.

NOTE 5. Decet, delectat, and juvat, are often used personally, and oportet, sometimes; as, Hor. Parvum parva decet. Cic. Me status hic reipublica non delectat. Juv. Si senem juvat alea. Ter. Hæc facta ab illo oportebant.

37. It happened to the young man, that he was very dear to the senate.

It happened ill for them, but very well for us, if you please to hear.

It contributes to health to live according to nature, and it is proper for us so to live.

They beg that it may be allowed them to pass their days in exile; and it pleases me to allow them.

Jove has not leisure to attend on small affairs; but it is better for us to be silent than to speak.

It appears to all that this man aims at sovereignty, nay I am clear to swear it.

38. It concerns all men to practise virtue, and it concerns all men to pity the miserable.

39. It concerns me, it concerns you and the commonwealth, that you do your duty.

It concerns thee not to believe rashly, and it concerns thee to know thyself.

Cæsar used to say, that it did not so much concern him as the state, that he should be preserved.

Caligula suffered the writings of Labienus to be searched for and read, since it very much concerned him that every action should be transmitted to posterity.

It concerns you who are fathers, to take care that your children be well educated, and it concerns children to obey their parents.

40. I look for death as the end of my miseries; but I pity you against whom wars and battles are prepared.

If thou art sorry for, and ashamed of thy faults, thou wilt take care not to commit any such thing hereafter.

Contingit adolescens, ut sum carus senatus.

Male evenit ille, at bene ego, si placet tu audio.

Conducit salus vivo e natura, et expedit ego ita vivo.

Peto ut licet ille ago ætas in exilium, et lubet ego sino.

, Non vacat Jupiter adsum exiguus res; sed præstat ego taceo quam loquor.

Apparet omnis hic homo affecto imperium, imo liquet ego dehero.

Refert omnis colo virtus, et interest omnis misereor miser.

Refert meus, refert tuus et respública, ut tu fungor officium.

Refert tuus non credo temere, et interest tuus posco tu ipse.

Cæsar soleo dyco, non tam interest suus quam respública, uti salvus sum.

Caligula permitto scriptum Labienus requiro et lectito, quando maxime interest suus ut quisque factum trado posteris.

Interest vester qui pater sum, curo ut liberi probe institui, et refert liberi obedio parens.

Expecto mors ut finis miseria; sed misereor ego tu adversus qui prolium et acies paro.

Si ponit, ac pudet tu peccatum tu caveo ne quis talis posthac committito.

Sulpicius, tribune of the commons, after he had acquired the greatest honour, made many destructive laws, as if he had been sorry for, and weary of his former virtues.

41. It becomes all men to be free from hatred, love, wrath, and compassion, when they deliberate about doubtful matters.

There are boys that delight to lead an idle life, and there are boys who take pleasure to ply their studies.

It behoves men to reckon that God sees all things, that all things are full of God.

¶ As soon as Eumenes understood that Perdiccas was slain, himself judged an enemy, and the management of the war committed to Antigonus, he declared those things to the soldiers; and added, moreover, if those things were a terror to any, it was permitted them to depart.

The anger of the Almighty God ought to be terrible to all men, no less to the highest and haughtiest of the lords of the earth, than the meanest of mortals. He can, if he please, disjoint all the parts of this beautiful structure of the world, and reduce them into one confused mass, like that out of which they were originally formed.

You see, says Eumenes, the dress and ornaments of your general, which not any of my enemies has put upon me, for that would be a comfort to me; you have made me of a general a prisoner. One thing I beg, that you would let me die among yourselves; for it signifies nothing to Antigonus, how or where I fall. If I obtain this, I free you from your oath.

Honesty hurts nobody; but knavery, though it seems to profit a man, is very pernicious to a man's credit, which all wise men value more than money; and very often it is hurtful to a man's estate and life, which fools value more than all things else; it therefore concerns all men to beware of and avoid injustice.

God is angry with the wicked, and threatens them with most dreadful torments; not because he hates them, but that they may repent of their sin, and Sulpicius, tribunus plebs, cum quoque magnus dignitas, fero multus perniciosus lex, quasi piget, ac tædet is pristinus virtus.

Decet omnis homo sum vacans ab odium, amicitia, ira, atque misericordia, cum consulo de res dubius.

Sum puer qui delectat segnia traduco vita, et sum puer qui studium invigilo juvat.

Oportet homo existimo Deus cerno omnis, omnis 6 Deus plenus sum.

Ut Eumenes cognosco Perdiccas occido, sui judico hostis, et summa bellum committo Antigonus, indico is miles; et addo, insuper, si quis is terror sum, licet ille discedo.

Ira Deus Omnipotens debeo sum terribilis omnis, non minus summus et superbus dominus terra orbis, quam infimus mortalia. Possum, si placet is, divello omnis pars hic pulcher ædificium mundus, et redigo in unus moles indigestus, similis is ex qui primum formo.

Cerno, inquam Eumenes, habitus atque ornamentum dux vester, qui non quisquam hostis impono ego, nam hic forem solatium ego; tu facio ego ex imperator captivus. Unus oro, ut volo ego morior inter tu; nam neque interest Antigonus, quemadmodum aut ubi cado. Si hic impetro, solvo tu jusjurandum.

Probitas noceo nemo; sed improbitas, etsi videor profum homo, sum perniciosus existimatio homo, qui omnis sapiens existimo plus quam pecunia; et sæpe sum perniciosus homo res et vita, qui stultus facio plus quam alius omnis; refert igitur omnis caveo et vito injustitia.

Deus irascor impius, et minor ille dirus supplicium; non quod odi, sed ut poenitet is peccatum, et sum felix in æternum in cœbe happy for ever in heaven. Do not they, therefore, deserve the punishment of eternal death, who value eternal life and happiness at nothing.

You are weary of the patrician, and we of the plebeian magistrates. What do you mean, I beseech you? You desired tribunes of the commons, we granted them; you desired the decemvirs, we suffered them to be made; you were weary of the decemvirs, we forced them to lay down their power.

Wicked men provoke God daily; but he is very merciful; therefore he pities them, and is ready to forgive them their sins, if they repent of them, and are ashamed of their folly, and be willing to obey those precepts which are prescribed to us in the gospel.

King Darius's mother, who till that day had not been weary of her life, when she heard that Alexander was dead, laid violent hands upon herself; not that she preferred an enemy before a son, but because she had experienced the duty of a son in him whom she had feared as an enemy.

Julian was a man of great eloquence, of a quick and most tenacious memory, liberal to his friends, as became so great a prince to be; he was greedy of glory; and not unlike Marcus Antoninus, whom he made it his business to imitate; he made war upon the Parthians, in which expedition I was likewise present.

We are allowed from reason and scripture to conclude, that part of the pleasure which happy minds shall enjoy in a future state, will arise from an enlarged contemplation of the divine wisdom in the government of the world; and from a discovery of the secret and amazing steps of Providence, from the beginning to the end of time.

It concerns subjects to obey the laws; and it is of great importance to the public, that all should follow peace, practise justice, and discharge their duty in that station in civil life which they hold in society.

Thou owest thy food, thy clothing, thy habitation, and every comfort and pleasure of life, to the labour of others; it concerns thee, therefore, to be a friend to mankind, as it is thy interest that men should be friendly to thee.

Ceres was ashamed of her fault, and greatly lamented the loss of her honour. She retired into the dark recesses of a cave, where she lay so concealed that none of the gods knew where she was, till Pan, the god of the woods, discovered her.

Robert Bruce addressed Sir William Wallace thus: What madness hath seized you? King Edward, against whom you carry on war, is a most powerful monarch; and though you should overcome him, the Scots will never

lum. Nonne, igitur, merentur poena æternus mors, qui æstimo æternus vita et felicitas nihil.

Tædet tu patricius, ego plebeius magistratus. Quis volo, obsecro tu? Concupio tribunus plebs, ego concedo; desidero decemviri, ego patior creari; tædet tu decemviri, cogo in abdicatio magistratus.

Improbis læsso Deus quotidie; sed sum clemens; itaque miseret is ille, et paratus sum condono is peccatum, si poenitet is ille, et pudet is stultitia, et volo obtempero lex qui condo ego in evangelium.

Rex Darius mater, qui in idies non tædet vita, cum audio Alexander morior, infero manus sui ipse; non quod præfero hostis filius, sed quod experior pietas filius in is qui timeo ut hostis.

Julianus sum vir ingens 6 facundia, promptus et tenax memoria, liberalis in amicis, ut decet tantus princeps sum; sum avidus gloria; et non absumilis Marcus Antoninus, qui æmuloz studeo; infero bellum Parthus, qui expeditio ego quoque intersum.

deliver up the government to you. Wallace answered thus: You use me ill, when you say that I aspire to the kingdom. I am not desirous of royal power; the honours of a kingdom neither agree to my fortune nor to my mind. It belongs to the nobles to defend their country. When I saw that our nobles had neglected their duty, I pitied my wretched countrymen, who are destitute of governors, and exposed to the cruelty of barbarous enemies. Our nobles prefer most scandalous slavery to honourable liberty. War is a terror to our nobles. Let them enjoy that fortune which they value so much. I will defend my country.

It becomes us to be kind and courteous to strangers, for we know not to what part of the world we ourselves may go.

If you would have God to hear your prayers, it behoves you to hear the petitions of the poor.

APPENDIX.

42. PASSIVE VERBS take after them an ablative of the agent or doer, with the preposition a, ab, or abs. VERBA PASSIVA post se habent ablativum agentis aut facientis, cum præpositione a, ab, vel abs.

The world is governed by God.

Mundus gubernatur a Deo.

Virtue is praised by all.

Virtus laudatur ab omnibus.

I am glad that my conduct is approved by you.

Gaudeo in eum factum abs te probari.

NOTE 1. The preposition is sometimes suppressed; as, Ovid. Deferor conjuge. Id. Calitur linigera turba. Senec. Contra Stertinius quo premebatur.

NOTE 2. Passive verbs, instead of the ablative with the preposition, sometimes take the dative; as, Virg. Neque cernitur ulli. Ter. Meditata mihi sunt incommoda. Ovid. Nulla laudetur mihi.

NOTE 3. A great many other verbs take also the ablative with a or ab; such as,

1. Verbs of RECEIVING; as, accipio, capio, sumo, mutuo; also, adipiscor, consequor, impetro, &c.; as, Cic. A majoribus morem accepimus.

2. Verbs of DISTANCE, DIFFERENCE, and DISSENSION; as, disso, differo, dissentio, dissideo, discrepo, discordo; as, Cic. Vides quantum distet a veritate.

3. Verbs of DESIRING, ENTREATING, and INQUIRING; as, peto, expeto, posco, percontor, scitor, sciscitor, rogo, oro, obsecro, precor, postulo, flagito, contendo, exigo, &c.; as, Cic. A te opem petimus.

4. Verbs of CESSATION; as, cesso, desisto, quiesco, requiesco, tempore; as, Liv. A præliis cessare.

5. Verbs of EXPECTING; as, expecto, spero; as, Buchan. Ab uno expectes quod a multis sperare nequeas.

6. Verbs of TAKING AWAY and REMOVING; as, aufero, rapio, surripio, furor, tollo; removeo, arceo, probibeo, pello, repello, propulso, revoco; also, contineo, cobibeo, refreno; also, defendo, munio, tego, tucor; also, desicio, desiseo, degenero, &c. To these add verbs compounded with a or ab; as, abigo, abstinco, amoveo, abduco, abrado, amitto, avello, avoco, &c.; Ter. Minas triginta ab illo abstuli.

7. Verbs of DISMISSING, BANISHING, and DISJOINING; as, dimitto, relego, disjungo, diavello, segrego, separo, &c.; as, Cæsar. Eum ab se dimittit.

8. Verbs of BUYING; as, emo, mercor, sanctor, conduco; as, V. Max. A piscatoribus justum emerat.

9. Many other verbs of different significations; as, carveo, declino, deflecto; dyfcedo, recedo; affero, do, reddo, fero, reporto; incipio, ordior; seruo, custodio, vindico; timeo, metuo, formido, &c.; as, Cic. Regem monuerunt, a veneno ut careret.

NOTE 4. Verbs of STRIVING; as, contendo, certo, bello, pugno; and JOINING TOGETHER; as, jungo, conjungo, concumbo, coeo, misceo; take the ablative with cum; as, Ovid. Mecum certasse feretur. Id. Contendite mecum. Cic. Bellare cum diis. Id. Salutem meam cum communi salute conjungere decrevi. Tac. Consilia cum illo non misceuerant.

NOTE 5. The verbs mereor, facio, fit, erit, futurum est, take the ablative with de, as, Bene vel male de aliquo mereri. Cic. Indicium de fide ejus. Tet. Quid de me fiet? &c.

NOTE 6. Verbs of PERCEIVING and KNOWING; as, intelligo, sentio, cognosco, conjicio, disco, percipio, colligo, audio, take the ablative with e or ex; as, Cic. Ex gestu tuo intelligo quid velis. Id. Ex tuis literis statum rerum cognovi. Id. Hoc ex illo audiui, &c.

NOTE 7. Passive IMPERSONALS are either passive absolutely; as, Quid agitur? statur. Cic. Ab hora tertia bibebatur, ludebatur, comedebatur. Or they take after them the case of their PERSONALS; as, Cic. Ut majoribus natu affurgatur, ut supplicum misceantur. Ovid. Nec mihi parcatur. Virg. Itur in sylvam. Liv. Pestilentia laboratum est.

NOTE 8. These six verbs, potest, capit, incipit, desinit, debet, and solet, when joined with impersonal verbs, become impersonal themselves; as, Quinct. Pervenire ad summa nisi ex principiis non potest. Just. Pigere eum facti capit. Cic. Singulis a Deo consuli et provideri solet. Id. Negat jucunde posse vivi, nisi cum virtute vivatur.

He is miserable, who neither loves any one, nor is himself beloved by any one.

The affairs of a good man are never neglected by God.

Do not trust to a man by whom thou hast been once deceived.

Carthage was destroyed by the famous captain Scipio Africanus.

Learning and virtue are sought by few, pleasure by many.

We are so formed by nature, that we do not seem made for sport and jest.

¶ For these achievements Codomannus is set over Armenia; and, after the death of king Ochus, is made king by the people for his former bravery. He waged war with Alexander the Great: at last, however, he was conquered by Alexander; and being slain by his own relations, he ended his life, together with the empire of the Persians.

Whilst these things are doing, he is acquainted that a plot was laid for him by Alexander the son-in-law of Antipater, who had been set over Macedonia; for which reason, fearing lest, if he should be slain, some tumult should arise in Mace-

Miser sum, qui neque diligo quisquam, nec ipse diligo ab ullis.

Res bonus vir nunquam negligo a Deus.

Ne fido homo a qui semel decipio.

Carthago deleo a celeberrimus dux Scipio Africanus.

Doctrina et virtus appeto a pauci, voluptas a plurimus.

Ita genero a natura, ut non videor factus ad ludus jocisque.

Ob hic decus Codomannus præficio Armenia; et, post mortis rex Ochus, constituo rex a populus propter pristinus virtus. Gero bellum cum Alexander Magnus: postremo, tamen, vinco ab Alexander; et occisus a suis, finio vita, pariter cum imperium Persa.

Dum hic ago, fio certior infidie paro sui ab Alexander gener Antipater, qui præpono Macedonia; ob qui causa, timens ne, si interficio, quis motus orior in Macedonia, habeo is in donia, he kept him in chains. After this he goes to the city Gordium, which is situated betwixt the greater and lesser Phrygia.

Whilst the Gauls plunder the ships, they are cut in pieces by the rowers and a part of the army, which had fled thither with their wives and children; and so great was the slaughter of the Gauls, that the fame of this victory procured Antigonus a peace, not only from the Gauls, but from all his neighbours.

Queen Theſſalonice, the lady of Caſſander, was ſlain by her ſon Antipater, though ſhe begged her life by his mother's breasts: the reaſon of which parricide was, that after the death of her husband, in the diviſion of the kingdom betwixt the brothers, ſhe ſeemed to have been more favourable to Alexander.

Pluto deſired of Jupiter, that Proſerpine might be given to him in marriage, by him and her mother Ceres. Jupiter denied that Ceres would ſuffer her daughter to live in hell; but he bids him ſteal her, whiſt ſhe gathered flowers upon mount Ætna, which is in Sicily. Afterwards Ceres obtained of Jupiter, that ſhe ſhould be with her ſometimes.

Perdiccas pretends to deſire the daughter of Antipater in marriage, that he might the more eaſily obtain of him recruits out of Macedonia; but Antipater perceived his cunning, and balked his hopes. After this a war broke out between Antigonus and Perdiccas, in which Perdiccas was worſted by Antigonus.

The poets ſay, that the firſt woman was made by Vulcan, and that every god gave her ſome preſent, whence ſhe was called Pandora. Pallas gave her wiſdom, Apollo the art of muſic, Mercury the art of eloquence, and Venus gave her beauty.

Acriſius, king of the Argives, ſhut up his daughter Danae in a ſtrong tower, and ſuffered none to enter into it; becauſe he had heard from the oracle, that he ſhould be killed by his grandſon. Jupiter turned himſelf into a ſhower of gold, and entered into the tower through the tiles. Thus Danae was got with child by the god. When Acriſius heard that his daughter had brought forth a ſon, he ordered her and the child to be put into a cheſt, and thrown into the ſea. The cheſt was found by a fiſherman, and given by him to Pilumnus king of the Rutilians, who married Danae. When Perſeus the ſon of Danae was grown up, he ſlew his grandfather Acriſius, and ſo fulfilled the oracle.

vinculum. Poſt hic peto urbs Gordium, qui poſitus ſum inter magnus et parvus Phrygia.

Dum Gallus diripio navis, trucidō remex et pars exercitus, qui confugio eo cum conjux et liberi; et tantus ſum cædes Gallus, ut opinio hic victoria præſto Antigonus pax, non tantum a Gallus, ſed ab omnis finitimus.

Regina Theſſalonice, uxor Caſſander, occido a filius Antipater, cum deprecor vita per uber maternus: cauſa qui parricidium ſum, quod poſt mors maritus, in diviſio regnum inter frater, videor propenſus Alexander.

Pluto peto a Jupiter, ut Proſerpina do fui in matrimonium, ab ille et mater Ceres. Jupiter nego Ceres patior filia ſuus vivo in tartarus; ſed jubeo is rapio is, dum lego flos in mons Ætna, qui ſum in Sicilia. Poſtea Ceres impetro a Jupiter, ut ſum ſuicum aliquando.

Perdiccas ſimulo peto filia Antipater in matrimonium, ut facile obrineo ab is ſupplementum ex Macedonia; ſed Antipater præſentio dolus, et fallo ſpes is. Poſt hic bellum orior inter Antigonus et Perdiccas, in qui Perdiccas ſupero ab Antigonus.

§ 3. The government of the infinitive, participles, gerunds, and supines.

RULE IX.

43. ONE verb governs another in the infinitive.

I desire to learn.

Thou art glad to be taught.

Mercury is said to have invented the harp.

§ 3. Regimen infinitivi, participiorum, gerundiorum, et supinorum.

REG. IX.

UNUM verbum regit aliud in infinitivo.

Cupio discere.

Gaudes doceri.

Mercurius dicitur invenisse lyram.

NOTE 1. The infinitive is frequently governed by adjectives or participles; as, Dignus legi, cupidus mori, indocilis pauperiem pati, avidi committere pugnam, audax omnia perpeti; cupiens cognoscere, metuens pollui, meritis relinqui, fruges consumere nati. And sometimes by substantives; as, Tempus abire, oratio scribere, signa dedi venisse Deum.

NOTE 2. The governing word is sometimes suppressed; as, Ter. Omnes mihi invidere, sc. ceperunt. Virg. Mene incepto desistere? sc. decet or par est. And to these phrases, videre est, animadvertere est, reperire est, &c. we may understand, facultas, potestas, copia, or the like.

NOTE 3. The infinitive itself is sometimes suppressed; as, Cic. Sacratum fidibus docuit, sc. canere. Sall. Ei provinciam Numidiam populus iussit, sc. dari.

NOTE 4. The infinitive is a kind of substantive noun, has adjectives sometimes joined with it, and occurs in all cases. In the nominative; as, Perf. Scire tuum nihil est, for scientia tua. Cic. Adulterare turpe est, for adulterium. Gen. Virg. Sedi cantare periti, for cantandi or cantus. Dat. Sall. Servire parati, for servituti. Acc. Hor. Da mihi fallere, for artem fallendi. Voc. O vivere nostrum, for vita nostra. Abl. Quin&. Hec demonstrasse contentus, for horum demonstratione facta.

I desire to know, thou art afraid to tell, he despises to be taught, we are forbid to prate, ye ought to study, they are ordered to write.

I will take care to avoid intemperance, thou oughtest to seek wisdom, he endeavours to perform his promise, we have resolved to hear the lesson, ye design to make verses, they seem to have done an injury, learn thou to lay aside pride.

Money cannot change nature, a soldier always rejoices to recount his dangers, a sailor often uses to relate his losses, Egnatius before this had resolved to kill Cæsar, the general ordered his men carefully to keep rank.

¶ He then recites his own services; how he had revenged the revolt of their allies, and quelled the Thessalians; how he had not only defended, but advanced the dignity of the Macedonians; for Cupio scire, vereor dico, sperno doceo, veto garrio, debeo studio, jabeo scribo.

Curo vito intemperantia, debeo expeto sapientia, conor præsto promissum, statuo audio prælectio, volo compono versus, video facio injuria, discoco depono supercilium.

Pecunia nescio muto natura, miles semper gaudeo memoro periculum, nauta sæpe soleo refero damnum, Egnatius antea statuo interim Cæsar, dux jubeo miles sedulo servo ordo.

Deinde commemoro suus beneficium; ut vindico defectio socius, et compesco Thessalus; ut non tantum defendo, verum angeo dignitas Macedo; qui & which if they were sorry, he said he laid down his authority, and restored them their present; they might seek a king whom they could govern.

There were besides a great many accomplices of this design, whom the hope of power encouraged, more than want or any necessity. Most of the youth, but especially of the nobility, favoured the designs of Catiline; they chose war rather than peace, who might have lived in peace quietly and splendidly.

The minutest plant or animal, if attentively examined, affords a thousand wonders, and obliges us to admire and adore that omnipotent hand which created ourselves, as well as the object we admire.

So great was the impudence of the giants, that they strove to turn Jupiter out of heaven; and when they began to fight against the gods, they heaped up mountains upon mountains, and from thence darted trees set on fire. They hurled also massy stones and solid rocks, some of which, falling upon the earth again, became mountains; others fell into the sea, and became islands.

is poenitet, dico sui depono imperium, et reddo ille munus suus; ipse quero rex qui impetro.

Sum præterea complures participes hiece consilium, qui spes dominatio hortor, magis quam inopia aut alius necessitudo. Plerique juvenis, sed præsertim nobilis, faveo inceptum Catilina; malo bellum quam pax, qui licet vivo in otium molliter et magnifice.

GERUNDS.

44. THE gerund in DUM of the nominative case, with the verb est, governs the dative.

I must live well.

All must die.

NOTE 1. This gerund always imports necessity or obligation, and the dative after it is the person on whom the necessity or obligation lies.

NOTE 2. The dative is often suppressed; as, Si pereundum sit; sc. mibi, tibi, illi, nobis, vobis, illis, &c.

NOTE 3. This gerund, when it comes after a verb in the same clause, passes into the accusative, and with the infinitive esse, expressed or understood, governs the dative; as, Cic. Quotidie meditare resistendum esse iracundia. Cæsar. Quibus rebus quam maturissime occurrendum (esse) putabat.

45. The gerund in DI is governed by substantives or adjectives.

Time of reading.

Desirous to learn.

The substantives are such as, "amor, causa, gratia, studium, tempus, occasio, ars, facultas, otium, cupido, voluntas, consuetudo," &c.

GERUNDIA.

GERUNDIUM in DUM nominativi casus, cum verbo est, regit dativum.

Vivendum est mihi recte.

Moriendum est omnibus.

2. Gerundium in DI regitur a substantivis vel adjectivis.

Tempus legendi.

Cupidus discendi.

The adjectives are such as, "peritus imperitus, cupidus, infuetus, certus, rudis," and others belonging to No. 14.

NOTE 1. The infinitive is sometimes used for the gerund in DI, especially by the poets; as, Tempus abire, occasio scribere, peritus cantare; instead of abundandi, scribendi, cantandi.

NOTE 2. The governing substantive is sometimes suppressed; as, Cic. Cum haberem in animo navigandi, sc. propositum. Plaut. Huic ducendi interea abscesserit, sc. voluntas.

46. The gerund in DO of the dative case is governed by adjectives signifying usefulness or fitness.

Paper useful for writing.
Iron fit for beating.

These adjectives are such as, "utilis, inutilis, aptus, inaptus, par, habilis, idoneus, accommodatus, bonus, communis," &c.

NOTE 1. The adjective is sometimes suppressed; as, Cic. Cum solvendo civitates non essent, sc. pares vel habiles. Plin. Alexandrina ficus non sunt vescendo, sc. idoneæ vel utiles.

NOTE 2. This gerund is sometimes governed by a verb; as, Plaut. Epidicum querendo operam dabo. Cic. Cum omnes scribendo adessent. Liv. Is censendo fuit factus est.

47. The gerund in DUM of the accusative case is governed by the prepositions ad or inter, and sometimes by ante, circa, or ob.

Ready to hear.
Attentive in time of teaching.
A reward for teaching.

3. Gerundium in DO dativi casus regitur ab adjectivis utilitatem vel aptitudinem significantibus.

Charta utilis scribendo.
Ferrum habile tundendo.

4. Gerundium in DUM accusativi casus regitur a præpositionibus ad vel inter, et interdum ab ante, circa, vel ob.

Promptus ad audiendum.
Attentus inter docendum.
Merces ob docendum.

NOTE 1. This gerund is sometimes governed by the verb habeo; as, Plin. Quum eritendum haberemus.

NOTE 2. It frequently supplies the place of the accusative before the infinitive esse or fuisse, as was already observed in Note 3. on No. 44.

48. The gerund in DO of the ablative case is governed by the prepositions a, ab, de, e, ex, or in; but if the cause or manner of a thing be signified, the preposition is generally suppressed.

5. Gerundium in DO ablativi casus regitur a præpositionibus a, ab, de, e, ex, vel in; si vero rei causa vel modus significetur, præpositio fere omititur.

Punishment frightens from sinning.

Pleasure is found in learning.

I am weary with walking.

A wife by obeying governs.

Pœna a peccando absterret.

Voluptas capitur ex discendo.

Defectus sum ambulando.

Uxor parendo imperat.

NOTE 1. This gerund is sometimes, though rarely, governed by pro or cum; as, Plaut. Pro vapulando abs te mercedem petam. Quint. Ratio recte scribendi iuncta cum loquendo est.

NOTE 2. Gerunds are substantive nouns, and consequently subject to the same rules of construction with them.

49. Gerunds of verbs governing the accusative, are elegantly turned into the gerundives, or participles in DUS, which agree with their substantives in gender, number, and case.

6. Gerundia verborum accusativum, regentium, vertuntur eleganter in gerundiva, seu participia in DUS, quæ cum suis substantivis in genere, numero, et casu, concordant.

The affair must be managed.

The time of managing the affair.

Fit for managing the affair.

To manage the affair.

In managing the affair.

{ Curandum est rem.

{ Curanda est res.

{ Tempus curandi rem.

{ Tempus curandæ rei.

{ Idoneus curando rem.

{ Idoneus curandæ rei.

{ Ad curandum rem.

{ Ad curandam rem.

{ In curando rem.

{ In curanda re.

To these may be added the gerunds of “utor, abutor, fruor, fungor, and potior:” as, Cic. “Ad vitam utendam.” Plin. “In fruendis voluptatibus.” Cic. “In munere fungendo.” Sall. “Urbis potiundæ cupido cum invasit.”

NOTE 1. The meaning of the rule is, that the gerunds of active verbs govern the accusative, as will be more fully taught in No. 54. following; but the same sense is more usually and more elegantly expressed by the gerundive joined with the substantive which the gerund governs. And here observe, that the gerundive, with its substantive, are always put in the case of the gerund.

NOTE 2. In the plural we likewise say, curanda sunt res, idoneus curandis rebus, ad curandas res, and in curandis rebus, rather than curandum est res, idoneus curando res, ad curandum res, in curando res; but tempus curandarum rerum in the genitive, on account of its harsh sound, is seldom used; tempus curandi res is more usual and more ornate.

NOTE 3. Though the gerunds of active verbs have generally an active signification; yet sometimes they seem to be used in a passive sense; as, Just. Athenas erudiendi gratia missus, i. e. ut erudiretur. Sall. Cum ipse ad imperandum Tifudium vocaretur, i. e. ut ipse imperaretur. Vell. Ut sives ad censendum in Italiam revocaverint, i. e. ut censeretur; &c.

SUPINES.

* 50. THE supine in UM is put after a verb of motion.

He hath gone to walk.
They come to see.

NOTE 1. This supine is sometimes put after a participle; as, Hor. Spectatum admittit, risum teneatis amici.

NOTE 2. The supine in UM is a substantive noun in the accusative of the fourth declension, and governed by ad or in understood, or sometimes expressed; as, Var. Non omnis tempestas apes ad passum prodire longius patitur. Lucr. In commutatum veniunt.

NOTE 3. This supine with the verb iri, constitutes the future of the infinitive passive, and the supine being a substantive noun, never varies its termination; for we do not say, illos occisos iri, but illos occisum iri.

NOTE 4. An expression by this supine may be varied several ways. Thus, instead of Venit oratum opem, we may say, 1. Venit ut oret opem. 2. Venit opem oranda causa. 3. Venit ad orandum opem. 4. Venit opem oraturus. 5. Venit opem orandi causa. 6. Venit ad orandam opem. 7. Venit opi oranda. 8. Venit qui opem oret. 9. Venit opem orare. But of these varieties the first four are usual and elegant; the next four less ornate and more rare; and the last seldom used but by poets.

* 51. The supine in U is put after an adjective noun.

Easy to tell, or to be told.
Dreadful to be mentioned.

NOTE 1. It is also put after these substantives, fas, nefas, opus; as, Cic. Fas dictu. Id. Nefas dictu. Id. Quod scitu opus est. It is put also after verbs signifying motion from a place; as, Plant. Nunc obsonatu redeo. Cato, Primum cubitu surgat.

NOTE 2. This supine is a substantive noun in the ablative of the fourth declension, and governed by in, e, or ex, understood, or sometimes expressed; as, Quint. In receptu difficilis. Virg. E pastu vitulas ad tecta reducit.

NOTE 3. An expression by this supine may be varied several ways. Thus, instead of Utile cognitu, we may say, 1. Cognosci utile. 2. Ad cognoscendum utile. 3. Cognitione utile.

44. I must ride, but you must walk.
We must fight stoutly with our vices.

You ought to beware, lest you fall into a distemper.

He must fly, but they must fight, that they may be safe.

45. The lust of governing is more violent than all the other passions.

SUPINA.

1. SUPINUM in UM ponitur post verbum motus.

Abiit deambulatum.
Spectatum veniunt.

2. Supinum in U ponitur post nomen adjectivum.

Facile dictu.
Horrendum relatu.

Equitandum sum ego, sed ambulandum sum tu.

Pugnandum sum ego fortiter cum vitium poster.

Cavendum sum tu, ne incido in morbus.

Fugiendum sum is, at dimicandum sum ille, ut sum salvus.

Cupido dominandum sum flagrans cunctis aliis affectus.

The gods have given you riches, and the art of enjoying them.

In a new kind of war new methods of carrying on the war are necessary.

Dionysius obliged the physicians to give his father a sleepy dose, lest Dion should have an opportunity of tampering with him.

This man is courageous in danger, prudent in his conduct, and skilled in carrying on a war.

He acknowledges himself to be unskilled in pleading, but not unacquainted with war.

A great many young men take pleasure in horses and dogs, and are fond of hunting.

46. Bituminous and nitrous water is good to be drunk.

Nature hath given the frogs legs fit for swimming.

This is common to studying and writing, that good health contributes a great deal to both.

47. Wisdom provides things to us for living happily.

The Parthians are more disposed to act than to speak.

As we walk we will talk together about the great works of God.

No body ought to receive a reward for accusing.

48. Lazy boys are soon discouraged from learning.

No question is now made about living well.

Greater glory is acquired by defending than by accusing.

The spirit of the Cantabrians was obstinate in rebelling.

The dog by barking discovered the thieves.

Scipio reformed the foldiers by exercising rather than by punishing.

Cæsar, by giving, by relieving, and forgiving, acquired great glory.

49. Friends ought to be admonished and chid, and that ought to be taken kindly which is done with a good intention.

Why do you hesitate? says he; or what place of trying our courage do you expect? This day shall determine concerning our disputes.

Deus do tu divitiarum, atque fructuum.

In novum genus bellum novus ratio bellandum sum necessarius.

Dionysius cogo medicus do pater sopor, ne Dion sum potestas agendum cum is.

Hic vir sum fortis ad periculum, prudens ad consilium, et peritus belligerandum.

Fateor sui sum rudis dicendum, at non ignarus bellum.

Plurimus adolescens gaudeo equis et canis, et sum studiosus venandum.

Bituminatus et nitrosus aqua sum, utilis bibendum.

Natura do rana crus aptus natandum.

Ille sum communis ediscendum scribendumque, quod bonus valetudo confero plurimum uterque.

Sapientia comparo res ego ad beate vivendum.

Parthi sum promptus ad faciendum quam ad dicendum.

Inter ambulandum confabulos de magnus opus Deus.

Nemo debeo accipio præmium ob accusandum.

Ignavus puer cito deterreo a discendum.

Nullus quaestio jam moveo de bene vivendum.

Uber gloria comparo ex defendendum quam ex accusandum.

Animus Cantabrus sum pertinax in rebellandum.

Canis latrandum prodo fur.

Scipio corripio miles exercendum magis quam puniendum.

Cæsar, dandum, sublevandum, et ignoscendum, magnus gloria adipiscor.

Amicus sum monendus et oburgandus, et is sum accipiendus amice qui benevole fio.

Quid dubito? inquam; aut quis locus probandus virtus expecto? Hic dies judico de nostro controversia.

Old oil is said to be good for clearing ivory from rottenness.

Claudius was a modest man, tenacious of what was just, and fit for managing the commonwealth.

The boy is fit for bearing the burden ; but this place is proper for spreading the nets.

All the cities of Greece contributed money for equipping a fleet, and raising an army.

Men use care in purchasing a horse, and are negligent in choosing friends.

50. This man came to Cæsar to entreat that he would pardon him.

Mæcenas went to diversion, I and Virgil went to bed.

51. A true friend is a thing hard to be found.

Let nothing filthy to be spoken or to be seen touch those doors within which there is a child.

¶ A general must endeavour to accustom his soldiers to observe the tricks, plots, and stratagems of the enemy, and what is proper to pursue, and what to avoid.

After a long series of ages, the bird phoenix came into Egypt, and furnished an occasion to the most learned of the natives and Greeks of making speculations on that prodigy.

In that battle the general was wounded ; who, when he saw his men slaughtered, demanded by a crier the bodies of the slain for burial ; for this among the Greeks is a sign of the victory's being yielded up : with which confession the Thebans being content, gave the signal of giving quarter.

While each of the states of Greece are ambitious of domineering, they were all ruined ; for Philip king of Macedonia plotted against their common liberty ; he fomented the quarrels of the states, gave assistance to the weaker, and at last reduced all, the conquerors and conquered alike, under his power.

The Carthaginians attempted to renew the war, and excited the Sardinians, who by an article of the peace were obliged to be subject to the Romans, to rebel : an embassy, however, of the Carthaginians came to Rome, and obtained peace.

Vetus oleum dico sum utilis vindicandus ebur a caries.

Claudius sum vir modestus, tenax justum, et idoneus gerendus respublica.

Puer sum par ferendus onus ; sed hic locus sum habilis pandendus rete.

Omnis civitas Græcia do pecunia ad ædificandus classis, et comparandus exercitus.

Homo adhibeo cura in parandus equus, et sum negligens in diligendus amicus.

Hic homo venio ad Cæsar oratum ut ignosco sui.

Mæcenas eo lulum, ego Virgiliusque eo dormitum.

Verus amicus sum res difficilis inventum.

Nil fœdus dictu visuve tango hic limen intra qui puer sum.

Laberandum sum dux ut consursacio miles cognosco dolus, insidie, et artificium hostis, et quis convenit sequor, quisque vito.

Post longus ambitus seculum, avis phoenix venio in Ægyptus, præbeoque materies doctus indigena et Græcis differendum super is miraculum.

In is prælium dux vulnero ; qui, cum video suus cædo, posco per præco corpus interfectus ad sepultura ; hic enim apud Græcus sum signum victoria traditus : qui confessio Thebanus contentus, do signum parcendum.

Dum singulas civitas Græcia sum cupidus dominandum, omnis pereco ; nam Philippus rex Macedonia insidior communis libertas ; alio contentio civitas, ferro auxilium inferus, et tandem redigo omnia, victor et victus pariter, sub suis potestas.

Carthaginiensis tento reparo bellum, et impello Sardinienis, qui ex conditio pax debeo parco Romanus, ad rebellandum : legatio, tamen, Carthaginiensis ad Roma venio, et pax impetro.

How desperately the fight was maintained the event showed; none of the enemies survived the battle. The place that every one had received in fighting, that he covered with his body. Catiline was found a great way from his men amongst the carcases of the enemies.

Eumenes being thus received by the Argyraspides, by degrees assumes the command; first by admonishing, and then by gently correcting, he brought it to pass, that nothing could be done in the camp without him.

Clearchus thought the disagreement of the people an opportunity of seizing the government; wherefore he confers first with Mithridates, the enemy of his countrymen, and promises to betray the city to him; but afterwards he turned the plot which he had formed against his countrymen upon Mithridates himself. But faith ought to be kept.

All the sons of Hanno, not only those that appeared fit for assuming the government, but the rest also, and all his relations, are delivered up to punishment; that no one of so wicked a family might be left, either to imitate his villany, or to revenge his death.

The Phocensians fly to arms; but there was neither leisure to prepare for war, nor time to get together auxiliaries; they are slaughtered, therefore, every where, and carried off. The miserable people had one comfort, that, as Philip had cheated his allies of their part of the plunder, they saw none of their goods in the hands of their enemies.

When he came to the administration of the government, he did not think so much of governing as of increasing his kingdom: wherefore he subdued the Scythians, till that time invincible, who had cut off Sopyrion, a general of Alexander the Great, and had slain Cyrus, king of the Persians, with two hundred thousand.

Lyfander, when he found by his scouts, that the Athenians were gone ashore to plunder, and that the ships were left almost empty, did not let slip the opportunity of doing his business, and so put an end to the whole war.

Whilst these things are doing in E-

Quam atrociter dimico, exitus doceo; nemo hostis supersum bellum. Qui locus quis in pugnandum capio, in corpus tego. Catilina longe a sum inter hostis cadaver reperio.

Eumenes ita receptus ab Argyraspidæ, paulatim usurpo imperium; primum monendum, mox blande corrigendum, efficio, ut nihil possum ago in castra sine ille.

Clearchus existimo dissensio populus occasio invadendus tyrannis; itaque colloquor primo cum Mithridates, civis suus hostis, et promitto prodo urbs is; postea autem verto insidiæ qui civis paro in ipse Mithridates. Sed fides sum servandus.

Omnis filius Hanno, non tantum is qui video habilis capeffendus respublica, sed cæter quoque, omnisque cognatus, trado supplicium; ne quisquam ex tam nefarius domus supersum, aut ad imitandus scelus, aut ad ulciscendus mors.

Phocensis ad arma confugio; sed neque sum spatium instruendus bellum, neque tempus ad contrahendus auxilium; cædo, igitur, passim, rapioque. Unus solatium miser sum, quod, cum Philippus frando, socius portio præda, video nihil res suus apud inimicus.

Cum venio ad administratio regnum, non tam cogito de regendum quam de augendus regnum: itaque perdomo Scythæ, usque ad id tempus invictus, qui deleo Sopyrio, dux Alexander Magnus, et trucidio Cyrus, rex Persia, cum ducenti mille.

Lyfander, cum per speculator comperio, Atheniensis exeo prædatum, navisque relictus sum pene inanis, tempus gerendus res non dimitto, atque ita totus bellum deleo.

Dum hic in Ægyptus gero, gypt, king Dejoratus comes to Demetrius, to entreat that he would not suffer the lesser Armenia, his kingdom, to be laid waste by Pharnaces.

Among the ancient Romans some matron of approved and well known morals was made choice of, to whom was committed all the children of the family, in whose presence it was neither allowable to speak what appeared shameful to be said, nor to do what was indecent to be done.

When the enemies saw Alexander alone, they flock together from all quarters; nor did he less courageously resist, and alone fight against so many thousands. It is incredible to be said, that not the multitude of the enemies, nor the vast number of weapons, nor so great a shout of those that attacked him should fright him, that he alone should slaughter and put to flight so many thousands.

The last and dreadful day will soon approach, when we must all appear before our Judge. What consternation will then seize the wicked! That mighty hand, which once opened the windows of heaven, and broke up the fountains of the great deep, will then unlock all the magazines of fire, and pour a second deluge on the earth. The everlasting mountains will then melt like the snow which covers their summits, and all nature will be laid in ashes.

Ceres is the goddess of fruits, she first taught the art of ploughing and sowing. Before her time the earth lay rough and uncultivated, covered with briars and full of weeds, and the people lived on acorns.

How wonderful are the birds! A passage through the air, which has been denied to other animals, is open to them. They are capable of soaring up to the clouds; they suspend their bodies and continue motionless in an element lighter than themselves. They remount, and then precipitate themselves to the earth like a descending stone.

Virgil describes the seasons, and gives the signs of the weather proper for sowing, planting, grafting, and reaping.

When men are freed from the business and cares of life, they are generally more inclined to hear and to learn; but they mistake when they consider the knowledge of abstruse and strange things as necessary to living happily.

When Ceres was weary with travelling, and thirsty, she came to a cottage, and begged a little water of an old woman that lived there: The old woman not only gave her water, but also barley broth; which, when the goddess supped up greedily, the woman's son Stello, a saucy boy, mocked her. Ceres being thus provoked, threw some of the broth into the boy's face, and metamorphosed him into an evel.

A good man enjoyeth the tranquillity of his own breast, and rejoiceth in the happiness and prosperity of his neighbour; he openeth not his ear unto slander; the faults and failings of men give a pain to his heart. His desire is to do good; and in removing the oppression of others, he relievet himself.

rex Dejoratus ad Demetrius venio, oratum ne patior Armeniam minor, regnum suum, vasto a Pharnaces.

Apud vetus Romanus aliquis matrona probatus spectatusque 6 mos eligo, qui committo omnis soboles familia, coram qui neque fas sum dico qui video turpis dictu, neque facio qui sum inhonestus factu.

Cum hostis conspicio Alexander solus, undique concurro; nec minus constanter resisto, et unus prelior adversus tot mille. Sum incredibilis dictu, ut non multitudo hostis, non vis magnus telum, non tantus clamor lacerans terreo, ut solus cædo ac fugo tot mille.

Here is the place whither we are come to bathe, you may walk along the side of the river, I with my maid will repair to the grove, to enjoy the cool shade.

The poets tell many stories hard to be believed: They say, that when Prometheus stole fire from heaven, Jupiter was incensed, and sent Pandora to Prometheus with a sealed box; but Prometheus would not receive it. Jupiter sent her again with the same box to the wife of Epimetheus, the brother of Prometheus; and she being curious, as is natural to her sex, opened it, whereupon all sorts of diseases and evils, with which it was filled, flew out amongst mankind, and have infested them ever since.

RULE X.

52. PARTICIPLES, gerunds, and supines, govern the case of their own verbs.

Loving virtue.
Wanting guile.
Having got riches.
Having forgot your own affairs.
About to write a letter.
Going to accuse him of theft.
Fond of reading books.
We must improve time.
They came to complain of injuries.
I shall go to serve the Grecian dames.

REG. X.

PARTICIPIA, gerundia, et supina, regunt casum suorum verborum.

Amans virtutem.
Carens fraude.
Nactus divitias.
Oblitus rerum tuarum.
Scripturus literas.
Accusaturus eum furti.
Cupidus legendi libros.
Utendum est ætate.
Venerunt questum injurias.
Gravis servitium matribus ibo.

NOTE 1. The participle in DUS governs the dative by No. 17. And the supine in U has no case after it.

NOTE 2. Participles, gerunds, and supines, partake both of the nature of a noun and of a verb; and accordingly admit of a twofold construction. In the first respect, participles are construed as other adjectives, and the gerunds and supines, like other substantive nouns; but as they partake of the nature of a verb, they govern the case of the verbs from whence they come.

NOTE 3. VERBAL nouns, as well substantives as adjectives, sometimes govern the case of their verbs; as, Cic. Justitia est obtemperatio scriptis legibus. Sall. Insidia consuli non procedebant. Ovid. Ignis aqua pugnat. Just. Gratulabundus patriæ. Gell. Populabundus agros. Liv. Pitabundus castra hostium.

NOTE 4. Exosus, perosus, always, and pertusus often, govern the accusative; as, Ovid. Tedas exosa jugales. Liv. Plebs consulum nomen perosa. Suet. Pertusus ignoviam suam. But pertusus sometimes takes the genitive; as, Tac. Lentitudinis eorum pertusa.

NOTE 5. The gerund in DI, in imitation of substantive nouns, instead of the accusative, sometimes governs the genitive plural; as, Plaut. Nominandi istorum erit copia. Cic. Facultas agrorum condenandi.

NOTE 6. The verbs do, reddo, volo, curo, facio, habeo, with a participle perfect in the accusative, are often used by way of circumlocution, instead of the verb of the participle; as, Ter. Effugium dabo, i. e. efficiam. Id. Inventas reddam, i. e. cas inveniæ. Id. Vos etates volo, i. e. vos eris. Id. Me missum face, i. e. me mitte.

NOTE 7. The verbs curo, habeo, mando, loco, conduco, do, tribuo, accipio, mitto, relinquo, and some others, instead of the infinitive or subjunctive, are elegantly construed with the participle in DUS, joined with a substantive; as, Cic. Fumus ei amplum faciendum curavi; instead of feri, or ut fieret. Id. Demus nos philosophia excolendos, &c.

The Asiatics, remembering the dignity of Beronice's father, and pitying her hard fortune, sent aid.

Perseus, forgetting his father's fortune, bade his soldiers remember the old glory of Alexander.

Junius Silanus, being asked his opinion concerning those that were detained in prison, voted that punishment ought to be inflicted.

Pausanias too, the other general of the Lacedæmonians, being accused of treachery, went into banishment.

Good magistrates, promoting the public interest, observing the laws, and favouring virtue, are worthy of honour.

Alexander, king of Egypt, dreading the cruelty of his mother, and preferring a secure and a safe life before a kingdom, left her.

Darius went about encouraging his men, and putting them in mind of the ancient glory of the Persians, and of the perpetual possession of empire given him by the gods.

Having got Egypt without any contest, he goes into Libya, designing to visit the temple of Jupiter Hammon, and consult him concerning the event of the war.

Boys are not to be glutted with meat; for we cannot use our reason well, being filled with much meat and drink.

Many men abounding in gold, and flowing in wealth, cannot deliver their minds from cares; no possession, therefore, is to be valued more than virtue.

Tiberius seldom used the Greek language, and abstained from it chiefly in the senate, inasmuch that, being about to mention the word monopolium, he asked pardon, because he was obliged to make use of a foreign word.

Sylla for a long time so behaved himself, that he seemed to have no thought of setting up for the consulship.

There will be no other more season-

Asiatici, recordans 4 dignitas pater Beronice, et misertus is indignus fortuna, mitto auxilium.

Perseus, oblitus pater fortuna, jubeo suos miles reminiscor vetus gloria Alexander.

Junius Silanus, rogatus sententia de hic qui in custodia teneo, decerno supplicium sum sumendus.

Pausanias quoque, alter dux Lacedæmonius, accusatus proditio, abeo in exilium.

Bonnis magistratus, serviens communis utilitas, parens lex, et favens virtus, sum dignus honor.

Alexander, rex Ægyptus, timens crudelitas mater, et antepōnens securus et tutus vita regnum, relinquo is.

Darius circumeo hortans suos, et admonens is vetus gloria Persa, et perpetuus possessio imperium datus sui a deus.

Potitus Ægyptus sine certamen, pergo in Libya, visurus templum Jupiter Hammon, et consulturus is de eventus bellum.

Puer non sum implendus cibo; non enim possum utor mens recte, completus multus cibo et potio.

Multus homo abundans aurum, et circumfluens divitiarum, non possum libero animus cura; nullus possessio, igitur, sum plus estimandus quam virtus.

Tiberius raro utor Græcis sermo, abstinereque maxime in senatus, adeo quidem ut, nominaturus vox monopolium, postulo venia, quod sui utendum sum verbum peregrinum.

Sylla diu ita sui gero, ut habeo nullus cogitatio petendum consulatus.

Non sum alius opportunus able time of delivering ourselves from the dread of the Carthaginians than now, whilst they are weak and needy.

After this the Carthaginians sent generals into Sicily, to prosecute the remains of the war, with whom Agathocles made a peace.

It would be tedious to recount what Annibal has done against us and our armies, by plundering our cities, and killing our fellow-soldiers.

The Bituriges sent deputies to Cæsar to complain of injuries, and to beg assistance against the Carnutes.

Timoleon took Mamercus, the Italian general, a warlike man, and of great power, who had come into Sicily to assist the tyrants.

¶ All the soldiers of Alexander, forgetting their wives and children, looked upon the Persian gold, and the riches of all the East, as their plunder; nor did they talk of wars and dangers, but the riches which they hoped to obtain.

Lyſimachus being wont to hear Calliclhenes, and receive precepts of virtue from him, pitying so great a man suffering the punishment, not of any crime, but his freedom, gave him poison for a remedy of his misery; which Alexander took so ill, that he ordered him to be delivered to a very fierce lion.

The conditions of peace offered to Antiochus, king of Asia, were these: That Asia should be the Romans; that he should have the kingdom of Syria; that he should deliver up all his ships, prisoners, and deserters, and restore the Romans the whole charge of the war.

God, though angry with sin, invites sinners to repentance: he offers them eternal happiness in heaven; but they despise his mercy, and hearken to the devil, who endeavours to tempt them to wickedness. They repent of their sins when it is too late, and their repentance cannot profit them, that is, when they suffer the punishment due to their folly.

Antonius was a man of an illustrious family, but not very ancient, and who deservedly may be compared with Numa; he was cruel to no body, kind to all, seeking out the most just men to temptus liberandum ego metus Carthaginensis quam nunc, dum sum infirmus et egenus.

Post hic Pœni mitto dux in Sicilia, ad persequendum reliquæ bellum, cum qui Agathocles pax facio.

Longus sum recensco, qui Annibal patro in ego exercitusque noster, populandum urbs, et interficiendum commilito.

Bituriges mitto legatus ad Cæsar questum de injuria, et petitum auxilium contra Carnutes.

Timoleon capio Mamercus, italicus dux, homo bellicosus et potens, qui venio in Sicilia adjutum tyrannus.

Omnis miles Alexander, oblitus conjux et liberi, duco Persicus aurum, et opis totus Oriens, ut suus præda; nec memini bellum et periculum, sed divitiæ qui spero obtineo.

Lyſimachus solitus audio Calliclhenes, et accipio præceptum virtus ab is, misertus tantus vir pendens pœna, non culpa, sed libertas, do is venenum in remedium calamitas; qui Alexander fero tam ægre, ut jubeo is trade ferox leo.

Conditio pax oblatus Antiochus, rex Asia, sum hic: Ut Asia sum Romanus; ut ille habeo regnum Syria; ut trade universus navis, captivus, et transfuga, et restituo totus sumptus bellum Romanus.

Deus, licet iratus peccatum, invito peccator ad penitentia: offero ille æternus felicitas in cœlum; sed contemno is misericordia, et pareo diabolus, qui conor pellicio is ad scelus. Penitet is peccatum quando sum fero, et penitentia suus non possum profum is, is sum, cum do pœna debitus stultitia suus.

Antonius sum vir clarus 6 genus, sed non admodum vetus, et qui merito confero Numa; sum acerbus nullus, benignus cunctus, quærens nullus ad administrandum manage the government, giving honour to the good, detesting the wicked, no less venerable than terrible to kings; he was called pious, on account of his clemency.

It was a thing worth the sight, to see Xerxes lurking in a small vessel, whom a little before the whole sea hardly contained; wanting likewise the attendance of servants; whose army, by reason of their number, were burdensome to the earth.

Epaminondas was modest, prudent, steady, wisely using the times, skilled in war, of a great spirit, a lover of truth, merciful, not only bearing with the injuries of the people, but his friends too; he was exercised very much in running and wrestling, and employed a great deal of his application in arms.

Philip sends deputies to Atheas, king of the Scythians, desiring a part of the expence of the siege. Atheas, blaming the rigour of the climate, and the barrenness of the land, which did not enrich the Scythians with wealth, replied, That he had no riches wherewith he might satisfy so great a king, and that he thought it more scandalous to do but a little, than to refuse the whole.

Alexander, fond of high titles, ordered himself to be adored. The most violent among the recusants was Callisthenes, which thing brought ruin on him, and on many of the great men of Macedonia; for they were all put to death, under pretence of a plot. Nevertheless, the custom of saluting their king was retained by the Macedonians.

Many cities of Greece came to complain of the injuries of Philip, king of Macedonia; but such a dispute arose in the senate betwixt Demetrius, Philip's son, whom his father had sent to satisfy the senate, and the deputies of the cities, that, to sooth their minds, and to compose the differences, there was need of threats.

They do not believe there are any gods, and he thinks they are to be saved, to avoid the odium of gods and men. But I think the gods have reduced the Carthaginians to this condition, that respublica, habens honor bonus, detestans improbus, non minus venerabilis quam terribilis rex; pius propter clementia dico.

Sum res dignus spectaculum, video Xerxes latens in exiguis navigium, qui paulo ante vix omnis æquor capio; carens etiam ministerium servus; qui exercitus, propter multitudo, sum gravis terra.

Epaminondas sum modestus, prudens, gravis, sapienter utens tempus, peritus bellum, magnus 6 animus, diligens veritas, clemens, non solum ferens injuria populus, sed etiam amicus; exerceo plurimum currendum et luctandum, et consumo plurimum studium in arma.

Philippus mitto legatus ad Atheas, rex Scythia, petens portio impensa obsidio. Atheas, causatus inclementia cælum, et sterilitas terra, qui non ditto Scythia patrimonium, respondeo, Nullus fui opis sum qui expleo tantus rex, et puto turpis defungor parvus, quam abnuo totus.

Alexander, gaudens magnus titulus, jubeo fui adoro. Acer inter recusans sum Callisthenes, qui sum exitium ille, et multus princeps Macedonia; nam omnis interficio, sub species insidiæ. Tamen mos salutandum rex retinco a Macedo.

Multus civitas Græcia venio questum de injuria Philippus, rex Macedonia; sed tantus disceptatio orior in senatus inter Demetrius, Philippus filius, qui pater mitto ad satisfaciendum senatus, et legatus civitas, ut, ad mitigandus animus, et ad componendus lis, opus sum minz.

Non credo sum deus, et ille censeo is sum servandus, ad vitandus invidia deus homoque. At ego puto deus fodigo Peruis in hic status, ut luo pena impi-they may suffer the punishment of their impiety; who, by breaking the treaties made with us in Sicily, Spain, Italy, and Africa, have brought upon us the heaviest calamities.

When both the prayers and the threats of the deputies were slighted, they came armed to the city; there they call gods and men to witness, that they came not to force, but to recover their country; and would show their countrymen, that not their courage, but fortune, had failed them in their former war.

The Helvetii by this time had carried their forces through the straits and the territories of the Sequani, and had come into the dominions of the Ædui, and were ravaging their country; the Ædui, as they were not able to defend themselves and their possessions against them, sent deputies to Cæsar to beg assistance.

Demetrius compares prosperity to the indulgence of a fond mother, which often ruins the child; but he compares the affection of the Divine Being to that of a wise father, who would have his sons to labour, to feel disappointment and pain, that they may gather strength, and improve their fortitude. There is not on earth, says he, a spectacle more worthy the regard of a Creator intent on his works, than a brave man superior to his sufferings; it must be a pleasure to Jupiter himself to look down from heaven, and see Cato, amidst the ruins of his country, preserving his integrity.

Bacchus is said to have taught the art of planting the vine, of making honey, and tilling the ground; but the ass of Nauplia also deserves praise, who used to gnaw the vines, and so taught men the art of pruning them.

etas; qui, violandum fœdus ictus egocum in Sicilia, Hispania, Italia, et Africa, infero ego gravis calamitas.

Cum et precis et minæ legatus sperno, armatus ad urbe venio; ibi deus homoque testor, sui venio non expugnatum, sed recuperatum patria; ostensurusque civis suus, non virtus, sed fortuna, desum sui in prior bellum.

Helvetii jam transduco suos copie per angustia et finis Sequani, et pervenio in finis Ædui, populorque is ager; Ædui, quum non possum defendo sui suusque ab hic, mitto legatus ad Cæsar rogatum auxilium.

§ 4. The Construction of Circumstances.

I. THE CAUSE, MANNER, AND INSTRUMENT.

RULE XI.

53. THE cause, manner, and instrument, are put in the ablative.

I am pale for fear.

He did it after his own way.

I write with a pen.

§ 4. Constructio Circumstantiarum.

I. CAUSA, MODUS, ET INSTRUMENTUM.

REG. XI.

CAUSA, modus, et instrumentum, ponuntur in ablativo.

Palleo metu.

Fecit suo more.

Scribo calamo.

NOTE I. The CAUSE is known by the question CUR? or QUARE? Why? Wherefore? The MANNER by the question QUOMODO? How? And the INSTRUMENT by the question QUOCUM? Wherewith?

NOTE 2. The cause sometimes takes the prepositions per, propter, or de, e, ex, tra; as, Cic. Legibus propter metum parat. Id. Cum e via languerem. Id. Nec loqui præ more potuit.

NOTE 3. The manner frequently admits the preposition cum, and sometimes de, e, ex, or per; as, Cic. Semper magno cum metu discere incipio. Virg. Solito matrum de mors locuta est. Cic. Quod adeptus est per scelus, id per luxuriam effudit.

NOTE 4. The instrument seldom or never admits the preposition cum, but it is expressed sometimes with a, or ab, by the poets; as, Ovid. Hi jaculo pisces, illi capiuntur ab hamo. But here observe, that cum is generally expressed with the ablatives of concomitancy, which signifies something to be in company with another thing; as, Ingressus est cum gladio. He entered with a sword, i. e. having a sword with him, or about him. In like manner, Cic. Definant obsidere cum gladiis curiam. Id. Ut Vettius in foro cum pugione comprehenderetur.

NOTE 5. To the cause may be referred the matter of which any thing is made; as, Liv. Capitolium saxo quadrato substructum. Virg. Ære cavo clypeus. But the preposition is more frequently expressed; as, Cic. Pocula ex auro. Virg. Templum de marmore. Cæsar. Naves facta ex robore. Cic. Concilabrum factum e gemmis.

NOTE 6. To the manner may be referred the means by which; as, Cic. Amicos observantia, rem parsimonia retinuit. Sall. Huius quia bona artes desunt, dolis atque fallaciis contendit: and the respect wherein; as, Cic. Floruit cum acumine ingenii, tum admirabili quodam lepore discendi. Id. Scipio omnes salsis acerbisque superabat. Cæsar. Fama nobiles potentisque bello. These also sometimes have the preposition expressed.

1. Cæsar was esteemed great for his favours and generosity, Cato for the integrity of his life.

Clay hardens and wax softens by one and the same fire.

Wrong no body for thy own interest's sake; men were born for the sake of men.

2. Pausanias feasted, after the manner of the Persians, more luxuriously than they that were with him could endure.

Xerxes was conquered more by the contrivance of Themistocles than the arms of Greece.

Syria was desolated by an earthquake, wherein a hundred and seventy thousand men and many cities perished.

Mithridates was a man very brisk in war, extraordinary for courage, a general for conduct, a soldier in action, a Hannibal for spite against the Romans.

4. Alexander stabbed his most dear friend Clitus with a sword.

They cut down the wood, which hung over the way, with hatchets.

Nero fished with golden nets, which he drew with cords of purple silk.

Cæsar habeo magnus beneficium ac munificentia, Cato integritas vita.

Limus dureasco et cera liqueco unus idemque ignis.

Nemo violò tuus commodum gratia; homo homo causa genero.

Pausanias epulor, mos Persæ, luxuriosè quam qui adsum possum perpetior.

Xerxes vinco magis consilium Themistocles, quam arma Græcia.

Syria vasto terra motus, qui centum et septuaginta mille homo et multus urbs pereo.

Mithridates sum vir acer bellum, eximius virtus, dux consilium, miles manus, Hannibal odium in Romanus.

Alexander transfodio carus meus amicus Clitus gladius.

Excido sylva, qui immineo via, securis.

Nero piscor aureus rete, qui extraho blatteus funis.

The Metapontini show, in the temple of Minerva, the iron tools with which Epeus made the Trojan horse.

Antonius fills the houses nigh the walls with the bravest of the soldiers, who forced away the defenders with trees, cudgels, tiles, and torches.

Fulvius surrounded the lurking-places of the enemy with fire, Posthumius so disarmed them, that he scarce left them iron wherewith the ground might be tilled.

¶ The contest was dubious till his army broke into the town. In that battle, being wounded under the breast, he began to faint through loss of blood, yet fought upon his knees, till he killed him by whom he had been wounded. The dressing of the wound was more painful than the wound itself.

The Lacedæmonians, as they observed the excellent conduct of Alcibiades in all things, were afraid, lest, tempted by the love of his country, he should revolt from them, and return to a good understanding with his countrymen; wherefore they resolved to seek an opportunity of cutting him off.

The shepherd, wearied by his wife's entreaties, returned into the wood, and found a bitch by the infant, giving her dugs to the little one, and defending it from the wild beasts and birds; and being moved with pity, with which he saw the bitch moved, he carried it to his cottage, whilst the same bitch followed.

After this Alexander goes for India, that he might bound his empire with the ocean; to which glory, that the ornaments of his army might agree, he covers the horses trappings and his soldiers arms with silver, and called his army, from their silver shields, Argyraspides.

When Alexander was come to the Cuphites, where the enemy waited his coming with two hundred thousand horse, the whole army being wearied, no less with the number of their victories, than the fatigue of the war, entertains him with tears, that he would make an end of the war, remember his country, and regard the years of his soldiers.

Metapontini ostento, in templo Minerva, ferramentum qui Epeus fabrico Trojanus equus.

Antonius compléo testum propinquus murus fortis miles, qui deturbo propugnator trabs, fustis, tegula, et fax.

Fulvius sepio latebra hostis ignis, Posthumius ita exarmo, ut vix relinquo ferrum qui terra celo.

Certamen sum anceps donec exercitus irrumpo in oppidum. In is prælium, trajectus sub mamma, corpi deficio-fluxus sanguis, tamen prælior genu, donec occido is a qui vulnere. Curatio vulnus sum gravis ipse vulnus.

Lacedæmonii, quum cognosco præstans prudentia Alcibiades in omnis res, pertimesco, ne ductus amor patria, descisco ab ipse, et redeo in gratia cum suis; itaque instituo quero tempus interficiendus is.

Pastor, fatigatus precis uxor, revertor in sylva, et invenio canis femina juxta infans, præbens uber parvulus, et defendens a fera alesque; et motus misericordia, qui video canis motus, defero ad stabulum, dum lidem canis prosequor.

Post hic Alexander ad India pergo, ut finio imperium oceanus; qui gloria, ut ornamentum exercitus convenio, induco equus phaleræ et miles arma argentum, et voco exercitus suis, ab argenteus clypeus, Argyraspides.

Cum Alexander venio ad Cuphites, ubi hostis opperior is adventus cum ducenti mille eques, omnis exercitus fessus, non minus numerus victoria, quam labor bellum, deprecor is lacryma, ut facio finis bellum, memini patria, et respicio annus miles.

Annibal got Marcellus's ring, together with his body. Crispinus fearing some trick would be played with it by the Carthaginian, sent messengers about the neighbouring cities, that his colleague was slain, and the enemy had got his ring; that they should not believe any letters writ in the name of Marcellus.

After Seleucus was recalled into Asia by new commotions, Arfaces settles the kingdom of the Parthians, raises soldiers, fortifies castles, and strengthens the towns; he builds likewise a city, by name Dera, upon a mountain which is called Zapaortenon, of which place the nature is such, that nothing can be stronger or more pleasant than that mountain.

He has shown above that avarice is worse than ambition, because among ambitious men are found some good and some bad; for almost all men are desirous of praise, glory, and power; but seem to differ in this, that the good man attains to honour by the true way of virtue, but the bad by deceit and fraud.

Philip said, that he saw a cloud of terrible and bloody war rising in Italy; that he saw the storm roaring and thundering from the west, which, into whatever part of the earth the tempest of victory should drive it, would stain all places with a vast shower of blood.

After Alexander had received the cup at the feast to which Medius Thessalus invited him, he groaned in the middle of his draught, as if stabbed with a dart; and being carried out of the feast half alive, he was racked with so much pain, that he called for his sword to kill himself with.

Whilst the rest flattered Alexander, one of the old men, Clitus by name, in confidence of the king's friendship, of which he held the first place, defended the memory of Philip, and commended his exploits; but he so displeased the king, that he slew him in the entertainment with a spear, which he took from a lifeguard man.

Gallæcia is very fruitful in brass and lead, and very rich in gold too, so that often with the plough they tear up gold-

Annibal potior annulus Marcellus, simul cum corpus. Crispinus metuens ne quid dolus necesse a Pœnus, mitto nuncius circa proximus civitas, collega occido, et hostis potior annulus is; ne qui litera credo compositus nomen Marcellus.

Postquam Seleucus revoco in Asia novus motus, Arfaces formo regnum Parthicus, lego miles, munio castellum, et firmo civitas; condo quoque urbs, nomen Dera, in mons qui appello Zapaortenon, qui locus conditio sum is, ut nihil possum sum munitus aut amœnus is mons.

Ostendo superius, avaritia sum deterior ambitio, propterea quod inter ambitiosus tam bonus quam malus invenio; nam omnis ferme sum cupidus laus, gloria, et imperium; tamen video in hic differo, quod bonus accedo ad honor verus via virtus, malus autem dolus et fraus.

Philippus dico, sui video nubes trux et cruentus bellum confurgens in Italia; video procella tonans ac fulminans ab occasus, qui, in quicunque pars terra tempestas victoria deferro, fœdaturus omnis magnus imber cruor.

Postquam Alexander accipio poculum in convivium ad qui Medius Thessalus voce is, ingemo in medius potio, velut confixus telum; elatusque e convivium semianimis, crucio tantus dolor, ut posco ferrum qui sui interficio.

Dum cæter adulor Alexander, unus ex senex, Clitus nomen, fiducia rex amicitia, qui primus locus tenco, tueor memoria Philippus, et laudo is res gestus; sed adeo displiceo rex, ut trucidio is in convivium telum, qui aufero satellites.

Gallæcia sum uber æs ac plumbum, dives quoque aurum, adeo ut frequenter aratrum existendo en sods. On the confines of this nation there is a sacred mountain, which it is reckoned a heinous crime to open with an iron tool; but if at any time the earth is rent with lightning, it is allowed to pick up the gold thus uncovered as a present from the god.

The glory of Cynægirus too, an Athenian soldier, is celebrated by mighty commendations of historians, who, after innumerable slaughters, when he had driven the flying enemy to their ships, seized a loaded ship with his right hand, nor did he let it go till he lost his hand; then too he took hold of the ship with his left; which when he had likewise lost, he seized the ship with his teeth.

Chabrias being surrounded by a concourse of the enemy, fought very bravely; but his ship being struck with a rostrum, began to sink. Though he might have escaped by swimming, if he would have thrown himself into the sea, because the fleet of the Athenians was at hand, he chose rather to perish than to quit the ship in which he had sailed; wherefore he was slain by the enemies' weapons, fighting hand to hand.

When Helena, the mother of Constantine the Great, came to visit Judea, she found Jerusalem, and the country about, in a forlorn ruinous condition; but, being animated with a noble zeal of adorning the theatre of the world's redemption, she caused, with a great deal of cost and labour, the places where our Saviour had suffered, to be cleared of rubbish, and a magnificent church to be built, which should enclose as many of the scenes of his sufferings as possible; which stately edifice is still standing, and is kept in good repair by the generous offerings of a constant concourse of pilgrims, who annually resort to it. The walls of it are of stone, the roof of cedar. The east end encloses Mount Calvary, and the west the holy sepulchre.

To God, who is supreme, most wise and beneficent, and to him alone, belong worship, adoration, thanksgiving, and praise; who hath stretched forth the heavens with his hand, who setteth bounds to the ocean that it cannot pass, and saith unto the stormy winds, Be still; who shaketh the earth, and the nations tremble; who darteth his lightnings, and the wicked are dismayed; who calleth forth worlds by the word of his mouth; who smiteth with his arm, and they sink into nothing.

aureus gleba. In finis hic genus facer mons, qui habeo nefas violo ferrum; sed si quando terra proscindit fulgor, permitto colligo aurum sic detectus velut deus munus.

Gloria Cynægirus quoque, Atheniensis miles, celeberrimus magnus laus scriptor, qui post innumeras cædes, cum ago fugiens hostis ad navis, teneo onustus navis dexter manus, nec dimitto priusquam amitto manus; tum quoque comprehendendo navis sinister; qui cum etiam amitto, detineo navis morsus.

Chabrias circumfusus concursus hostis, fortiter pugno; sed navis percussus rostrum, ceppi siccum. Cum possum refugio nandum, si dejicio sui in mare, quod classis Atheniensis subsum, malo pereo quam relinquo navis in qui veho: itaque interficio hostis totum, cominus pugnant.

2. PLACE.

RULE XII.

* 54. THE name of a town of the first and second declension, and singular number, is put in the genitive, when the question is made by UBI? Where?

He lived at Rome.
He died at London.

2. LOCUS.

REG. XII.

4. NOMEN oppidi primæ aut secundæ declinationis, et singularis numeri, ponitur in genitivo, cum quæstio fit per UBI?

Vixit Romæ.
Mortuus est Londini.

NOTE 1. When the name of a town is put in the genitive, in urbe or in oppido is understood; and therefore we cannot say, Natus est Romæ urbis celebris, but Romæ celebris urbe, or in Romæ celebris urbe, or in Romæ celebris urbe.

NOTE 2. Humi, militiæ, and belli, are also construed in the genitive, when the question is made by ubi? as, Ovid. Procumbit humi, sup. in terra vel sole. Id. Prosternite humi juvenem, sc. ad terram. Cic. Cajus laudem domi defenderit, sc. in ædibus. Ter. Domus militiæque una fuimus. And Sall. Belli domique agitabatur, sc. in loco.

NOTE 3. The names of towns belonging to this rule, are sometimes, though rarely, expressed in the ablative; as, Vitruv. Hujus exemplar Roma nullum habemus, for Roma. Just. Rex Tyro decedit, for Tyri.

* 55. The name of a town of the third declension, or of the plural number, is expressed in the ablative, when the question is made by UBI?

He dwells at Carthage.
He studied at Athens.
The oracles are silent at Delphi.

2. Nomen oppidi tertiæ declinationis, aut pluralis numeri, in ablativo effertur, cum quæstio fit per UBI?

Habitat Carthagine.
Studuit Athenis.
Delphis oracula cessant.

NOTE. Some names of towns of the third declension seem to be put in the dative; as, Plaut. In Græcia et Carthagini. Cic. Convento Antonio Tiburti. Nep. Nulla Lacedæmoni tam est nobilis vidua, &c. But these are old ablatives, instead of Carthagine, Tibure, Lacedæmoni. To which add rari for ruri.

* 56. When the question is made by QUO? [Whither?] the name of a town is governed in the accusative.

I will send a letter to Syracuse.
He went to Corinth.
He returned to Babylon.

3. Cum quæstio fit per QUO? nomen oppidi in accusativo regitur.

Epistolam Syracusas mittam.
Profectus est Corinthum.
Rediit Babylonem.

NOTE. We sometimes, though rarely, find the names of towns in the dative, instead of the accusative; as, Hor. Carthagini nuncios mittam superbo.

* 57. If the question is made, 4. Si quærat per by UNDE? [Whence?] or UNDE? vel QUA?
QUA? [By or Through what nomen oppidi ponitur in place?] the name of a town is ablative.
put in the ablative.

He departed from Athens.

Discessit Athenis.

He came from Corinth.

Venit Corintho.

I was passing through Laodicea.

Iter Laodiceâ faciebam.

NOTE 1. When the question is made by QUA? the preposition per, to prevent ambiguity, is generally added; as, Cor. Cum iter per Thebas faceret.

NOTE 2. These rules concerning names of towns may be thus expressed; the name of a town after IN or AT is put in the genitive; unless it be of the third declension, or of the plural number, and then it is expressed in the ablative. The name of a town after TO or UNTO is put in the accusative; after FROM or THROUGH in the ablative.

* 58. Domus and rus are construed the same way as names of towns. 5. Domus et rus eodem modo quo oppidorum nomina construuntur.

He stays at home.

Manet domi.

He returns home.

Domum revertitur.

I am called from home.

Domo accersitus sum.

He lives in the country.

Vivit rure vel ruri.

He hath gone to the country.

Ablit rus.

He returns from the country.

Redit rure.

NOTE 1. The preposition is frequently expressed with domus and rus; as, Ter. In domo. Sall. In domum Bruti perducit. Afcon. in Cic. Ex rure in urbem revertebatur.

NOTE 2. Domus, with the pronouns meas, tuas, &c. often occur in the accusative plural without a preposition; as, Sall. Alius alium domos suas invitant. But rura has the preposition always expressed; as, Varro. Qua inducuntur in rura.

59. To the names of countries, provinces, and other places not mentioned, the preposition is generally added. 6. Nominibus regionum, provinciarum, et aliorum locorum nondictis, præpositio fere additur.

He married a wife in Lemnos.

In Lemno uxorem duxit.

He came into Epire.

Venit in Epirum.

From Asia he went over to Europe.

Ex Asia transit in Europam.

I pass through Greece to Italy.

Iter per Græciam in Italiam facio.

NOTE 1. The preposition is frequently added to names of towns; as, Suet. In Stymphalo mortuus est Terentius. Sall. Dum apud Zamam sic certatur.

Cic. Profectus sum ad Capuam. Id. A Brundisio nulla adhuc fama venerat. And sometimes omitted to names of countries, &c. which, in this case, are construed as names of towns; as, V. Max. Filios Egypti occisos cognovit. Cic. Sardiniam cum classe venit. Liv. Literæ Macedonia ablata. Cic. Nunc tota Asia vagatur. Hor. Ibam forte via sacra. Liv. Seu terra seu mari obviam eundem hosti foret.

NOTE 2. With respect to names of towns, observe more particularly, 1. If an appellative or adjective be added, the preposition is generally expressed; as, Plin. In Hispali oppido. Propert. Ad doctas proficisci Athenas. Mart. Hæc de vitifera venisse Vienna. 2. When nigh to or about a place, is signified, the preposition ad or apud is always added; as, Virg. Bellum quod ad Trojam gesserat. Cic. Nos apud Alyziam unum diem commorati sumus.

NOTE 3. Peto, when it signifies to go, governs the name of any place in the accusative without a preposition; as, Ovid. Lacedæmonia classe petebat. Curt. Ægyptum petere decrevit.

NOTE 4. The adverb versus, when used, is always put after the names of places, sometimes with, but oftener without the preposition ad or in; as, Cic. In Italiam versus navigaturus. Id. Amanum versus profecti.

NOTE 5. The adverb usque is often joined to names of places, the prepositions ad, a, ab, e, ex, de, being sometimes expressed and sometimes understood; as, Cic. Usque ad Numantiam. Id. Usque Ennam profecti. Plaut. Usque e Persia. Cic. Usque Imolo petivit. Instead of usque ad, usque ab, the poets sometimes say adusque, abusive; as, Virg. Adusque columnæ, abusive Patryno.

ANNOTATIO.

* 60. The distance of one place from another is put in the accusative, and sometimes in the ablative. Distantia unius loci ab alio ponitur in accusativo, interdum et in ablativo.

The farm is distant from the city one day's journey. Villa distat ab urbe iter unius diei.

The tower is twenty furlongs on this side the river. Turris est viginti stadia citra fluvium.

I will not stir a foot from you. A te pedem non discedam.

He is at the distance of two days journey. Bidui spatio abest.

The king's army is thirty miles distant from ours. Regis copie a nostris millibus passuum triginta abunt.

NOTE 1. One of the substantives expressing the distance, is sometimes suppressed; as, Cic. Castra aberant bidui, i.e. spatium, iter, viam; or spatio, itinere, via.

NOTE 2. When the place where a thing is done is signified, the word denoting the distance is either expressed in the ablative; as, Cæf. Millibus passuum duobus ultra eum castra fecit: Or in the accusative with ad; as, Cic. Ad tertium milliarium confedit. Nep. Sepultus est ad quintum lapidem.

NOTE 3. The EXCESS of measure or distance is always put in the ablative; as, Hoc lignum excedit illud digito. Britannia longitudo ejus latitudinem quadraginta milliaribus superat.

NOTE 4. The word of distance is governed in the accusative by ad or per understood, and in the ablative by a or ab.

34. My brother was born at London, studied at Geneva, and died at Marseilles.

55. Old age was no where more honoured than at Lacedæmon, and servants were no where better treated than at Athens.

Pyrrhus was slain at Delphi, and Philip was slain at Agæ, as he was going to see the public games.

56. He led his army to Corinth, and immediately after to Megara, and from thence to Athens.

Annibal sent three bushels of gold rings to Carthage, which he had taken from the hands of the Romans slain at Cannæ.

57. Cæsar setting out from Rome, came to Geneva; and Quintius going from Corinth, came to Philippi.

Dionysius sent for Plato from Athens, and at the same time brought back Philistus the historian to Syracuse.

58. I use to be frequently in the country, but I was at home yesterday, and I will go home again to-morrow.

All whom disgrace or villany had chased from home, had flocked to Rome, as to a common sewer.

The old fellow just now came out of the country, I will drive him into the country again.

59. Hannibal sent one army into Africa, left another in Spain, and carried a third along with him into Italy.

Cæsar gave up the kingdom of Egypt to Cleopatra, and from Alexandria he passed over to Syria, and from thence to Pontus.

Cato returning from Africa, brought the poet Ennius from Sardinia to Rome, whom we value very much.

Then Pyrrhus came into Campania, and encamped at the river Allia; but, being soon forced to retire from Italy, he went into Sicily.

The Athenians taking this thing ill, removed the money, that had been contributed by all Greece for the expence of the Persian war, from Delos to Athens.

60. The Persian gulf is distant an hundred and fifteen miles from the Red Sea.

Cæsar was patient of fatigue beyond

Meus frater nascor Londinum, studeo Geneva, et morior Massilia.

Senectus nusquam sum honoratus quam Lacedæmon, et servus nusquam bene habeo quam Athenæ.

Pyrrhus occido Delphi, et Philippus interficio Agæ, cum eo spectatum ludus publicus.

Duco exercitus Corinthus, ac protinus Megara, et inde Athenæ.

Annibal mitto tres modios aureus annulus Carthago, qui detraho e manus Romanus occisus Cannæ.

Cæsar profectus Roma, venio Geneva; et Quintius profectus Corinthus, venio Philippi.

Dionysius arcesso Plato Athenæ, simulque reduco Philistus historicus Syracusæ.

Soleo sum rus crebro, sed sum domus heri, et revertor domus cras.

Omnis qui flagitium aut facinus expello domus, Roma, sicut in sentina, confuso.

Senex modo redeo rus, rus abi-go is denuo.

Hannibal mitto unum exercitus in Africa, relinquo alter in Hispania, et duco tertius suicum in Italia.

Cæsar regnum Egyptus Cleopatra permitto, et ab Alexandria transeo in Syria, et inde in Pontus.

Cato rediens ex Africa, deduco poeta Ennius ex Sardinia Roma, qui plurimum æstimo.

Tum Pyrrhus venio in Campania, et confideo ad flumen Allia; sed, mox coactus recedo ex Italia, proficiscor in Sicilia.

Atheniensis graviter hic res ferens, transfero pecunia, qui confesso ab universus Græcia in stipendium Persicus bellum, a Delos Athenæ.

Sinus Persicus disto centum et quindecim mille passus a Mare Ruber.

Cæsar sum patiens labor ultra belief, he made very long journeys with incredible expedition, a hundred miles generally every day.

He pitched his camp six miles from the enemy, and he was at that time three days journey from Tarentum.

¶ Cæsar divided his army into five parts, and left one at Brundisium, another at Hydruntum, and another at Tarentum: Q. Valerius, being sent with another, seized Sardinia, very fruitful in corn; by his order Asinius Pollio went for Sicily, which Cato governed.

Whilst these things are done, it is told at Lacedæmon, that a new war was broke out at Athens. King Pausanias is sent thither; who, being moved with pity of the exiled people, restored their country to the miserable citizens, and ordered the ten tyrants to remove to Eleusis.

It is reported that a remarkable thing happened at Gomphi: That twenty old noblemen were found in a physician's house, lying on the ground with cups in their hands, without any wound, like drunk men, and one as a physician, sitting in a chair, administering physic to the rest.

After that the ambassadors came to Marcellus, where they found that the affections of the Gauls had been already gained by Annibal, but that they would hardly be very faithful to him, their temper was so wild and savage, unless the affections of the great men were secured now and then by gold, of which the nation was very greedy.

Whilst these things are doing, ambassadors came from Darius, king of the Persians, to Carthage, bringing an edict, by which the Carthaginians were forbidden to offer human sacrifices, and eat dog's flesh; and were commanded to burn the bodies of the dead, rather than bury them in the earth; begging at the same time assistance against Greece, upon which Darius was about to make war.

Before this engagement at sea, Xerxes had sent four thousand armed men to Delphi, to plunder the temple of Apollo, as if he carried on the war, not with the Greeks only, but also with the immortal gods; which detachment was all destroyed with rains and thunder, that he might fides, conficio longus via incredibilis celeritas, centeni mille passus fere in singulus dies.

Pono castra sex mille passus ab hostis, et tum absum 6 via triduum a Tarentum.

Cæsar divido copiarum in quinque pars, et relinquo unus Brundisium, alius Hydruntum, alius Tarentum: Q. Valerius, missus cum alius, occupo Sardinia, ferax frumentum; is jussu Asinius Pollio peto Sicilia, qui Cato præsum.

Dum hic ago, nuncio Lacedæmon, novus bellum exardeo Athenæ. Rex Pausanias eo mitto; qui, permotus misericordia exul populus, restituo patria miser civis, et jubeo decem tyrannus migro Eleusis.

Fero quidam memorabilis accido Gomphi: Viginti senex nobilis reperi in ædes medicus, jacens humus cum calix in manus, sine vulnus, similis ebrius, et unus seu medicus, sedens in sella, porrigens potio reliquus.

Deinde legatus venio Massilia, ubi cognosco animus Galli jam præoccupo ab Annibal, sed vix futurus sum satis fidus, ingenium sum adeo serox et indomitus, ni animus princeps concilio subinde aurum, qui gens sum avidus.

Dum hic ago, legatus venio a Darius, rex Persa, Carthago, afferens edictum, qui Pœni prohibeo immolo humanus hostia, et vescor caninus; jubeoque cremo corpus mortuus, potius quam obruo terra; petens simul auxilium adversus Græcia, qui Darius bellum infero.

Ante navalis prælium, Xerxes mitto quatuor mille armatus Delphi, ad templum Apollo diripiendus, quasi gero bellum, non cum Græci tantum, sed et cum deus immortalis; qui manus totus deleo imber et fulmen, understand how vain the strength of men is against the gods.

The Athenians, as they had first revolted, so did they first begin to repent, turning their contempt of the enemy into admiration, and extolling the youth of Alexander above the conduct of old generals. Then he turns his army toward Thebes, intending to use the same kindness, if he had found the same repentance; but the Thebans made use of arms, not prayers nor entreaty.

The first field of the civil war was Italy, the first signal sounded from Ariminum; then Libo was forced from Etruria, Thermus from Umbria, Domitius from Corfinium; and the war had been ended without bloodshed, if he could have mastered Pompey at Brundisium; but he got off through the barricade of the besieged harbour: scandalous to be said!

But at Carthage, as so many commanders were dangerous to a free state, an hundred judges are chosen out of the number of the senators, who, upon the return of the generals from the war, should demand an account of things transacted; that, upon this awe, they might so consider their command in the war, as to have a regard to the judicatures and laws at home.

The king of Persia's commanders sent messengers to Athens to complain, that Chabrias made war with the Egyptians against the king. The Athenians fixed Chabrias a certain day, before which, if he did not return home, they declared they would condemn him to die. Upon this he returned to Athens.

They brought Cornelius, our consul, deceived by an oath, to their general, as it were for the sake of seeking him, who was at that time sick, and presently after carried him away prisoner out of Sicily into Africa, with twenty ships. They put our general Regulus likewise to death.

When these things were told Marcellus, he sent ambassadors immediately to Syracuse, to complain of the violation of the treaty; the ambassadors said, that there would never be wanting an occasion of war, unless Hippocrates and Epycides were banished, not only from Syracuse, but far from Sicily. Upon this ut intelligo quam nullus vires homo sum adversus deus.

Atheniensis, sicut primus deficio, ita primus poenitet crepi, vertens contemptus hostis in admiratio, extollensque pueritia Alexander supra virtus vetus dux. Inde converto exercitus Thebæ; usus idem indulgentia, si invenio par poenitentia; sed Thebani utor arma, non precis nec deprecatio.

Primus arena civilis bellum Italia sum, primus signum Ariminum cano; tum Libo pello Etruria, Thermus Umbria, Domitius Corfinium; et bellum perago sine sanguis, si possum opprimo Pompeius Brundisium; sed ille evado per claustrum obfessus portus: turpis dictu!

Carthago autem, cum tot imperator sum gravis liber civitas, centum iudex diligo ex numerus senator, qui, reversus e bellum dux, exigo ratio res gestus; ut, hic metus, ita cogito imperium in bellum, ut iudicium lexque domus respicio.

Præfatus rex Persia mitto legatus Athenæ questum, quod Chabrias gerō bellum cum Ægyptius adversus rex. Atheniensis præstituo Chabrias certus dies, ante qui, nisi redeo domus, denuncio sui condemnō ille caput. Tum ille Athenæ redeo.

Adduco Cornelius, consul noster, deceptus iurjurandum, ad dux suus, quasi gratia visendum is, qui tum ægroto, et mox abduco captivus e Sicilia in Africa, cum viginti navia. Interimo quoque dux noster Regulus.

Quum hic nuncio Marcellus, mitto legatus extemplo Syracusæ, qui expostulo de violatio fœdus: legatus dico, nunquam desum causa bellum, nisi Hippocrates atque Epycides ablego, non modo ab Syracusæ, sed procul a Sicilia. Deinde E-

Epycides persuades the Leontini to revolt from the Syracusans.

Darius, that he might reduce Greece under his authority, fitted out a fleet of five hundred ships, and set Datis and Artaphernes over it; who came to Attica, and drew out their troops into the plain of Marathon, that is distant about ten miles from the city Athens. The Athenians, being very much startled at this alarm, fought for assistance no where but from the Lacedemonians: but at home ten officers were chosen to command the army.

After Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Martius, the grandson of Numa by a daughter, took upon him the government; he fought against the Latins, added mount Aventine and Janiculum to the city: he built the city Ostia upon the sea, at the sixteenth mile from the city Rome.

pycides persuadeo Leontini deficio a Syracusani.

Darius, ut redigo Græcia in suos potestas, comparo classis quingenti navis, præficioque is Datis et Artaphernes; qui ad Attica accedo, ac deduco suos copiarum in campus Marathon, is absum ab oppidum Athenarum circiter decem mille passus. Athenensis, permotus hic tumultus, peto auxilium nusquam nisi a Lacedæmonii: domus autem decem prætor creo qui præsum exercitus.

Post Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Martius, nepos Numa ex filia, suscipio imperium; contra Latini dimico, adjicio mons Aventinus et Janiculum civitas: condo civitas Ostia supra mare, sextus decimus 6 milliarius ab urbs Roma.

Diana had a most magnificent temple at Ephesus. It was supported by 127 pillars, which were built by 127 kings. Each of the pillars was 60 feet high. The statue of the goddess was of ebony.

The father of Pomponius was a lover of learning, and taught his son every thing that a boy could be taught at Rome. Afterwards Pomponius went to Athens. The most noble university of the world was at Athens. Young noblemen and the sons of kings were sent from all parts to Athens.

Cicero, the greatest of the Roman orators, was born at Arpinum. Cicero removed from Arpinum to Rome. The excellent endowments of his mind soon made him famous at Rome. After he had discharged several other offices of the Roman republic, at last he was made consul. Cicero discharged the consulship with so great watchfulness and industry, that he was called the father of his country. The honour was given to none before Cicero.

The nation of the Suevi is the greatest and most warlike of all the Germans. The Suevi are said to have an hundred cantons, from which they bring forth many thousands of armed men yearly to fight. The rest stay at home. They live upon milk and flesh, and exercise themselves in hunting.

When Arion the lyric poet was sailing from Lesbos to Italy, the sailors resolved to throw him into the sea, that they might get his money: But Arion entreated, that they would suffer him first to play a tune upon his harp; which was granted. Upon this Arion tuned his harp, and played so artfully, that by the sweetness of his music, he drew the dolphins round the ship, who, when he was cast into the sea, received him on their backs, and carried him to Tenedos.

They say, that the famous oracle of Apollo at Delphi in Beotia became dumb, when Christ our Saviour came into the world; and that when Augustus, who was a great votary of Apollo, desired to know the reason of its silence, the oracle answered him, That in Judea a child was born, who was the supreme God, and had commanded him to depart, and return no more answers.

Mount Vesuvius is distant about seven miles from Naples, rising in the middle of a large plain, above four miles off the sea: from which it is seen gradually to increase in height, till it is half a mile perpendicular above the level of the sea; when it becomes almost circular, being about five miles diameter. This is the basis of the mountain; out of which arises a smaller mount, called Mount Vecchio, four hundred paces high, and at top of near two miles in circumference.

3. TIME.
RULE XIII.

* 61. TIME is put in the ablative, when the question is made by QUANDO? When?

He died the twentieth year of his age.
In what period did he live?
Many years ago.

NOTE 1. To this rule belong, mane, diluculo, sero, raro, noctu, quotannis, which are commonly esteemed adverbs; as also, the old ablatives luci, temporis, vesperi, used instead of luce, tempore, vespere.

NOTE 2. The phrases id temporis, isthuc atatis, hoc atatis, illud horæ, and the like, have circa or ad understood, and are put for eo tempore, isthuc atate, hoc atate, illa horæ.

* 62. When the question is made by QUAMDIU? How long? time is put in the accusative or ablative, but oftener in the accusative.

Ennius lived seventy years.

Pluto's gate is open night and day.

Caligula reigned three years, ten months, and eight days.

3. TEMPUS.
REG. XIII.

1. TEMPUS ponitur in ablativo, cum quæstio fit per QUANDO?

Vigesimo anno ætatis obiit.
Quo tempore vixit?
Multis abhinc annis.

2. Cum quæstio fit per QUAMDIU? tempus ponitur in accusativo vel ablativo, sed sæpius in accusativo.

Annos septuaginta vixit Ennius.

Noctes atque dies pater janua ditis.

Caligula imperavit triennio, decem mensibus, diebus octo.

These two rules may be thus expressed:

Time WHEN, is put in the ablative; Time HOW LONG, or CONTINUANCE of Time, is put sometimes in the ablative, but oftener in the accusative.

NOTE 1. Both time WHEN, and time HOW LONG, are governed by a preposition expressed. 1. Time WHEN; as, Ter. In tempore ad eam veni. Hor. Surgunt de nocte latrones. Cic. Præsto fuit ad horam. Id. Te penitus rogo, ne te tam longa via per hyemem committas. Liv. Consul intra paucos dies moritur. 2. Time HOW LONG; as, Cic. Sero resistimus ei, quem per annos de- cem alimus contra nos. Id. Bessæ ex se natos amant ad quoddam tempus. Sc. Habebit senatus in hunc annum quem sequatur. Cæf. Qui intra annos quatuordecim bellum non subierint. Cic. Quæ inter decem annos facta sunt.

NOTE 2. The way of supplying the following and like expressions ought carefully to be studied; as, Cic. Annos natus unam et viginti, sup. ante. Curt. Tyrus septimo mense, quam oppugnari capta erat, capta est, i. e. postquam. Cic. Septingentos jam annos amplius unis moribus vivunt, sc. quam per. Nep. Minus diebus triginta in Asiam reversus est, sup. quam in.

6r. Hannibal returned to Africa the third year after he had fled from home.

Tiberius died in the seventieth and eighth year of his age, and twenty-third of his reign.

Constantius died in Britain at York, in the thirteenth year of his reign.

Bocchus, at the beginning of the war, had sent ambassadors to Rome to desire a league and alliance.

Aulus called out his soldiers in the month of January, from winter-quarters, upon an expedition.

The usurer calls in all his money on the Ides, and seeks to lay it out on the Kalends.

In the same year there was an earthquake betwixt the islands of Thera and Therasia, and on a sudden an island rose out of the deep.

In Asia too, the same day, the same earthquake shattered Rhodes, and many other cities.

62. Homer and Hesiod lived about an hundred and fifty years before the building of Rome.

Mithridates reigned sixty years, lived seventy-two, and had a war with the Romans forty years.

Pythagoras, after he had lived twenty years at Crotona, removed to Metapontum, and there died.

Caligula lived twenty-nine years; he reigned three years, ten months, and eight days.

Agamemnon with much ado took one city in ten years, Epaminondas in one day delivered all Greece.

The labours of many months and years may perish in a moment of time.

¶ When this was told to the senate, immediately the consul set out with an Hannibal ad Africa redeo tertius annus postquam profugio domus.

Tiberius obo septuagesimus et octavus annus ætas, et vigesimus tertius imperium.

Constantius obo in Britannia Eboracum, tertius decimus annus principatus.

Bocchus, initium bellum, mitto legatus Roma petitum fœdus et amicitia.

Aulus evoco miles mensis Januarii, ex hyberna, in expeditione.

Fœnerator relego omnis pecunia Idus, et quarto Kalendas pono.

Idem annus sum terra motus inter insula Thera et Therasia, et repente insula emergo ex profundum.

In Asia quoque, idem dies, idem motus terra concutio Rhodus, multique alius civitas.

Homerus et Hesiodus vivo circiter centum et quinquaginta annis ante Roma conditus.

Mithridates regno sexaginta annis, vivo septuaginta duo, et habeo bellum contra Romanus quadraginta annis.

Pythagoras, cum annus viginta Crotona ago, Metapontum nigro, ibique deo.

Caligula vivo 6 annus viginti novem, impero 6 triennium, decem 6 mensis, 6 diesque octo.

Agamemnon vix capio unus urbs decem 6 annus, Epaminondas unus 6 dies libero totus Græcia.

Labor multus mensis et annus intereo possum 6 punctum tempus.

Cum hic nuncio senatus, ex templo consul proficiscor cum army, and took a place for his camp three miles from the enemy. About the fourth watch he marched out of the camp, and the work was carried on so fast, that the Volsci found themselves surrounded by a strong intrenchment at sun-rise.

Whilst the works go on more diligently in the day than they are guarded in the night, a great multitude coming out of the town, armed chiefly with torches, threw fire about, and in a minute of time the fire consumed the mole and the vineæ, a work of so long a time; and a great many men, bringing aid in vain, perished by fire and sword.

Datames took Thyus alive, a man of a huge body, and a terrible countenance, because he was black, of long hair, and a long beard; whom the day after he clothed in a fine robe, which the king's viceroys used to wear; he dressed him up likewise in a collar, and bracelets of gold, and other royal apparel, and brought him to the king of Persia.

In the wings likewise two young men, of an extraordinary bigness, were seen to fight, nor did they appear any longer than the battle lasted. The incredible swiftness of fame increased this admiration; for the same day that the battle was fought in Italy, the news of the victory was told in Corinth, Athens, and Lacedæmon.

In that battle Astyages is taken, from whom Cyrus took nothing else but his kingdom, and acted the grandson towards him rather than the conqueror, and set him over the great nation of the Hyrcanians. This was the end of the empire of the Medes; they enjoyed the empire three hundred and fifty years.

About the same time there was an earthquake in the parts of the Hellespont and the Chersonese, by which the city Lyfismachia, built two and twenty years before by Lyfismachus, was ruined, which foreboded dreadful things to Lyfismachus and his family, and the ruin of his kingdom, with the desolation of the harassed provinces.

The Phenicians built Carthage in Africa, fifty years before the taking of Troy. The founders of it were Xorus exercitus, et capio locus castra trës mille passus ab hostia. Quartus vigilia egredior e castra, et opus adeo appropero, ut Volsci video sui circumvallatus firmus munimentum sol ortus.

Dum opus fio diligenter dies quam custodio nox, magnus multitudo egressus ex urbe, armatus præcipue fax, conjicio ignis, et momentum hora incendium haurio agger et vinea, opus tam longus tempus; et multus mortalis, ferens opis frustra, absumo ignis ferrumque.

Datames capio Thyus vivus, homo magnus corpus, terribilisque 6 facies, quod sum niger, longus 6 capillus, 6 barbaque promissus; qui posterus dies bonus vestis tego, qui satrapa rex gero consueco; orno etiam torquis, et armilla aureus, cæterque regius cultus, et ad rex Persia adduco.

In cornu quoque duo juvenis, eximius 6 magnitudo, videor pugno, nec ultra appareo quam pugnatur. Incredibilis velocitas fama augeo hic admiratio; nam idem dies qui in Italia pugnatur, nuncio victoria Corinthus, Athenæ, et Lacedæmon.

In is prælium Astyages capio, qui Cyrus adimo nihil aliud quam regnum, et ago nepos in is magis quam victor, et præpono is magnus gens Hyrcani. Hic sum finis imperium Medi; potior imperium trecenti et quinquaginta annus.

Idem fere tempus sum terra motus in regio Hellespontus et Chersonesus, qui urbs Lyfismachia, conditus duo et viginti annus ante a Lyfismachus, everto, qui portendo dirus Lyfismachus et stirps is, et ruina regnum, cum clades regio vexatus.

Phenices condo Carthago in Africa, quinquaginta annus ante captus Ilium. Conditor sum and Charcedon : but, as the Romans, and Carthaginians themselves, believe, Dido, a woman who had come from Tyre into those parts, whose husband, Pygmalion, who ruled at Tyre, had slain.

The Spartans at that time had so far degenerated from their ancestors, that whereas the bravery of the citizens had been for several ages a wall to the city, the citizens then thought they could not be secure, unless they lay lurking within walls. But much about the same time the troubled state of Macedonia recalled home Cassander from Greece.

Hiero, being born of a maid-servant, was exposed by his father, as the disgrace of his family ; but bees for several days fed the infant, destitute of human assistance, with honey. For which reason the father, being encouraged to it by the answer of the Haruspices, takes home the child, and with the utmost care educates him for the hopes of the majesty that was promised.

Prodigies in the heavens had foretold the future greatness of Mithridates : for both the year he was born, and that wherein he first began to reign, a comet both times shone so for seventy days together, that all the heavens seemed to be on fire ; for it took up a fourth part of the heavens by its bulk, and with its brightness outshone the splendour of the sun, and whilst it was rising and setting took up the space of four hours.

Virgil died at Brundisium in the fifty-first year of his age, and was buried at Naples, eighteen years before the Christian era.

Whilst Sir William Wallace was besieging the castle of Cupar in Fife, he was informed that the English were advancing to cross the river Forth ; wherefore he led his army from Cupar to Stirling. There was a wooden bridge over the Forth at Stirling. When Cressingham, general of the English, had passed the Forth with the greatest part of his army, the bridge broke, and the passage of the rest was stopped. Wallace attacked those who had passed the river, made great slaughter, killed Cressingham their general, and drove the rest back into the river. So great was the overthrow, that all the English were either slain, or swallowed up by the river. This signal victory was gained by Wallace in the year 1297.

Circe, the daughter of Sol, was the most skilful of all the sorceresses. The proud woman poisoned her husband, king of the Sarmatæ, that she herself might reign alone. For this heinous crime, being shut out of her kingdom by her subjects, she fled into Italy, and there fixed her seat on a certain promontory in Etruria. There she changed Scylla, the daughter Korus et Charcedon : sed, ut Romani, et Carthaginenses ipse, existimo, Dido, mulier qui venio Tyrus in is locus, qui maritus, Pygmalion, qui potior res Tyrus, interficio.

Spartani is tempus tantum degenero a majores, ut cum virtus civis multus 6 seculum sum murus urbs, civis tunc existimo sui non forem salvus, nisi intra murus lateo. Sed idem fere tempus turbatus status Macedonia revoco domus Cassander a Græcia.

Hiero, ex ancilla natus, a pater expono, velut dehonestamentum genus ; sed apis multus 6 dies alo parvulus, humanus opis egens, mel. Ob qui res pater, admonitus responsum Aruspex, recolligo parvulus, omnisque studium instituo ad spes majestas qui promitto.

Cœlestis ostentum prædico futurus magnitudo Mithridates : nam et is annus qui gigno, et is qui primum cœpi regno, cometes per uterque tempus ita luceo septuaginta 6 dies, ut cœlum omnis flagro video ; nam magnitudo suus quartus pars cœlum occupo, et fulgor sui nitor sol vinco, et cum orior occumboque confuso spatium quatuor hora.

of Phorcus, into a sea monster. Ulysses, returning from Troy, was driven by violence of storms to the promontory of Circe; who entertained him at her house twelve months, and restored to their former shapes his companions, whom she had formerly metamorphosed into hogs, bears, and wolves.

The industrious woman is up with the sun; she awaketh at the crowing of the cock, and walketh abroad to taste the sweetness of the morning. Her garment sweepeth the dew-drop from the new stubble and the green grass. Her house is elegant, and plenty smileth at her table. Her work is done at the evening; but the work of the slothful is put off till to-morrow.

OF THE ABLATIVE OF PRICE.

DE ABLATIVO PRETII.

RULE XIV.

REG. XIV.

* 63. THE price of a thing is put in the ablative.

PRETIUM rei in ablativo ponitur.

I bought a book for two shillings.
This man sold his country for gold.
Demosthenes taught for a talent.

Emi librum duobus assibus.
Vendidit hic auro patriam.
Demosthenes docuit talento.

NOTE 1. The ablative of PRICE is found often annexed to verbs of buying and selling; such as, emo, meror, vendo, veneo, flo, conso, liceo, licitor, addico, &c. But is not confined to these: For it is subjoined to any sort of verb; as, Cic. Triginta millibus dixisti eum habitare. Ter. Vix drachmis est obsonatum decem. And to adjectives; as, Senec. Quod non opus est, asse carum est. Plaut. Vile est viginti minis. Propert. Auro venalia jura. This ablative, however, depends neither on the verb nor adjective, but is governed by the preposition pro understood; which too is sometimes, though more rarely, expressed; as, Liv. Dum pro argenti decem aureus unus valeret. Lucil. Vendunt, quod pro minore emptum. To the genitives tanti, quanti, &c. in No. 64. following, we may understand pro aris pretio, seu pondere; or pro pretii, vel ponderis aris.

NOTE 2. To the verb valeo is sometimes subjoined an accusative of price, the preposition ad being understood; as, Varr. Denarii dicti quod denos aris valebant.

NOTE 3. These ablatives, magno, permagno, parvo, paululo, minimo, plurimo, often occur without any substantive; as, Senec. Parvo famis constat, magno fastidium. Cic. Permagno decumas vendidisti.

* 64. These genitives, tanti, quanti, pluris, minoris, are accepted.

Excipiuntur hi genitivi, tanti, quanti, pluris, minoris.

How much cost it?

Quanti constitit?

A shilling and more.

Asse et pluris.

NOTE 1. To these adjectives add their compounds, quanticunque, quanti-quanti, tantidem; as, Senec. Non concupiscas ad libertatem quanticunque pervenire. Cic. Quanticumque, bene emitur quod necesse est. Id. Ibi tantidem frumentum emeret, quanti domi vendidisset. To which add majoris; as, Phaed. Multo majoris alapa mecum veniens.

NOTE 2. If the substantive be expressed, these genitives are turned into the ablative; as, Cic. Antipatra illa, quam tanto pretio mercatus est. Juv. Quanto metiris pretio? Gell. Mercatur libros minore pretio. Liv. Nec majora ratio redimi possumus.

63. Isocrates sold one oration for twenty talents.

Nothing costs dearer than that which is bought with prayers.

That victory cost the Carthaginians much blood and wounds.

Despise pleasure, pleasure hurts when bought with pain.

A great many poets are sold for gold, but wise men do not buy hope at a great price.

Fish-ponds are built at a great expence, filled at a great expence, and maintained at a great expence.

64. Merchants use to sell their goods at as high a rate as they can.

Those things please more, which are bought at a dearer rate.

The fisher may be bought sometimes for less than his fish.

Nothing shall cost a father less than his son; but Demosthenes taught nobody for less than a talent.

I have Virgil, with note variorum, which cost me five shillings; besides Horace, with notes for the use of the Dauphin, which cost me five shillings and sixpence; I have likewise Cicero's select orations, with notes for the use of the Dauphin, which I bought for four shillings.

Whilst these things are doing, one of Alexander's friends, whose name was Ephæstion, died; he was very dear to Alexander, who lamented his death above measure, and made him a monument, that cost ten thousand talents, and ordered him to be worshipped as a god after his death.

Lycurgus, the brother of Eunomus, who reigned at Lacedæmon, was a famous lawgiver. He ordered every thing to be purchased, not with money, but with exchanges of merchandise. He abolished the use of gold and silver, as the occasion of all wickedness. He divided the administration of the commonwealth among the states; to the king he granted the power of war, to the senate the guard of the laws.

Isocrates vendo unus oratio viginti talentum.

Nullus res care consto quam qui precis emo.

Is victoria sto Pœni multus sanguis ac vulnus.

Sperno voluptas, voluptas emptus dolor noceo.

Plurimus honor venio aurum, sed sapiens non emo spes magnus pretium.

Piscina ædifico magnum, inpleo magnum, et alo magnum.

Mercator soleo vendo res suas tantum quantum possum.

Magis ille juvo, qui plus emo.

Piscator interdum possum eminus minus quam piscis.

Res nullus minus consto pater quam filius; sed Demosthenes doceo nemo minus talentum.

Sum ego Virgilius, cum nota varius, qui consto ego quinque solidus; præterea Horatius, cum nota in usus Delphinus, qui consto ego quinque solidus et sex as; habeo etiam Cicero selectus oratio, cum nota in usus Delphinus, qui emo quatuor solidus.

Dum hic ago, unus amicus Alexander, qui nomen sum Ephæstion, decedo; sum percarus Alexander, qui lugeo is mors supra modus, et facio is monumentum, qui consto decem mille talentum, et jubeo is colo ut deus post mors.

Lycurgus, frater Eunomus, qui regno Lacedæmon, sum inclytus legislator. Jubeo singuli emo, non pecunia, sed compensatio merx. Tollo usus aurum argentumque, velut materia omnis scelus. Divido administratio respublica per ordo; rex potestas bellum permitto, senatus custodia lex.

Whilst Alexander, the following year, enters upon the Persian war, that had been begun by his father, he is informed, that the Thebans and Athenians had revolted from him to the Persians, and that the author of that revolt was Demosthenes the orator, having been bribed by the Persians with a great sum of gold, namely, with two hundred talents and more.

The Gauls, when the country that had produced them could not contain them, sent out, in the beginning of summer, three hundred thousand men, to seek new habitations; who passed the insuperable summits of the Alps; and such was the terror of the Gallic name, that kings not attacked did of their own accord purchase peace with a large sum.

Parmenio, ignorant of Alexander's illness, had written to him, to beware of his physician, that he was corrupted by Darius with a great sum of money; Alexander however thought it safer to trust the doubtful faith of the physician than perish; he therefore took the cup, delivered the letter to the doctor, and as he drunk, he fixed his eyes on his countenance as he read.

In the island of Rhodes, Apollo had a statue called Colossus, 70 cubits high; which was erected at the mouth of the harbour. One man could scarce grasp its thumb. The distance betwixt its legs was 15 or 20 cubits at least; for a large ship, with tall masts, could easily pass betwixt its shanks. This statue cost three hundred talents and more.

Sarah, Abraham's wife, died at Kirjatharba in the land of Canaan, being 127 years old. As Abraham at this time was a stranger in that country, he applied to Ephron the Hittite, begging that he would allow him a piece of ground for a burial-place. Ephron answered Abraham, saying, The cave of Machpelah, and the field wherein it is, are mine: I compliment you both with the field and the cave; bury thy dead. Abraham bowed down himself before Ephron, returned him thanks, and said, I rather choose to purchase the field for as much as it is worth; I pray thee accept of a price. Ephron replied, The field is worth 400 shakles of silver; but what is that betwixt me and thee? Abraham paid down the money to Ephron, and then buried Sarah his wife.

Dum Alexander, posterus annus, aggredior Persicus bellum, inchoatus a pater, certior fio, Thebani et Athenienses deficio a sui ad Persæ, auctorque is defectio existo Demosthenes orator, corruptus a Persæ magnus pondus aurum, nempe, ducenti talentum et plus.

Galli, cum terra qui gigno is non capio, mitto, initium æstas, trecenti mille homo, ad quærendus novus sedes; qui transcendendo invictus jugum Alpes; tantusque sum terror Gallicus nomen, ut rex non laceffitus ultro mercor pax ingens pecunia.

Parmenio, ignarus Alexander infirmitas, scribo ad is, ut caveo a medicus, ille corumpo a Darius ingens pecunia; Alexander tamen reor tutus credo dubius fides medicus quam pereco; accipio igitur poculum, trade epistola medicus, et inter bibendum, intendo oculus in vultus legens.

OF THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

DE ABLATIVO ABSOLUTO.

RULE XV.

REG. XV.

65. A SUBSTANTIVE with a participle, whose case depends upon no other word,

SUBSTANTIVUM cum participio, quorum casus a nulla alia dictione pendet, are put in the ablative absolute.

ponuntur in ablativo absolute.

The sun rising, [or, while the sun riseth] darkness flies away.

Sole oriente, fugiunt tenebræ.

Our work being finished, [or, when our work is finished] we will play.

Opere peracto, ludemus.

NOTE 1. Whilſt, when, after, having, being, or a word ending in ing, are the usual signs of this ablative; which generally takes place when two parts of a sentence respect different persons or things; as, Ovid. Me duce, carpe viam. Id. Et fugiunt, fræno non remorante diæ. Where the persons, ego and tu, and the things diæ and frænum, are different.

NOTE 2. The participle exiſtente is frequently understood; as, Plant. Me ſuaſore hoc factum, i. e. me exiſtente ſuaſore. Liv. Syloam vendas, nobis conſulibus, i. e. exiſtentibus. Virg. Rege Latino. Hor. Jove æquo. In like manner, Fatis auctoribus, Deo duce, comite fortuna, invita Minerva, me ignaro, calo ſereno, aſpera byeme, me puero, Saturno rege, civitate nondum libera, cæteris paribus, &c.

NOTE 3. Sometimes the participle only is expreſſed; in which caſe negotio is understood, or the ſentence ſupplies the place of the ſubſtantive; as, Hor. Excepto quod non ſimul eſſes, cætera lætus. Liv. Nondum comperto quam regionem hoſtes petiſſent.

NOTE 4. The participles meant in this rule are chiefly the participle preſent, and the participle perfect of paſſive verbs. Some few examples indeed occur of the future in RUS; as, Mart. Cæſare venturo, Phoſphore, redde diem. But the future in DUS is ſeldom or never thus uſed.

NOTE 5. In uſing the participle perfect, the learner ought carefully to obſerve whether it be paſſive or deponent; for we do not ſay, Jacobus his diſciſis abiit, but we ſay, Jacobus hæc locutus abiit.

NOTE 6. This ablative may be reſolved into the nominative with cum, dum, quando, poſtquam, ſi, quoniam, or the like; as, Cic. Pythagoras, Superbo regnante, in Italiam venit, i. e. cum, dum, vel quando Superbus regnabat.

NOTE 7. This ablative, though it be called absolute, is however governed by ſub, cum, a, or ab, understood; which ſometimes ſeem to be expreſſed; as, Virg. Sole ſub ardenti. Cato, Cum diis volentibus. Lucan. Poſitis repetiſſis ab armis.

NOTE 8. In ſome old authors we meet with nobis præſente, abſente nobis, præſente teſtibus; inſtead of nobis præſentibus, &c.

Whilſt our cavalry were coming up, the enemy all on a ſudden ſhewed their foot, which they had planted in ambuſcade.

Noſter equitatus adventans, hoſtis ſubito oſtendo pedeſtris copia, qui colloco in inſidiæ.

When theſe things were told at Rome, the ſenate gave the command of the Achaian war to the conſul.

Hic res nunciatus Roma, ſenatus decerno ſumma Achaicus bellum conſul.

The enemy, after they knew of his coming, having raiſed great forces, attacked our army in their march.

Hoſtis, cognitus is adventus, coactus magnus copiarum, adior noſter agmen in iter.

Lævinus, after having recovered all Sicily, after having humbled Macedonia, returned with great glory to Rome.

Lævinus, omnis Sicilia receptus, Macedonia fractus, cum ingens gloria Roma regredior.

This matter being propoſed to a council, when he found they all thought the Hic res delatus ad concilium, cum cognoſco omnis ſentio idem, same thing, he appoints the next day for the battle.

Drawing out his forces about break of day, and having formed them into two lines, he waited to see what measures the enemy would take.

Nero committed many parricides; after putting to death his brother, wife, and mother, he fired the city of Rome.

In the room of Æneas, Ascanius his son succeeded; who, leaving Lavinium, built Longa Alba, which was the metropolis of the kingdom for three hundred years.

¶ Alexander, when he had overrun India, came to a rock of wonderful ruggedness and height, into which many people had fled; and when he understood that Hercules had been restrained by an earthquake from the taking of that rock, being seized with a desire of outdoing the actions of Hercules, he made himself master of the rock with the utmost fatigue and danger.

The Roman people, after Cæsar and Pompey were slain, seemed to have returned to their former state of liberty; and they would have returned, had not Pompey left children, or Cæsar an heir, or, which was more fatal than either, had not Antony, the rival of Cæsar's power, the incendiary and firebrand of the following age, survived.

Hannibal being called home to defend his country, was desirous to make an end of the war by treaty, the wealth of his country being now exhausted; but the articles were not agreed to. A few days after this he engaged with Scipio at Zama, and being routed (incredible to be said), in two days and two nights he came to Adrumetum, which is about three hundred miles distant from Zama.

Galba having fought some successful skirmishes, and having taken several of their forts, deputies too being sent to him from all parts, and a peace concluded, resolves to quarter two cohorts among the Nantuates, and to winter himself with the other cohorts of that legion, in a village of the Veragri, which is called Octodurus; and as it was divided in two parts by a torrent, one part of the constituo proximus dies pugna.

Productus copiarum primus lux, et duplex acies institutus, expecto quid consilium hostis capio.

Nero multos parricidium committo; frater, uxor, et mater interfectus, urbs Roma incendio.

In locus Æneas, Ascanius filius succedo; qui, relictus Lavinium, condo Alba Longa, qui sum caput regnum trecenti 6 annus.

Alexander, peragratus India, pervenio ad saxum mirus asperitas et altitudo, in qui multus populus confugio; et ubi cognosco Hercules prohibitus terra motus ab expugnatio idem saxum, captus cupido superandum factum Hercules, potior saxum cum summus labor ac periculum.

Populus Romanus, Cæsar et Pompeius trucidatus, videor redeo in pristinus status libertas; et redeo, nisi Pompeius relinquo liberi, aut Cæsar hæres, vel, qui sum perniciosus uterque, si non Antonius, æmulus Cæsarianus potentia, fax et turbo sequens seculum, supersum.

Hannibal revocatus defensum patria, cupio compono bellum, facultas patria jam exhaustus; sed conditio non convenio. Pauci dies post is configo cum Scipio apud Zama, et pulsus (incredibilis dictu), 6 biduum et duo 6 nox Adrumetum pervenio, qui absum circiter trecenti mille passus a Zama.

Galba secundus aliquot prelium factus, expugnatusque complures is castellum, legatus quoque missus ad is undique, et pax factus, constituo colloco duo cohorts in Nantuates, et hiemo ipse cum reliquis is legio cohors, in vicus Veragri, qui appello Octodurus; et quum hic in duo pars flumen divido, alter pars is vi-village he assigned to the Gauls, the other he allotted for the cohorts to winter in.

The state of the Juhones in alliance with us was afflicted with a sudden calamity; for fires issuing from the earth, every where seized their towns, farms, and dwellings, nor could they be extinguished. During the same year too, the tree Ruminalis, that, eight hundred and forty years ago, had sheltered the infancy of Remus and Romulus, was broken down, its branches being dead, and its trunk withered.

Alexander died three and thirty years and a month old; a man endowed with a greatness of soul above human power. Some omens of his future greatness appeared at his birth; for the day on which he was born, two eagles sat all day upon the top of his father's house; the same day too his father received the news of two victories. After the time of his boyship was over, he grew up under Aristotle, the famous teacher of all the philosophers. Upon his coming to the kingdom, he ordered himself to be called the king of all the earth and the world. When he was present, his soldiers feared the arms of no enemy.

The Carthaginians, upon hearing this answer, sent for Hannibal home. He, as soon as he returned, was made pretor, in the two and twentieth year after he had been king. For at Carthage every year two kings were made, as consuls are at Rome. The year after his pretorship, when M. Claudius and L. Furius were consuls, ambassadors came from Rome to Carthage; and Hannibal, supposing they were sent on account of demanding him, goes aboard a ship, and fled into Syria to Antiochus.

The Gauls did so abound with numbers of people, that they filled all Asia as it were with a swarm; at last they resolved to turn their arms against Antiochus; upon information whereof, he redeems himself from them with gold, as from robbers; and claps up an alliance with his hirelings.

Cyrus having subdued the Lesser Asia, as likewise Syria and Arabia, entered Assyria, and bent his march towards Babylon. The siege of this cus Gallus concedo, alter cohorts ad hiemandum attribuo.

Civitas Juhones socius ego affligo improvisis malum; nunc ignis terra editus, passim corripio villa, arvum, et vicus, neque extinguo possum. Idem quoque annus, arbor Ruminalis, qui, octingenti et quadraginta annus ante, tego infantia Remus Romulusque, diminuo, mortuus ramale, et arescens truncus.

Alexander decedo tres et triginta annus et unus mensis natus; vir præditus magnitudo animus supra humanus potentia. Nonnullus prodigium futuris magnitudo in ipse ortus appareo; nam is dies qui nascor, duo aquila sedeo totus 6 dies supra culmen domus pater is; idem quoque dies pater accipio nuncius duo victoria. Exactus pueritia, cresco sub Aristoteles, inclytus doctor omnis philosophus. Acceptus imperium, jubeo sui appello rex omnis terra ac mundus. Ille præsens, miles timeo arma nullus hostis.

Carthaginensis, hic responsum cognitus, revoco Hannibal domus. Hic, ut redeo, prætor fio, annus secundus et vicesimus postquam rex sum. Carthago enim quottannis binus rex creo, ut consul Roma. Annus post prætura, M. Claudius et L. Furius consul, legatus Roma Carthago venio; et Hannibal, hic sui exsuscendus gratia missus ratus, conscendo navis, atque profugio in Syria ad Antiochus.

Gallus adeo abundo multitudo, ut impleo omnis Asia velut exarant; tandem statuo verto arma in Antiochus; qui cognitus, redimo sui ab hic aurum, velut a prædo; societasque cum mercenarius suus jungo.

important place was no easy enterprise. The walls were of a prodigious height, the number of men to defend them very great, and the city stored with all sorts of provisions for twenty years. However, these difficulties did not discourage Cyrus from prosecuting his design; who, after spending two entire years before the place, became master of it by a stratagem. Upon a festival night, which the Babylonians were accustomed to spend in drinking and debauchery, he ordered the bank of the canal, above the city, leading to the great lake, that had been lately dug by Nitocris, to be broken down; and having thus diverted the course of the river, by turning the whole current into the lake, he caused his troops march in by the bed of the river, who now penetrated into the heart of the city without opposition, surprised the guards of the palace, and cut them to pieces. The taking of Babylon put an end to the Babylonian empire, and fulfilled the predictions which the prophets Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Daniel, had uttered against that proud metropolis.

III. The Construction of Words indeclinable.

I. OF ADVERBS.

* 66. SOME adverbs of time, place, and quantity, govern the genitive.

In the mean time.

At that time.

Where in the world?

To what nation?

Abundance of power.

Enough of words.

1. The adverbs of time are, "interea, postea, inde, tunc."

2. The adverbs of place are ubi and quo, with their compounds, "ubique, ubicunque, ubiubi, ubinam, ubivis, alibi, alicubi, quocunque, quovis, aliquo, quoquo;" also, "eo, huc, hucce, unde, usquam, nusquam, longe, ibidem."

3. The adverbs of quantity are, "abunde, affatim, largiter, nimis, quod, satis, parum, minime."

The words ergo, for the sake, instar, and partim, usually added here, are real substantives.

NOTE 1. Pridie and postridie govern the genitive or the accusative; as, Cic. Pridie ejus diei. Cæsar. Postridie ejus diei. Cic. Pridie quinquatrus. Id. Postridie ludos Apollinares. Thus, pridie, postridie, Kalendas, Nonas, Idus, seldom Kalendarum, &c.

NOTE 2. The adverbs en, ecce, take the nominative or the accusative; as, Cic. En causa, cur dominum servus accuset. Seneca. En Paradisi bossem. Cic. Ecce multa major dissensio. Plautus. Ecce rem.

III. Constructio Vocum indeclinabilium.

I. ADVERBIORUM.

I. ADVERBIA quædam temporis, loci, et quantitatis, regunt genitivum.

Interea loci.

Tunc temporis.

Ubi terrarum?

Quo gentium?

Abunde potentia.

Satis verborum.

NOTE 3. To these constructions the word negotium, res, locus, tempus, or the like, with some preposition, is understood. Thus, Interea loci, i. e. inter ea negotia loci. Ubi terrarum, i. e. ubi in negotio terrarum. Quo gentium, i. e. sui negotio vel loco gentium. Abunde potentia, i. e. abunde de re potentia. And pridie ejus diei, i. e. pridie ante tempus ejus diei. To en and ecce some verb is understood; as, En Priamus, sc. adeſt. Ecce duas aras, sc. videtis.

67. Some derivative adverbs govern the case of their primitives.

Most elegantly of all.
Agreeably to nature.
A foot high.
Beyond expectation.

2. Quædam adverbia derivata regunt casum primitivorum.

Elegantissimus omnium.
Congruenter naturæ.
Alte pedem.
Amplius opinione.

NOTE, These adverbs require the same supplies to complete the construction, as the adjectives from which they are formed.

66. 1. Whilst I wandering about am deprived of my country, you in the mean time have made yourself rich.

After this the consul, now unquestionably conqueror, came to the town of Cirta.

The strength of the Athenians at that time was small, their fleet being sent into Egypt.

2. What you was doing, or where in the world you was, I could not so much as guess.

He came to that height of madness, that what I should do, or to what part of the world I should fly, I knew not.

Where in the world are we? Are we come to this pass? Are we come to this pitch of misery?

I can find my brother no where; but in whatever part of the world he may be, he will be beloved by good men.

Let him go to any part of the world, the affair will be in the same condition: virtue every where will find friends.

3. Cæsar said that he had got abundance of power and glory, and plenty of wealth.

Let him have plenty of old wine, that he may drink day and night.

Too much artifice seems to have been used for charming the ears; he that behaves right will have plenty of applauders.

Will he become an excellent poet, who has no courage to dash the words

Dum ego errans patria careo, tu interea locus tu locupletor.

Postea locus consul, haud dubie jam victor, pervenio in oppidum Cirta.

Vires Athenienses tunc tempus sum parvus, classis in Ægyptus missus.

Quis ago, aut ubi terra sum, ne suspicor quidem.

Eo vecordia procedo, ut quis ago, aut quo gens fugio, nescio.

Ubinam gens sum? Hucine res venio? Eone miseria ventur?

Frater nusquam gens invenio; sed ubicunque terra sum, diligo a bonus vir.

Abeo quovis gens, res ibidem locus sum: virtus ubique locus invenio amicus.

Cæsar dico sui adipiscor potentia gloriaque abunde, et divitiarum affatim.

Habeo vetus vinum largiter, ut dies noxque poto.

Nimis insidias ad capiendus auris adhibeo videor; qui recte facio habeo satis laudator.

Fione ille egregius poeta, qui non audeo expugno verbum qui that have little beauty? By no means.

67. The lynx is said to see the most clearly of all quadrupeds.

I do not ask what he says, but what he can say agreeably to reason.

The Sulmonenses opened the gates, and all went out to meet Antony.

The ground being covered with dung a foot thick, must be formed into beds before you begin to sow.

The Numidians possess the other parts as far as Mauritania, the Mauri are next to Spain.

The beauty of Glycera, shining more bright than Parian marble, consumes me.

Thus speaks Neptune, and swifter than speech he smooths the swelling seas, disperses the collected clouds, and brings back the day.

¶ Aftayges, being frightened at this answer, gave his daughter in marriage neither to a famous man, nor to one of that country, but to Cambyfes, a mean man of the nation of the Persians, at that time obscure. And the fear of the dream not being laid aside even thus, he sends for his daughter big with child, that the infant might be slain under the eye of his grandfather.

The Lacedæmonians, having consulted the oracle at Delphos concerning the event of the war, are ordered to seek a general from the Athenians: But the Athenians, when they understood the answer, in contempt of the Spartans, sent Tirtæus, a poet, lame of a foot; who being routed in three battles, reduced the Spartans to that despair, that they manumitted their slaves for the recruiting of their army.

I know not whether it would not have been better for the Roman people to have been content with Sicily and Africa, or even to have wanted these, than to grow to that bigness as to be destroyed by their own strength; for what thing else produced intestine distractions, than excessive good fortune? and whence came that desire of superiority and domineering, but from excessive wealth?

Cyrus, the day following, forsook his parum splendor habeo? Minime gens.

Lynx dico cerno clare omnis quadrupes.

Non quæro quis dico, sed quis possum dico convenienter ratio.

Sulmonenses porta aperio, et omnis obviam Antonius exeo.

Terra stercoreatus pes alte, in pulvinus redigendus sum antequam sero incipio.

Numidæ teneo cæter locus usque ad Mauritania, proxime Hispania Mauri sum.

Nitor Glycera, splendens pure Parius marmor, uro ego.

Sic aio Neptunus, et dictum cito placo tumidus æquor, fugo collectus nubes, folque reduco.

Aftayges, exterritus hic responsum, trado filia in matrimonium neque clarus vir, neque civis, sed Cambyfes, mediocris vir ex gens Persæ, tunc tempus obscurus. Ac ne sic quidem somnium metus depositus, arcesso filia gravidus, ut sub avus oculus partus neco.

Lacedæmonii, oraculum Delphi consultas de bellum eventus, jubeo peto dux ab Athenienses: Porro Athenienses, cum cognosco responsum, in contemptus Spartani, mitto Tirtæus, poeta, claudus pes; qui tres prælium fufus, eo desperatio Spartani adduco, ut manumitto servas ad supplementum exercitus.

Nescio an satius sum populus Romanus sum contentus Sicilia et Africa, aut etiam hic careo, quam eo magnitudo cresco ut vires suos conficio: quis enim res alius furor civilis pario, quam nimius felicitas? et unde venio ille cupido principatus et dominandum, nisi ex nimius opes?

Cyrus, dies posterus, desero.

camp; but left plenty of wine, and those things that were necessary for a feast. The queen sends her son with a third part of her forces to pursue Cyrus. When they were come to Cyrus's camp, the young man, ignorant of military affairs, as if he was come to a feast, not to a battle, letting the enemy alone, suffers the barbarians to load themselves with wines; and the Scythians are conquered by drunkenness.

He is an orator, who, on every question, can speak finely and ornately, and in a manner fit for persuading: but in these times of ours, neither sufficient pains is bestowed in reading authors; nor in searching into antiquity, nor upon the knowledge either of things, or of men, or of the times.

Diomedon came to Thebes with a vast quantity of gold, and drew over Miccythus, a young man, by five talents, to his lure. Miccythus went to Epaminondas, and tells him the occasion of Diomedon's coming: but he, in the presence of Diomedon, said, There is no need of money; for if the king desire those things that are expedient for the Thebans, I am ready to do them for nothing; but if the contrary, he has not gold and silver enough.

Next day Caesar, before the enemy could recover themselves from their consternation and flight, led his army into the country of the Sueffiones, who are next to the Remi; and, having performed a great march, he came to the city Noviodunum. After fortifying his camp, having reared the vineæ, having cast up a mount, and erected turrets, he began to storm the town.

Micipsa, as Jugurtha was fond of military glory, resolves to expose him to dangers, hoping he would fall, either in making a show of his bravery, or by the fury of the enemy. But that matter fell out quite otherwise than he imagined; for Jugurtha, as he was of an enterprising and penetrating genius, after he came to know the general's temper, by much pains and much diligence, and by often exposing himself to dangers, came in a short time to so great reputation, castra; at relinquo viarum afflictum, et is qui epulum necessarius sum. Regina mitto filius cum tertius pars copiarum ad insequendum Cyrus. Cum venit ad Cyrus castra, adolescens, ignarus res militaris, veluti ad epulam, non ad prælium venio, omissus hostis, patior barbarus onero sui vinum; et Scythæ ebrietas vinco.

Is sum orator, qui, de omni quæstio, possum dico pulchre et ornate, et apte ad persuadendum: sed hic noster tempus, nec satis opera infumo in cognoscendum auctor, nec in evolvens antiquitas, nec in notitia vel res, vel homo, vel tempus.

Diomedon venio Thebæ cum magnus pondus aurum, et perduco Miccythus, adolescentulus, quinque talentum, ad suos voluntas. Miccythus Epaminondas convenio, et ostendo causa Diomedon adventus: at ille, coram Diomedon, inquam, Nihil opus sum pecunia; nam si rex is volo qui Thebani sum utilis, gratis facio sum paratus; sin autem contrarius, non habeo aurum atque argentum satis.

Postridie is dies Caesar, priusquam hostis recipio sui ex terror ac fuga, duco exercitus, in finis Sueffiones, qui sum proximus Remi; et, magnus iter confectus, ad oppidum Noviodunum pervenio. Castra munitus, vineæ actus, agger jactus, turrisque constitutus, oppidum oppugno cæpi.

Micipsa, quod Jugurtha sum appetens gloria militaris, status objecto is periculum, sperans occasurus, vel ostentandum virtus, vel sevitia hostis. Sed is res longe aliter evenio ac reor; nam Jugurtha, ut sum impiger atque acris ingenium, ubi cognosco natura imperator, multus labor multique cura, et sæpe eundem obviam periculum, brevi pervenio in tantum that he was a very great terror to the enemy.

Lycurgus suffered the young men to use no more than one coat in a whole year, nor any one to go finer than another, nor fare more sumptuously. He ordered young women to be married without fortunes, that wives might be chosen, not money. He ordered the greatest respect should belong, not to the rich and powerful, but to old men, according to the degree of their age; nor indeed has old age any where on earth a more respectful habitation than at Lacedæmon.

claritudo, ut sum magnus terror hostis.

Lycurgus permitto juvenis ut tor non ample unus vestis totus 6 annus, nec quisquam progredior culte quam alter, nec epulor opulenter. Jubeo virgo nubo sine dos, ut uxor eligo, non pecunia. Volo magnus honor sum, non dives et potens, sed senex, pro gradus ætas; nec sane usquam terra senectus locus honoratus habeo quam Lacedæmon.

Cotta being asked his opinion, spoke to this purpose: It is the part of wise men to do nothing rashly. I do not think that we ought to remove from our winter-quarters without the order of Cæsar. Our winter-quarters being fortified, we shall easily withstand the forces of the Germans. You see that we have bravely withstood the first assault of our enemies. Our enemies, after receiving many wounds, have desisted from the siege. We have enough of corn. Cæsar will not forget his faithful soldiers. What is more foolish, what is more disgraceful, than to listen to the advice of an enemy in so important an affair? It becomes us to remember that we are Romans.

The Tyrians sent ambassadors to meet Alexander, with presents for himself, and provisions for his army. But when he desired to enter the city, under pretence of offering sacrifice to Hercules, they refused him admittance; which provoked Alexander, now flushed with so many victories, to such a degree of resentment, that he resolved to storm the city, and enter it by force. The city then stood on an island half a mile distant from the shore, was surrounded with a strong wall 150 feet high; the inhabitants had plenty of provisions, and were stored with all sorts of warlike provisions. Alexander, however, by carrying a mole or causey 200 feet broad, from the continent to the island, transported his army, and, after a siege of seven months, battered down the walls, took the city by storm; and fully executed upon that wealthy and wicked city the judgments long before denounced by the prophets.

2. OF PREPOSITIONS.

2. PRÆPOSITIONUM.

68. THE prepositions ad, apud, ante, &c. govern the accusative.

1. PRÆPOSITIONES ad, apud, ante, &c. accusativum regunt.

To the father.

Ad patrem.

NOTE, To the prepositions governing the accusative, some add circiter, prope, usque, and versus; but these are real adverbs, having the preposition ad understood; which, with the last three, is sometimes expressed.

69. The prepositions a, ab, abs, &c. govern the ablative. 2. Præpositiones a, ab, abs, &c. regunt ablativum.

From the father.

A patre.

NOTE 1. To the prepositions governing the ablative, some add procul; but this is an adverb, having a or ab understood, or sometimes expressed; as, Virg. Procul a patria.

NOTE 2. Tenus is put after its case, and, when the noun is plural, usually governs the genitive; as, Virg. Crurum tenus a mento palearia pendent. Cic. Lumborum tenus. But sometimes the ablative; as, Ovid. Pectoribus tenus.

NOTE 3. That a and e are put before consonants, ab and ex before vowels or consonants, abs before q and t; as, a patre, e regione; ab initio, ab rege; ex urbe, ex parte; abs quovis homine, abs te.

70. The prepositions in, sub, super, and subter, govern the accusative, when motion to a place is signified. 3. Præpositiones in, sub, super, et subter, regunt accusativum, cum motus ad locum significatur.

I go into the school.

Eo in scholam.

He shall go under the earth.

Ibit sub terras.

It fell upon the troops.

Incidit super agmina.

He brings him under the roof.

Ducit subter fastigia.

71. But if motion or rest in a place be signified, in and sub govern the ablative; super and subter either the accusative or ablative. At si motus vel quies in loco significetur, in et sub regunt ablativum; super et subter vel accusativum vel ablativum.

I run or sit in the school.

Discurro vel sedeo in schola.

I lie or walk under the shade.

Récubo vel ambulo sub umbra.

He pitched his camp beyond the river.

Posuit castra super amnem.

He sits upon the grass.

Sedet super fronde.

The veins are dispersed under the skin.

Venæ subter cutem disperguntur.

They continue under the target fence.

Subter testudine manent.

NOTE 1. In, signifying to, into, toward, against, till, until, over, after, for, upon, by, or between, governs the accusative; but when it signifies in or among, it generally takes the ablative.

NOTE 2. Sub, signifying at or about such a time, generally governs the accusative. But when it signifies nigh to or near a place, it commonly takes the ablative.

NOTE 3. Super, signifying beyond, above, besides, upon, at, or in time of, governs the accusative; but when it signifies about, concerning, for, or because of, it takes the ablative.

NOTE 4. Subter takes very rarely the ablative, and only among poets.

GENERAL NOTES.

1. The word governed by the preposition is sometimes suppressed; as, ad Opis, ad Diana; supply adam. A Vesta, supply ade.

2. The preposition itself is frequently suppressed; as, Cæf. Circiter meridiem. Cic. Prope muros. Curt. Usque pedes. Plin. Orientem versus. Virg. Devenere locos. Cic. Magnam partem ex Iambis constat oratio, sup. ad. Ter. Nunc id prodeo; ira infestas, suppetias, exsequias, sup. ob or propter. Virg. Mæria aspera juro, sup. per. Liv. Procul seditione, sup. a. Cæf. Se loco movere, sup. e. Hor. Vina promens dolio, sup. ex. Ter. Quid illo facias, sup. de. Vitruv. Aliud alius loco nascitur, sup. in. Juv. Fallit nos vitium specie virtutis, sup. sub.

72. A preposition often governs the same case in composition that it does without it.

4. Præpositio in compositione eundem sæpe casum regit quem extra.

Let us go to the school.
He speaks to his brother.
He carried the army over the river.
They go out of the church.
He departed from the city.
They engage in battle.
They come up to the walls.
He excels all.
He is carried round the fort.

Adeamus scholam.
Alloquitur fratrem.
Exercitum fluvium transduxit.
Exeunt templo.
Decessit urbe.
Incunt prælium.
Subeunt muros.
Supereminet omnes.
Circumvehitur arcem.

NOTE 1. This rule takes place only when the preposition may be dissolved from the verb, and put before the case by itself; as, Virg. Alloquor patrem, i. e. loquor ad patrem. Liv. Circumvehitur arcem, i. e. vehitur circum arcem.

NOTE 2. The preposition is frequently repeated; as, Cic. Ad nos adeunt. Cæf. Exire e finibus suis. Cic. In rempublicam inoast.

NOTE 3. Some verbs compounded with e or ex govern the ablative, or the accusative, extra being understood; as, Virg. Exire septis. Stat. Exire campum, sc. extra campum. Ovid. Portibus egredior. Plin. Egredi veritatem, sc. extra veritatem. Virg. Excedere terra. Lucan. Excedere muros, sc. extra muros. Virg. Erumpunt portis. Id. Erumpere nubem, sc. extra nubem. In like manner, Prævedi litus, prælabi menia, sc. præter litus, præter menia.

68. After they came to a conference, peace was concluded between them.

The swallows come before summer, they take pleasure to fly through the air.

The boy practises piety towards God, reverence towards men.

The general drew up his army on this side the Alps, no body ever fought more stoutly against an enemy.

He takes the towns about Capua, he rewards the soldiers according to their bravery.

The moon drives her chariot beneath the sun, the heaven is stretched out above the clouds.

69. The boy is praised by us, he is Postquam venio ad colloquium, pax ordino inter is.

Hirundo venio ante æstas, gaudeo volito per aura.

Puer exerceo pietas adversus Deus, reverentia erga homo.

Dux instruo acies cis Alpes, nemo unquam pugno fortiter contra hostis.

Occupo urbs circa Capua, remuneror miles secundum virtus.

Luna ago currus infra sol, cælum porrigo supra nubes.

Puer laudo a ego, probo abs approved by you, he is blamed by others without reason.

Friends are changed with fortune, hatred is often repaid for favour, a tree is known by its fruit.

After the battle, the general began to treat about a peace without delay.

Whilst he was sailing cross the river, the boat began to sink, he is wet up to the chin.

70. Showers are poured down into the valleys, whilst snow falls upon the hills.

The shepherds came under the mountains with their flocks, at length they were forced by the rain to drive them into folds under the ground.

71. Whilst Peter was sitting in the parlour, the boys were playing in the porch, the girls were dancing under a tree.

The soldiers sat down upon the grass, nigh the shore, where they dined in presence of their general.

Phaeton for fear fell from heaven into the Po in Italy; his sisters bewailed his death, till they were all changed into poplar trees.

Whilst the war is carried on in Numidia against Jugurtha, the Romans were defeated by the Gauls nigh the Rhone.

Towards the evening the nobility fled out of the city, passed over into Greece, levied war in Epire against Cæsar.

Cæsar is sent into Germany, he marches with his army beyond the Rhine, lays waste the country, returns with glory to winter-quarters.

72. The shepherd passes by the village, goes to the city, where he stays a long time; he is ordered to depart from the town, to return to his flocks; but he would not desist from his purpose.

¶ Mardonius accosts Xerxes affrighted at his defeat, and doubtful what course to take: he advises him to go away into his kingdom, lest the fame of this unfortunate war should occasion any sedition. His advice being approved, an army is delivered to Mardonius; the king himself prepares to draw back the rest of the troops into his kingdom: but the Greeks, having heard of the king's flight, enter into a design of breaking down the bridge which he had made at Abydos.

tu, culpo ab alius absque causa.

Amicus muto cum fortuna, odium sæpe reddo pro gratia, arbor dignosco ex fructus.

Post pugna, dux corpi ago de pax sine mora.

Dum veho trans fluvius, cymba corpi fido, madefio mentum tenus.

Imber fundo in vallis, dum nix cado super mons.

Pastor venio sub mons cum grex, tandem cego ab imber ago is in septum subter terra.

Dum Petrus sedeo in coenaculum, puer colludo in vestibulum, puella salto sub arbor.

Miles discumbo super gramen, subter litus, ubi prandeo coram dux.

Phaeton præ timor cado de cælum in Padus in Italia; soror lugeo mors, donec omnis muto in populus.

Dum bellum gero in Numidia contra Jugurtha, Romanus vinco a Gallus juxta Rhodanus.

Sub vespertus nobilitas fugio ex urbs, transeo in Græcia, paro bellum apud Epirus contra Cæsar.

Cæsar mitto in Germania, pergo cum exercitus ultra Rhenus, vasto ager, revertor cum gloria in hyberna.

Pastor prætereo villa, adeo urbs, ubi diu commoror; ju-beo decedo oppidum, redeo ad grex; at nolo abisto incep-tum.

Mardonius aggredior Xerxes percussus hic clades, et dubius consilium: hortor ut in regnum abeo, ne quid seditio fama adversus bellum moveo. Probatum consilium, exercitus trado Mardonius; rex ipse paro reduco reliquus copia in regnum: sed Græci, auditus rex fuga, inco consilium interrumpendus pons qui ille Abydos facio.

Thus, after Atticus had abstained from food for two days, on a sudden his fever went off, and the distemper began to be more easy; he died, however, the fifth day after, the day before the Kalends of April, when Cn. Domitius and C. Sossius were consuls. He was carried to his funeral upon a little couch, as he himself had ordered, without any pomp of funeral, all good people attending him. He was buried near the Appian way, at the fifth mile-stone, in the monument of Q. Cæcilius his uncle.

In the mean time the Romans, sending the Scipios into Spain, first drove the Carthaginians out of the province: afterwards they carried on terrible wars with the Spaniards themselves; nor would the Spaniards receive the yoke, till Cæsar Augustus, after he had conquered the world, carried his victorious arms to them, and reduced the barbarous and savage people into the form of a province.

The Dorians consulted the oracle about the event of the contest; answer was made them, That they should be superior, unless they killed the king of the Athenians. Codrus was king of the Athenians at that time; who having got notice of the answer of the god, changing his royal habit, entered the enemy's camp, he is slain by a foldier, whom he had wounded with a cutting-knife. The king's body being known, the Dorians march off without fighting; and thus the Athenians are delivered from the war, by the bravery of their prince, offering himself to the safety of his country.

A desire of visiting the sacred residence of the god Serapis, whom Egypt, a nation devoted to superstition, adores beyond all other, seized Vespasian, that he might consult him about affairs of the empire: and having entered the temple, and being intent upon the deity, behind his own back he perceived Basilides, whom he knew to be several days journey from Alexandria. He examines the priests, whether Basilides that day had entered the temple? he asks, whether he had been seen in the city? At last, dispatching horsemen, he learns, that he

Sic, cum Atticus abstineo cibis biduum, subito febris decedo, morbusque cæpi sum levis; decedo, tamen, quintus exinde dies, pridie Kalendæ Aprilis, Cn. Domitius, C. Sossius consul. Effero in lecticula, ut ipse præscribo, sine ullus pompa funus, omnis bonus comitans. Sepelio juxta via Appius, ad quintus lapis, in monumentum Q. Cæcilius avunculus suus.

Interea Romani, missus in Hispania Scipio, primo Pœni provincia expello: postea cum ipse Hispani gravis bellum gero; nec prius jugum Hispani accipio volo, quam Cæsar Augustus, perdomitus orbis, victrix ad is arma transfero, populisque barbarus ac ferus in forma provincia redigo.

Dorientes de eventus prælium oraculum consulo; respondetur, is superior forem, ni rex Athenienses occido. Athenienses is tempus rex Codrus sum; qui responsum deus cognitus, permutatus regius habitus, castra hostis ingredior, interficio a miles, qui saevus vulnero. Rex corpus cognitus, Dorientes sine prælium discendo; atque ita Athenienses, virtus dux, pro salus patria mors sui offerens, bellum libero.

Cupido adeundum facer sedes deus Serapis, qui Ægyptus, gens deditus superstitioni, colo ante omnis alius, capio Vespasianus, ut consulo is super res imperium: atque ingressus templum, intentusque numen, pone tergum suus respicio Basilides, qui nosco plus dies 6 iter absum Alexandria. Percontor sacerdos, num ille dies Basilides templum in eo? percontor, num in urbs video? Denique, missus eques, exploro, was at that instant eighty miles from thence. is ille tempus momentum octoginta 6 mille passus absum.

Neptune, Vulcan, and Minerva, disputed which of them was the most skilful artificer; whereupon Neptune made a bull, Minerva a house, and Vulcan a man; and they chose Momus judge. But Momus chid them all three. He accused Neptune of imprudence, because he had not placed the bull's horns in his forehead betwixt his eyes; for then the bull might give a stronger and surer blow. He accused Minerva of folly, because her house was immoveable, and could not be carried away if it happened to be placed among ill neighbours. But he said Vulcan was the most imprudent of them all, because he had not made a window in the man's breast, that he might see what his thoughts were.

Merchants are of great benefit to the public. They knit mankind together in a mutual intercourse of good offices; they distribute the gifts of nature, find work to the poor, add wealth to the rich, and magnificence to the great. Our fleets of British merchantmen are so many squadrons of floating shops, that vend our wares and manufactures in all the markets of the world; and, with dangerous industry, find out chapmen under both tropics. Our British merchant converts the tin of his country into gold, and exchanges his wool for rubies. The Mahometans are clothed in our British manufactures, and the inhabitants of the frozen zone are warmed with the fleeces of our sheep.

Robert Bruce, the son of that Robert Bruce, who, in the year 1285, had contended with Baliol about the succession, was crowned king of the Scots at Scoon in the year 1306. He was a man of great bravery in war, and of great moderation in peace. The strength of his mind in adversity was wonderful. Though his wife was taken prisoner; though his four brothers, all brave men, were cruelly butchered; and though he himself was stripped not only of his paternal estate, but of his kingdom, by Edward king of England; yet his mind was so far from sinking under this load of affliction, that he never lost hopes of recovering his kingdom. Few of the ancients may be compared to Robert Bruce. Cato and Brutus laid violent hands on themselves; Marius thirsting after revenge, entered into wicked and cruel measures against his country. Robert, after recovering his kingdom, forgot the ill usage of his enemies.

3. OF INTERJECTIONS.

* 73. THE interjections O, heu, and proh, govern the nominative or vocative, and sometimes the accusative.

Nom. O what a face!
Ah ignorant souls!
Oh the pain!
Voc. O my father!
Ah wretched boy!
O awful Jove!

3. INTERJECTIONUM.

1. INTERJECTIONES O, heu, et proh, regunt nominativum, aut vocativum, interdum et accusativum.

O qualis facies!
Heu ignarae mentes!
Proh dolor!
O mi pater!
Heu miserande puer!
Proh sancte Jupiter!

Acc. O distressed old age!

Ah unhappy creature that I am!

O the faith of gods and men!

O calamitosam senectutem!

Heu me infelicem!

Proh deum hominumque fidem!

NOTE 1. O before the vocative is often suppressed; as, Virg. Musa, mihi causas memora; and, indeed, strictly speaking, the vocative is always absolute, being governed by no word whatever.

NOTE 2. These, or the like constructions, may be thus supplied: O quam his facies est huic! Heu mentes ignavae sunt! Proh quantus est dolor! O quam calamitosam senectutem experior! Heu quam me infelicem sentio! Proh deum atque hominum fidem imploro vel obtestor! The word fidem is sometimes suppressed.

74. Hei and væ govern the dative.

Ah me!

Wo to you!

2. Hei et væ regunt dativum.

Hei mihi!

Væ tibi!

NOTE 1. Heus and obe take the vocative only; as, Ter. Heus Syre! Mart. Obe libellé!

NOTE 2. Ab and vab take the accusative, or vocative; as, Ter. Ab me miserum! Virg. Ab virgo infelix! Lucret. Vab inconstantiam! Plaut. Vab salus mea!

NOTE 3. Hem takes the dative, accusative, or vocative; as, Ter. Hem tibi! Id. Hem astutias! Id. Hem Davum tibi! Cic. Hem mea lux!

NOTE 4. Most of the other interjections, and frequently also these mentioned, are thrown into discourse without any case subjoined to them.

NOTE 5. The dative is fitly subjoined to interjections, as well as to other parts of speech; the vocative is absolute; and the accusative may be thus supplied: Ab me miserum sentio! Vab quam inconstantiam narras! Hem astutias videte! Hem Davum obviam tibi vide!

75. O man valiant and friendly! O joyful day!

Ah the piety! Ah the faith of ancient times! Ah the vanity of men!

Oh the pain! Oh the wickedness! Oh the manners! We degenerate from our parents.

O Davus! Am I thus despised by you? Ah wretched boy!

Ah fortune! what god is more cruel than you? you always take pleasure to sport with the designs of men.

O awful Jove! what greater thing has been done on earth?

O the times! O the fashions! O the wretched minds of men! O blind souls!

Ah wretch that I am! why am I forced to this?

By the faith of gods and men, the victory is in our hands.

O i vir fortis atque amicus! O festus i dies!

Heu i pietas! Heu i fides priscus! Heu i vanitas humanus!

Proh i dolor! Proh i scelus! Proh i mos! Degenero a parens noster.

O Davus! itane contemnor ab tu? Heu miserandus puer!

Heu fortuna! quis deus sum crudelus tu? semper gaudeo illudo res humanus.

Proh sanctus Jupiter! quis res magnus gero in terra?

O 4 tempus! O 4 mos! O miser homo 4 mens! O 4 pectus cæcus!

Heu 4 ego miser! cur coge hic facio?

Proh deus atque homo 4 fides, victoria ego in manus sum.

74. Ah me! woes me! love is curable by no herbs.

¶ When Titus one day recollected, at supper, that he had done nothing for any one that day, he said, O friends! to-day I have lost a day. He was a prince of so much easiness and generosity, that he denied no man any thing; and when he was blamed for it by his friends, he replied, that no man ought to go away sorrowful from an emperor.

To you, says Alexander, O most faithful and most affectionate of countrymen and friends! I do give thanks, not only because to-day you have preferred my life to your own, but because since the beginning of the war, you have omitted no token or expression of kindness towards me.

This was another occasion of making war against Jugurtha; wherefore the following revenge is committed to Albinus: but O shameful! the Numidian so corrupted his army, that he prevailed by the voluntary flight of our men, and took our camp; and a scandalous treaty being added for the purchase of their security, he dismissed the army which he had before bought.

O dreadful assurance in the midst of so much adversity! O the singular courage and spirit of the Roman people! Whilst Annibal was flying over their throat through Campania and Apulia, at the same time they both withstood him; and sent their arms into Sicily, Sardinia, and Spain. O people worthy of the empire of the world! worthy of the favour and admiration of gods and men.

The Lord is just and righteous, and will judge the earth with equity and truth. Think not, O bold man! because thy punishment is delayed, that the arm of the Lord is weakened; neither flatter thyself with hopes that he winketh at thy doings. The high and the low, the rich and the poor, the wise and the ignorant, when the soul hath shaken off the cumbrous shackles of this mortal life, shall equally receive from the sentence of God a just and everlasting retribution, according to their works. Then shall the wicked tremble and be afraid, but the heart of the righteous shall rejoice in his judgments.

The thoughtless man bridleth not his tongue; wo be to him, he speaketh at random, and is entangled in the foolishness of his own words. Hearken, therefore, O young man, unto the voice of consideration; her words are the words of wisdom, and her paths shall lead thee to safety and truth.

Hei ego! vae ego! nullus amor sum medicabilis herba.

Cum Titus quidam dies recordeor, in cena, sui nihil quicquam praestitisse ille dies, dico, O amicus! hodie dies perdo. Sum princeps tantus facilitas et liberalitas, ut nullus quisquam nego; et cum ab amicus reprehendo, respondeo, nullus tristis debeo ab imperator discedo.

Tu, inquam Alexander, O fidus piusque civis atque amicus! grates ago, non solum quod hodie salus meus vester praepono, sed quod a primordium bellum, nullus erga ego benevolentia pignus aut indicium omitto.

Hic sum alter causa bellandum contra Jugurtha; igitur sequens ultio mando Albinus: sed pro dedecus! Numidia ita corrumpto hic exercitus, ut vinco voluntarius fuga noster, castraque potior; et turpis foedus additus in pretium salus, dimitto exercitus qui prius emo.

O horribilis in tot adversus 4 fiducia! O singularis 4 animus ac 4 spiritus populus Romanus! Cum Annibal in jugulum per Campania Apuliaque volito, idem tempus et hic sustineo, et in Sicilia, Sardinia, Hispaniaque arma mitto. O 4 populus dignus orbis imperium! dignus favor et admiratio deus ac homo.

4. OF CONJUNCTIONS.

* 75. THE conjunctions, et,
ac, atque, nec, neque, aut, vel, and some others, couple like cases and moods.

Honour your father and mother.
He neither writes nor reads.

NOTE 1. To these add, quam, nisi, præterquam, an; also, nempe, licet, quomvis, quantumvis, nedum, sed, verum, &c. And adverbs of likeness; as, sæpe, tantum, quasi, ut, velut, &c.

NOTE 2. If the words or clauses in a sentence require or admit of a different construction, this rule does not take place; as, Cic. Mea et reipublica interest. Juv. Sexcentis et plurius emptæ. Boet. Mulier colore vivo et inex- hausti vigoris. Sall. Ubi videt neque per vim, neque insidias opprimi posse hominem.
Pers. Tecum habita, et noris quam sit tibi curia suppellex.

76. Ut, quo, licet, ne, utinam, and dummodo, are for the most part joined with the subjunctive mood.

I read that I may learn.
I wish you were wise.

4. CONJUNCTIONUM.

1. CONJUNCTIONES, et,
ac, atque, nec, neque,
aut, vel, et quædam aliæ, connectunt similes casus et modus.

Honora patrem et matrem.
Nec scribit nec legit.

2. Ut, quo, licet, ne, uti- nam, et dummodo, subjunctivo modo fere semper ad-hærent.

Lego ut discam.
Utinam sapires.

NOTE 1. To these add all interrogatives, when taken indefinitely, whether they be nouns; as, quantus, qualis, quotus, quotuplex, uter: or pronouns; as, quis, cujus: or adverbs; as, ubi, quo, unde, qua, quorsum, quando, quandiu, quoties, cui, quare, quomobrem, quomodo, qui, &c.: or conjunctions; as, ne, an, anne, annon. These, when used interrogatively, stand first in a sentence, and take the indicative; but when a word goes before them in the sentence, such as, scio, nescio, video, intelligo, rogo, peto, cedo, dico, dubito or incertus, dubius, ignarus, and the like, they generally become indefinite, and take the subjunctive; as, Hor. Quæ virtus, et quanta boni, sit vivere parvo, discite. Cic.
Ut sciam quid agas, ubi quoque, et maxime quando Roma futurus sis. Ovid. Nes- cit vitæ fruat, an sit apud manes.

NOTE 2. Ne takes the imperative or subjunctive; as, ne time, or ne timeas.
After the verb cave it is often suppressed; as, cave facias.

NOTE 3. Ut, after these verbs, volo, nolo, malo, rogo, precor, censeo, suadeo, liet, oportet, necesse est, and the like; also after these imperatives, sine, fac, or facito, is elegantly suppressed; as, Ter. Ducas volo bodis uxorem. Id. Fac te patrem esse sentiat.

NOTE 4. Utinam is the same as ut or uti, and has opto understood; as,
Utinam sapires, i. e. opto ut sapires.

NOTE 5. Ut and quod are thus distinguished; ut denotes the final cause, and generally respects what is future; or, after adeo, ita, sic, tam, talis, tan- tus, tot, and the like, it signifies the manner; but quod denotes the motive or efficient cause, and commonly relates to what is past.

NOTE 6. Ne after timeo, metuo, vereor, paveo, is used affirmatively; as, Ter. Timeat ne se deserat. But ut, after these verbs, is put for ne, non, or used negatively; as, Cic. Videris vereri ut epistolas illas acceperim, i. e. ne non acceperim.

75. Riches breed pride and insolence.

Scipio took and destroyed Carthage.

Drunkenness impairs wealth and reputation.

Time consumes iron and stones.

The man does wickedly; he neither fears God nor honours the king.

Covetousness is never satisfied nor satiated.

A soldier, according to his bravery, is praised or dispraised.

The poets design either to profit or to please.

Whether I be silent or speak, he goes on to provoke.

I would more willingly receive than do an injury.

When a man fears nothing but a witness and a judge, what will he not do in the dark?

Nothing can be taken from us, except liberty or life.

Avoid idleness as a plague; glory attends virtue as a shadow.

Honour, like the rainbow, flies the pursuer, and pursues the flier.

76. God did not send his Son into the world, that he might condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him.

I did this that I might escape the more quickly; but do you assist me, that it may be done the more easily.

I will discover the theft, though he threatens arms and death.

Be not hasty to speak, take care you do not stammer, take care you do not lose your courage.

Virtue procures and preserves friendship. I wish you may do your duty carefully.

I will come to a conference, provided there be a wall betwixt you and me.

¶ In the five hundred and fifty-first year from the building of the city, T. Quintius Flaminius is sent against Philip king of Macedonia; he managed his Divitiæ pario superbia et arrogantia.

Scipio capio ac diruo Carthago.

Ebrietas minuo opes atque honor.

Vetustas consumo ferrum lapisque.

Homo ago improbe; nec timeo Deus nec honoro rex.

Cupiditas nunquam expleo neque satio.

Miles, pro virtus, laudo aut vitupero.

Poeta volo vel profum vel delecto.

Sive ego taceo sive loquor, ille pergo lætello.

Libenter accipio quam facio injuria.

Cum homo timeo nihil nisi testis ac iudex, quis non facio in tenebræ?

Nihil possum eripio a ego, præterquam libertas aut vita.

Fugio desidia ceu pestis; gloria sequor virtus tanquam umbra.

Honos, ut iris, fugio sequens, et sequor fugiens.

Deus non mitto Filius in mundus, ut condemnno mundus, sed ut mundus servo peris.

Facio hic quo evado celeriter; sed tu adjuto ego, quo is fio facile.

Detego furtum, licet arma morsque minor.

Ne festino loquor, caveo ne titubo, caveo ne perdo animus.

Virtus concilio et conservo amicitia. Utinam facio officium diligenter.

Venio ad colloquium, dummodo murus sum inter tu et ego.

Quingentesimus et quinquagesimus primus annus ab urbs conditus, T. Quintius Flaminius adversus Philippus rex Ma-affairs successfully; a peace was granted to the king upon these terms, that he should not make war upon the cities of Greece which the Romans had defended against him; that he should restore the prisoners and deserters.

Pompey restored the hostages to the Antiochians, gave some land to the Daphnensians, that the grove there might be made more spacious, being mightily taken with the pleasantness of the place, and the plenty of water. Going from thence to Judea, he took Jerusalem, the metropolis of the nation, in three months, killing twelve thousand of the Jews, the rest being admitted to quarter.

Titus succeeded Vespasian, a man admirable for all sorts of virtues, so that he was called the darling and delight of mankind. He was a man of so much moderation in his government at Rome, that he punished nobody at all, and so dismissed those convicted of conspiring against him, that he kept them in the same familiarity as before. He was very eloquent too; he pleaded causes in Latin; he composed poems and tragedies in Greek.

Germanicus, when his end approached, turning to his wife, besought her, by the memory of himself, by their common children, that she would lay aside her haughty spirit, that she would submit her mind to fortune; and not long after he expires. Foreign nations and kings lamented him, strangers bewailed Germanicus; his funeral without images was grand by the praises and memory of his virtues.

One of the Magi warned Alexander, as he was hastening to Babylon, not to enter the city, declaring that this place would be fatal to him; for this reason, waving Babylon, he went to Borsippa, a city beyond the Euphrates: there he was engaged again by Anaxarchus the philosopher to slight the predictions of the Magi, as false and uncertain; wherefore he returned to Babylon.

All nations in the west and south being conquered, the Scythians and Sarmatians sent ambassadors to Rome, begging an alliance; the Seres, and the Indians that live under the sun, with jewels and cedonia mitto: res prospere gero; pax rex do hic lex, ne Græcia civitas qui Romanus contra is defendo bellum infero; ut captivus et transfuga reddo.

Pompeius Antiochenſes obſes reddo, aliquantum ager Daphnenſes do, quo lucus ibi ſpatioſus ſio, delectatus amenitas locus, et aqua abundantia. Inde ad Judæa tranſgreſſus, Hieroſolyma, caput gens, tertius menſis, capio, duodecim mille Judæi occiſus, cæter in fides acceptus.

Vefpaſianus Titus ſuccedo, vir omnis virtus genus mirabilis, adeo ut amor et deliciæ humanus genus dico. Sum vir tantus civilitas in imperium Roma, ut nullus omnino punio, atque convictus adverſum fuiſui conjuratio ita dimitto, ut in idem familiaritas qui antea habeo. Sum etiam facundus; cauſa Latine ago; poema et tragædia Græce compono.

Germanicus, ubi finis adſum, ad uxor verſus, per memoria fui, per communis liberi oro, ut exuo ferocia, ut fortuna ſubmitto animus; neque multo poſt extinguo. Indoleo exterus natio rexque, Germanicus ignotus fleo; ſunus ſine imago per laus et memoria virtus celebris ſum.

Alexander Babylon feſtinans, quidam ex Magus prædico, ne urbs introeo, teſtatus hic locus is fatalis forem; ob hic cauſa, omiſſus Babylon, in Boriſſippa, urbs trans Euphrates, concedo: ibi ab Anaxarchus philoſophus compello rurſum Magus prædictum contemno, ut falſus et incertus; revertor igitur Babylon.

Omnis ad occaſus et meridies pacatus gens, Scythæ et Sarmatæ mitto Roma legatus, amicitia petens; Seres, habitantes ſub ipſe ſol Indi, cum pearls, brought elephants too amongst their presents: the length of their journey was so great, that they scarce finished it in four years. Thus every where there was peace, insomuch that Cæsar Augustus at last ventured, in the seven hundredth year from the building of the city, to shut the double-faced Janus. Augustus, for his great actions, was called the FATHER of his COUNTRY.

gemma et margarita, elephas quoque inter munus traho: longinquitas via tantus sum, ut vix 6 quadriennium impleo. Sic ubique pax sum, adeo ut Cæsar Augustus audeo tandem, septingentesimus ab urbs conditus annus, Janus geminus claudo. Augustus, ob factum ingens, PATER PATRIA dico.

By a virtuous emulation, the spirit of a man is exalted within him; he panteth after fame, and rejoiceth as a racer to run his course. He riseth like the palm-tree, in spite of oppression, and as an eagle in the firmament of heaven, he soareth aloft, and fixeth his eye upon the glories of the sun. The examples of eminent men are in his visions by night; and his delight is to follow them all the day long.

A famous critic, having gathered all the faults of an eminent poet, made a present of them to Apollo; who received them very graciously, and resolved to make the author a suitable return for the trouble he had been at in collecting them. In order to this, he set before him a sack of wheat as it had been threshed out of the sheaf. He then bid him pick out the chaff from among the corn, and lay it aside by itself. The critic applied himself to the task with great industry and pleasure; and after having made the due separation, was presented by Apollo with the chaff for his pains.

Mankind seem to be no less accountable for the ill usage of their dominion over creatures of the lower rank, than for the exercise of tyranny over their own species. The more entirely the inferior creation is submitted to our power, the more tenderly ought we to use it. It is certainly the part of a good man, to take care of his horses and dogs, not only in expectation of their labour, while they are foals and whelps, but even when their old age has made them incapable of service. There is a passage in the book of Jonas, where God declares his aversion to destroy Nineveh, where that compassion of the Creator, which extends to the meanest rank of his creatures, is expressed with wonderful tenderness:—Should I not spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than six score thousand persons, and also much cattle? and in the book of Deuteronomy, we have a precept to this purpose, with a blessing annexed to it, in these words: If thou shalt find a bird's nest in the way, thou shalt not take the dam with the young. But thou shalt in anywise let the dam go; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

ANCIENT HISTORY EPITOMIZED:

OR,

A SHORT VIEW OF THE PRINCIPAL TRANSACTIONS
AND EVENTS THAT OCCUR IN HISTORY,
FROM THE CREATION OF THE WORLD TO THE BIRTH OF CHRIST.

Digested chronologically, and adapted to the method of the INTRODUCTION TO LATIN SYNTAX, the English being in one column, and the Latin words in another.

Intended as a proper mean to initiate boys in the useful study of HISTORY, at the same time that it serves to improve them in the knowledge of the LATIN TONGUE.

TO WHICH IS ADDED,

*A proper Collection of Historical and Chronological Questions,
With a Copious Index.*

IN
v nifi
Ad gav turn
Ca wa ter bro
Ab
the
Th
to
- pro
Th for 2
Set cre
the hea mil lah live gen abu full Set gav and tice mo
3 wor bir wic
the day and mo ren goc

ANCIENT HISTORY EPITOMIZED.

CHAP. I.

From the Creation to the Deluge, which includes 1656 years.

IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth, and curiously finished them in the space of six days. To Adam, the first of the human race, he gave command over all the other creatures. Adam, by his wife Eve, begat Cain and Abel; the former of whom was a tiller of the ground, and the latter a shepherd. But wickedness soon breaking out in his family, Cain slew Abel. Cain's posterity invented music, the working of iron, and other arts. The descendants of Seth, who was born to Adam after the murder of Abel, proved virtuous; those of Cain vicious. The world was created 4004 years before the Christian æra.

2. Enoch, the fifth in descent from Seth, about a thousand years after the creation of the world, was taken up from the society and converse of men, into heaven, on account of his intimate familiarity with God. His son Methuselah died a natural death, after he had lived near a thousand years. But men, generally unmindful of death, began to abuse longevity; for most of them lived full 900 years. Moreover the family of Seth intermarrying with that of Cain, gave birth to a gigantic race of men; and degenerating into heathenish practices, broke through all the restraints of modesty and duty.

3. Wherefore, 1656 years after the world was created, and 2348 before the birth of Christ, God, provoked with the wickedness of men, determines to drown the whole world by a deluge. Forty days the waters increased exceedingly, and rose fifteen cubits above the highest mountains; no living creature any where remained, except those which Noah, a good man, saved by the direction of God.

PRINCIPIUM creò Deus cœlum et terrâ, idemque sex dies exorno spatium. Adamus, humanus genus princeps, creatura cæteri præpono. Adamus, ex uxor Eva, Cainus et Abel gigno; qui ille agricola, hic pastor sum. Sed cito domesticus malum subortus, Abel Cainus interficio. Cainus posteri, musica, ferraria, aliisque ars invenio. Impius Cainus; pius Sethus, qui post interemptus Abel Adamus nascor, progenies existo. Creò mundus annus ante æra Christianus 4004.

Enochus, Sethus trinepos, annus post mundus conditus prope millesimus, ob summus Deus familiaritas divinitus sum ex homo cœtus atque oculus raptus. Hic filius Methusales, cum annus fere mille vivo, fatum fungor. Vulgo autem mortalis, mors oblitus, vita longitudo (plerique enim annus expleo nonagesimus) abutor ceppi. Sethus porro gens connubium cum Cainus gens junctus, gigas progigno; et in externus lapsus mos, omnis pudor atque officium repagulum perfringo.

Itaque, annus post mundus conditus 1656, et ante natus Christus 2348, Deus, homo nequitia iratus, totus terra orbis diluvium submergo statuo. Aqua quadraginta dies vehementer inundo, et mons altus quindecim cubitus transcendendo; animans nihil usquam reliquus fio, præter is qui Noes, vir bonus, Deus monitus, in arca, in a certain large vessel or ark. After the flood, the measure of man's strength and life was lessened. From the three sons of Noah, Shem, Ham, and Japheth, all the families of the earth have gradually been propagated.

seu navis quidam ingens, asserve. Sub cluvio, vis et vita homo imminuo. A tres Noes filius, Semus, Chamus, et Japhetus, gens omnis totus terra orbis paulatim sum propagatus.

CHAP. II.

From the Deluge to the Vocation of Abraham, containing 427 years.

THE posterity of Noah, about 101 years after the flood, before their dispersion, entered upon a project of building a city and a tower, whose top might reach to heaven. But the divine power checked the insolent attempts of mortals. They all then used the same language, which on a sudden was miraculously divided into a multiplicity of tongues. Accordingly the intercourse of speech being cut off, the building was laid aside. After this the earth began to be peopled. The city thus begun, from the confusion of languages, was first called Babel, and afterwards Babylon. Nimrod having subdued some neighbouring people by force of arms, reigned in it the first after the flood.

2. About the time of Nimrod, Egypt seems to have been divided into four dynasties, or principalities; Thebes, Thin, Memphis, and Tanis. From this period also, the Egyptians laws and policy take their rise. Already they began to make a figure in the knowledge of astronomy; they first adjusted the year to the annual revolution of the sun. The inhabitants of this country were renowned for their wisdom and learning, even in the earliest times. Their Hermes, or Mercury Trismegistus, filled all Egypt with useful inventions. He, according to them, first taught men music, letters, religion, eloquence, statuary, and other arts besides. Most historians say, that Æsculapius, or Tosorthus, king of Memphis, first discovered physic and anatomy. In fine, the ancient Egyptians, as to arts and sciences, and the illustrious monuments of wealth and grandeur, have deservedly obtained the preference among all nations of the world. Every body owns, that Menes was the first mortal who reigned over Egypt. But NOES poster, annus post diluvium circiter centesimus primus, ante digressus, in eo confilium extruo urbs et turris, qui fastigium ad cœlum pertingo. Cæterum superbus mortalis conatus divinus obsto nunt. Repeate unus, qui tum utor omnis, lingua in multifarius divinitus dispertio. Sublatus igitur sermo commercium, ædificatio abjicio. Ex is terra orbis frequento cœpi. Urbs sic inchoatus, ex lingua confusio, Babel primum, deinde Babylon appello. In is primus post diluvium imperito Nimbrothus, vicinus quidam gens vis et arma subactus.

Sub tempus Nimbrothus, quatuor in dynastia, seu principatus, Ægyptus divido videor; Thebæ, Thinus, Memphis, Tanisque. Ex is quoque tempus, Ægyptius lex politique ortus suus ducor. Astronomia scientia jam cœpi eniteo; ad cursus sol hic primus annus describo. Hicce regio incolæ, ob sapientia literæque, primus etiam tempus sum celeber. Hermes ipse, vel Mercurius Trismegistus, bonus ars Ægyptus totus compleo. Hic, secundum ille, literæ, musica, rhetorica, statuaria, aliisque præterea ars, mortalis primus instituo. Physica ac anatomice auctor, Æsculapius, vel Tosorthus, Memphis rex plerique sum volo. Vetus denique Ægyptius, quoad ars scientiaque ac præclarus opes magnificentiaque monumentum, apud cunctas terra orbis gens, palma merito sum potitus. Menes, mortalis primus, Ægyptus impe-the most famous amongst their princes was Sesostris; who with amazing rapidity overran and conquered Asia, and, subduing the countries beyond the Ganges, advanced eastward as far as the ocean. At last losing his sight, he laid violent hands on himself. The kings of that part of Egypt, whereof Tanis was the capital, took all the name of Pharaoh.

3. Belus is said to have reigned at Babylon; whose son Ninus caused his father's image to be worshipped as a god. This is remarked to have been the origin of idols. Ninus, fired with the lust of sovereignty, began to extend his empire by arms. He reduced Asia under his dominion; made himself master of Bactria, by vanquishing Oxyartes king of the Bactrians, and the inventor of magic. He enlarged the city Nineveh that had been built by Ashur; and founded the empire of the Assyrians. He himself reigned 54 years.

4. Semiramis, the wife of Ninus, a woman of a masculine spirit, transferred the crown to herself in prejudice of her son, who was yet a minor. By her was Babylon adorned in a most magnificent manner; Asia, Media, Persia, Egypt, overrun with mighty armies; a great part of Libya and Ethiopia conquered. At last she voluntarily resigned the sceptre, after she had swayed it 42 years. But Justin says she was murdered by her son Ninias.

5. Ninias degenerated quite from both his parents, and giving up the management of his kingdom to lieutenants, he shut himself up in his palace, entirely abandoned to his pleasures. He had thirty or more of the Assyrian monarchs that successively followed his worthless example, the following ones being always worse than the former; the last of whom was Sardanapalus, a man more effeminate than a woman. He being defeated by Arbaces, governor of the Medes, betook himself into his palace, where, erecting a funeral pile, he burnt himself, his wives, and all his wealth. Thus Arbaces transferred the empire from the Assyrians to the Medes, after it had lasted, as some say, 1300 years.

ro, nemo sum qui nego. Inclytus vero inter ille rex sum Sesostris, qui mirus celeritas Asia victor peragro, populisque extra Ganges perdomitus, oriens versus ad oceanus usque progredior. Tandem cæcitas laborans, mors sui conscisco. Rex iste Ægyptus pars, qui caput sum Tanis, Pharaon cognomen cunctus usurpo.

Belus Babylon regno dico; qui filius Ninus parens suus simulacrum colo jubeo pro deus. Is idolum origo noto. Ninus, impero studium flagrans, imperium arma propago instituo. Asia in suus redigo ditio; Oxyartes Bactrianus rex, idemque magica inventor, debellatus, Bactria potior. Idem Nineve urbs ab Ashur conditus amplio; Assyrius imperium constituo. Ipse regno 54 annus.

Semiramis virago, Ninus conjux, elusus filius, ætas minor, regnum ad sui transfero. Ab is Babylon magnificenter sum constructus; Asia, Media, Persia, Ægyptus, ingens cum exercitus peragratus; magnus Libya Æthiopique pars subactus. Tandem imperium sponte suus depono, postquam annus 42 teneo. At Justinus scribo is a filius Ninias truido.

Ninias ab uterque parens penitus degenero, regnumque administratio præfectus commissus, totus voluptas suus deditus regia sui contineo. Nequitia suus imitator triginta aut plus, deinceps Assyrius rex habeo, alius alius nequam; qui ultimus Sardanapalus sum vir mulier corruptus. Is ab Arbactes, Medus præfectus prælium victus, in regia sui recipio, ubi, rogus extructus, sui cum conjux, divitiæque suus concremo. Ita imperium, ab Assyrius ad Medes, Arbactes transfero, postquam, ut nonnullus volo, annus 1300 duro. Sed totus hic Assyrius imperium descriptio

But this whole account of the Assyrian empire is rejected by very good authors, as false and fictitious. The history of this monarchy that appears rational, and agreeable to scripture, is related chap. vii. 2.

6. Abraham, the father of the Hebrews, by nation a Chaldean, descended from Heber, is called by God, in the year of the flood 428, and before Christ 1920. Whilst he sojourned in Palestine, the seat promised to his posterity, being pinched by a famine, he went down into Egypt. Returning from thence, he delivered Lot, his brother's son, who had been carried off prisoner from Sodom. After this he paid tithes to the priest Melchisedeck. Moreover, being now 100 years old, having, at the divine command, circumcised himself and his family, he had, by his wife Sarah, Isaac, the son promised him by God. Isaac was not yet born, when Abraham, by his prevailing intercession with God, rescued Lot, together with his wife and children, from the burning of Sodom. But Lot's wife, for looking back, was turned into a pillar of salt. Further, Abraham's faith being tried by God, became eminently illustrious; for God commanding him to sacrifice with his own hand, his only son Isaac, the sole hope of any progeny, he scrupled not to obey. His readiness to comply was accepted instead of actual performance.

7. About the same time, as Eusebius supposes, lived the Titans in Crete; the eldest of whom was Saturn, who is said to be the father of Jupiter. Jupiter was regarded as a god, on account of his fatherly affection towards his people. His brothers were Neptune and Pluto, the one admiral of the king's fleet, the other inventor of funeral ceremonies in Greece. Which circumstances, amongst the foolish ancients, procured the empire of the sea to the former as a divinity, and to the latter, the sovereignty of hell as a god.

ab optimus scriptor ut falsus et fictus rejicio. Historia hic imperium, qui verisimilis, et sacer literæ consentaneus video, caput vii. 2. enarro.

Abrahamus, Hebræus parens, genus Chaldæus, ab Heberus origo traho, a Deus evoco, annus a diluvium 428, et ante Christum natus 1920. Palestina, sedes posterius suus promissus, cum peragro, annona inopia coactus, descendendo in Egyptum. Inde reversus, Lotus, frater filius, Sodomæ abductus, liberò. Deinde Melchizedecus sacerdos decumæ persolvo. Porro, jam centenarius, cum sui ac suus, Deus iussu, præputium circumcido, e Sara conjux, divinitus promissus Isaacus filius gigno. Nondum nascor Isaacus, cum Abrahamus Lotus, una cum is uxor ac liberi (Deus exoratus), Sodomæ incendium eximo. Sed Lotus uxor, quod respicio, in sal sum versus. Abrahamus, porro, fides divinitus tentatus, mire eniteo; nam imperans Deus, ut Isaacus, unicus filius, spes stirps, suus manus immolo, pareo non dubito. Conatus pro factum sum.

Idem fere tempus, ut Eusebius videor, Titan existo in Creta; qui natu maximus Saturnus sum, qui pater perhibeo Jupiter. Jupiter, propter paternus in populus charitas, deus sum habitus. Is frater sum Neptunus et Pluto, alter regius classis præfectus, alter funus inventor in Græcia. Qui res ille mare, hic inferi imperium ac numen pario, apud stultus antiquitas.

CHAP. III.

From the Vocation of Abraham to the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, comprehending 430 years.

ISAAC, the son of Abraham, born about the year after the flood 457, had, by his wife Rebecca, Esau and Jacob. Of Leah, Rachel, and his other wives, Jacob begat the patriarchs, the heads of the 12 tribes. He was called Israel by God; hence the Israelites derived their name. Joseph, one of the patriarchs, was sold by his brothers out of envy, and sent into Egypt. Afterwards Joseph forgave his brethren this ill usage, though an opportunity of revenging it offered. He prevails with his father to come down into Egypt with all his family, where in a short time the Israelites multiply in a surprising manner. This removal happened in the year of the world 2298, and before Christ 1706.

2. Almost cotemporary with Isaac was Inachus, the first king of the Argives; whose son Phoroneus is recorded to have collected his wandering and scattered people into one body, and to have secured them by cities and laws. But Apollo, Mars, Vulcan, Venus, Minerva, children of Jupiter, the principal deities of Greece, and the great founders of superstition, fell in with the age of the patriarchs; as also Ogyges, the first king of Attica, under whose reign happened that remarkable inundation of Attica, called the deluge of Ogyges. Eusebius places Spartus, the son of Phoroneus, who built Sparta, almost cotemporary with Joseph. Argus, the grandson of Phoroneus, who, on account of his wonderful sagacity, was said to have an hundred eyes, built Argos. Hieronymus too makes Job, so much famed for patience, coeval with Joseph; but others place him much later.

3. About the same time lived Prometheus and Atlas, two eminent astronomers, celebrated in the fabulous poems of the Greeks. Prometheus, the son of Japetus, one of the Titans, is represented by the poets, as having made a man

ISAACUS, Abrahamus filius, a diluvium annuacirciter 457 natus, Esau et Jacobus e Rebecca uxor gigno. Jacobus e Lea, Rachel, ahisque uxor, patriarcha gigno 12 tribus auctor. Israel a Deo appello; hinc Israelita nomen fio. Josephus, unus e patriarcha, a frater in Ægyptus, per invidia amandatus ac venditus sum. Josephus postea frater injuria, ulciscor oblatuſ occasio, condono. Pater persuadeo, uti cum stirps universus demigro in Ægyptus, ubi brevi Israelita mirus in modus augeo. Hic demigratio factus sum annus mundus 2298, et ante Christum 1706.

Isaacus fere æqualis Argivus rex primus Inachus existo; qui filius Phoroneus vagus homo ac dispersus in unus cogo locus, ac mœnia lexque sepio, memoro. At in patriarcha ætas, Apollo, Mars, Vulcanus, Venus, Minerva, Jupiter liberi, præcipuus Græcia nomen, et superstitio patriarcha, incido: itemque Ogyges, primus rex Attica, qui regnans, memorabilis ille Attica inundatio, Ogyges diluvium dictus, accido. Josephus pene æqualis, statuo Eusebius Spartus, Phoroneus filius, qui Sparta condo. Argus, Phoroneus nepos, qui, ob prudentia incredibilis centoculus dictus sum, Argos condo. Jobus quoque, patientia nobilitatus, Josephus suppar, facio Hieronymus; alius tamen multum junior.

Per idem tempus Prometheus et Atlas, egregius astronomus, existo, fabulosus Græcus carmen inclytus. Prometheus, Japetus (is unus e Titan sum) natus, quod ignarus rudisque homo ad huma-of clay, because he formed men that were ignorant and savage, to a civilized way of living; as chained to Caucasus, because he diligently observed the courses of the stars upon Caucasus, a mountain in Scythia; as having stolen fire from the gods, because he invented the method of striking fire from flint. And his brother Atlas, on account of his great skill in astronomy, is reported to have sustained heaven on his shoulders; and gave name to Atlas, a mountain of Mauritania.

4. Moses, the great grandson of Jacob, born about 60 years after the death of Joseph, and 1571 before Christ, was brought up by Pharaoh's daughter, and well instructed in the Egyptian learning. At eighty years of age, admonished of God, and assisted by his brother Aaron, he attempts to deliver the nation of the Israelites from the slavery of the Egyptians. In fine, having struck a mighty terror into Pharaoh, by many very great miracles, he brings forth the Israelites, loaded with the spoils of the Egyptians, in the year of the flood 857, and before Christ 1491.

5. The Red Sea being divided, the Israelites pass over into the deserts of Arabia; provisions were furnished to them in a miraculous manner; water gushed out of the rocks, and manna descended from heaven. At mount Sinai, the law was given to them by Moses, their sacrifices and ceremonies instituted; and Aaron consecrated high priest. After this, in the fortieth year of their journeying, their number being taken at Jordan, the sum of those that were able to bear arms, was above 600,000; among whom there was not one of those who had come out of Egypt, except Joshua and Caleb; for Moses, after having taken a prospect of the promised settlements from mount Pisgah, died; Joshua being appointed his successor.

6. Much about the same time that Moses delivered to the Hebrews their religious ceremonies, Cecrops too, founder of Athens, introduced images and sacrifices into Greece. In the reign of Cecrops, flourished Mercury, the grandson of Atlas, the son of Jupiter and nitas informo, homo elutum fingo; quod in Caucasus, Scythia mons, fidus cursus observo assidue, Caucasus affluxus; quod ignis elicio e flex ratio invenio, ignis deus furripio, dictus sum a poeta. Atlas autem, is frater, propter summus astronomia scientia, cœlum humerus sustineo perhibeo; et Atlas Mauritania mons facio nomen.

Moses, Jacobus abnepos, 60 circiter annus post Josephus mortuus, et ante Christum 1571, a Pharaō filia educatus sum, literarum excultus Ægyptius. Octogenarius, auctor Deus, adjutor Aaron frater, Israelita gens ab Ægyptius servitus vindico aggredior. Denique, Pharaō plurimus maximusque prodigium percussus annus post diluvium circiter 857, et ante Christum 1491, Israelita Ægyptius spoliū onustus, educo.

Ruber Mare divisus, in solitudo Arabia Israelita transeo; commeatus is divinitus suppeto; manna de cœlum, aqua e saxum, defluo. Ad Sina mons lex is per Moses datus, sacra et ceremonia institutus, Aaron summus sacerdos consecratus. Inde quadragessimus peregrinatio annus, ad Jordanis census habitus, summa is qui arma fero possum, amplius 600,000 sum; in qui nemo omnino ex is qui ex Ægyptus venio, præter Josues Calebque; nam Moses, ex Pisga mons promissus sedes cum prospicio, intereo; Josues successor designatus.

Idem fere tempus sacra et ceremonia Moses trado Hebræus, et Cecrops, Athenæ conditor, simulacrum et sacrificium induco in Græcia. Cecrops regnans, Mercurius, Atlas nepos, Jupiter et Maia filius, idemque eloquen-

Maia, and the author of eloquence and many other discoveries. Deucalion, upon Thessaly's being overflowed by an inundation, saved several persons on the tops of Parnassus, where he reigned; and, by means of his wife Pyrrha, brought them over from a savage and rustic life, to an humane and civilized behaviour. Hence rise was given to a number of fables.

7. At the same time, as if the fire had conspired with the water for the destruction of men, a mighty conflagration, in the time of Phaeton's reign, broke out in Italy, near the river Po; which proved no small matter of fiction to the luxuriant fancy of the poets. Oenotrus too, the son of Lycaon, having brought over a colony of Arcadians into Italy, settled near the Tuscan sea, and dispossessing the native Umbrians, peopled Italy. These, called at first Aborigines, from their uncertain extraction, afterwards Italians, from their King Italus, gave name to the country of Italy.

tia et multus res inventor existo. Deucalion, obrutus cluvio Thessalia, mortalis complures in Parnassus jugum, ubi imperito, conservo;isque Pyrrha conjux opera, durus agrestisque vita, ad humanus cultus civilisque traduco. Hinc locus multiplex fabula datus.

Idem tempestas, perinde ac si ad homo perniciēs ignis cum aqua conjuro, Phaeton rex, maximus in Italia ad Eridanus flumen exardeo incendium; qui poeta licentia haud parvus, fingo materies existo. Oenotrus porro, Lycaon prognatus, Arcas colonia in Italia deductus, ad mare inferus confido, Umbrique indigena repulsus, frequento Italia. Hic Aborigines primum, ab incertus origo, inde, ab Italus rex, Italus appellatus, regio Italia nomen facio.

CHAP. IV.

From the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt to the Destruction of Troy, containing 307 years.

JOSHUA having miraculously dried up the river Jordan, brought over the Israelites. After this he overturns the walls of the city Jericho, by the ark of the covenant carried seven times round it, by the sound of trumpets, and the shouts of his army. He utterly destroys the Amorites, the sun and moon standing still at his command for the space of one day, as spectators of the victory. At last, after conquering thirty kings, and all the nations of Palestine, he settled the Israelites in the country promised to their ancestors, in the year of the creation 2560, and before Christ 1444.

2. About the same time Danaus, causing his fifty sons-in-law to be murdered by his daughters, of whom there was the like number, makes himself master of the kingdom of Egypt. But being deposed by Linus his son-in-law, he sei-

Josue Jordanis flumen divinitus siccatus, traduco Israelita. Hierichus inde oppidum murus, arca foedus septies circumlatus, tuba clangor, atque exercitus clamor, disturbo. Amortheus, sol ac luna, is jussu per unius dies spatium, tanquam spectator victoria, subsistens, occidio occido. Demum triginta rex omnisque Palestina gens debellatus, Israelita in promissis majores sedes colloco, annus post mundus conditus 2560, et ante Christum 1444.

Sub idem tempus Danaus, quinquaginta gener per totidem filia contrucidatus. Egyptus regnum potior. Sed a Linus gener pulsus, Argos occupo. Orcus, Molossus rex, Proserpina, Cezēs upon Argos. Orcus, king of the Molossi, carries off Proserpina, the daughter of Ceres, out of Sicily. Europa, ravished by Jupiter, brought forth Minos and Rhadamanthus, and gave name to the third part of the earth; a large field for fables to the poets. Much about this time flourished the court of the Areopagites at Athens. Upon the Nile too, Bufiris, the son of Neptune and Libya, violating the most sacred laws of hospitality, is said to have exercised violence upon his guests. About the same time the Israelites were treated in a way not much kinder by the king of Mesopotamia; but judges, by the divino favour, were raised up from time to time for their relief.

3. Othniel, the first of the Hebrew judges, delivers his people, by slaying the king of Mesopotamia, in the year before Christ 1405. Othniel's successor was Ehud, who killed Eglon, king of the Moabites. Ehud was succeeded by Deborah, a woman of more than masculine courage. She attended Barak, general of the army, to the war, and obtained a signal victory over the enemy. Jael, a woman too, had a hand in this victory; she completed the enemy's overthrow by the slaughter of their general Sisera, in the year before Christ 1285.

4. Whilst in Palestine even women make a figure in the achievements of war, in other nations men became illustrious generally for the arts of peace. In Egypt, Trimegistus, the grandson of Mercury, excelled in reputation for learning. Janus reigned in Latium. Cadmus, the brother of Europa, brought over letters from Phœnicia into Greece, and built Thebes in Eœotia. Rhadamanthus reigned in Lycia, and Minos in Crete, with the highest characters of strict impartiality. Acrisius, king of the Argives, instituted or new-modelled the Amphictyons, the most august council of Greece; he erected the temple and oracle of Apollo at Delphos.

5. In the mean time Amphion, contemporary with Linus, expelling Cadmus, and building the citadel of Thebes, occasioned abundant matter of fiction to the poets. Liber, or Bacchus, built the res filia, e Sicilia abripio. Europa, a Jupiter raptus, Minos ac Rhadamanthus pario, tertiusque orbis terra pars nomen do; ingens poeta materies fabula. Per idem fere tempus Athenæ concilium Areopagita existo. Bufiris quoque Neptunus et Libya filius, ad Nilus in hospes sævio dico, sanctus hospitium jus violatus. Haud multum humanius sub is tempus a rex Mesopotamia acceptus sum Israelita; sed ad is deinceps liberandus iudex, divinus munus, concessus.

Othniel, primus Hebræus iudex, annus ante Christum 1405, populus, Mesopotamia rex cæsus, in libertas vindico. Othniel Eudus, qui Eglon Moabita rex interficio, succedo. Eudus Debora excipio, mulier virtus plusquam virilis. Hic Barachus dux exercitus ad bellum comitatus, insignis de hostis victoria pario. Jael, mulier quoque, hic victoria particeps sum, qui hostia clades Sisera dux cædes cumulo, annus ante Christum 1285.

Dum in Palestina etiam mulier bellicus lina floreco, apud cæter natio vir pax fere ara vigeo. Trimegistus, Mercurius nepos, in Ægyptus, doctrina gloria præfio. Janus in Latium imperito. Cadmus, Europa frater, litera e Phœnicia deporto in Græcia, et Thebæ in Eœotia condo. Rhadamanthus in Lycia, Minos in Creta insula, summus cum severitas laus, regno. Acrisius, Argivus rex, Amphictyones, gravis Græcia concilium, instituo vel emendo; Apollo Delphicus ædes et oraculum excito.

Interim Amphion, Linus æqualis, Cadmus ejectus, Thebanusque arx extruendus, magnus poeta mentior licentia facio. Liber, seu Bacchus, Nyfa urbs, propter city Nyssa, near the river Indus. He conquered India with an army of Bacchæ. Perseus, the son of Jupiter and Danaë, took off the head of Gorgon, a courtesan of exquisite beauty. Pelops too, the son of Tantalus, by his planting a colony, gave name to Peloponnesus. His sister Niobe, stupified with grief for the loss of her children, gave rise to the fable of the poets. Dardanus, the son of Jupiter, and son-in-law of Teucer, gave name to the country of Dardania; which was afterwards called Troas, from Troas his son and successor.

6. In Latium, Janus was succeeded by Saturn: under whose reign, they tell you, all things were common, and all men free. Hence it was called the golden age. The same Saturn taught men to till the ground, to build houses, to plant vines, and gather in the fruits. Meanwhile the Pelasgi, seizing upon the sea-coast of Italy, which is next to Sicily, introduced learning into Italy. From them the country was named Great Greece. Siculus, the son of Italus, being driven out of Italy by the Pelasgi, passed over into the next island, which the Cyclops had anciently possessed, and the Sicani then inhabited; and the island was called Sicily, from king Siculus. After Saturn-Picus, after Picus Faunus, the fourth from Janus, held the kingdom. The wife of Faunus, who was also the mother of king Latinus, is said to have invented the Latin Characters.

7. Gideon, the fourth judge of the Hebrews, about the year of the world 2759, and before Christ 1245, performed an exploit that deserves to be celebrated in the annals of all nations. By the direction of God, he selected 300 men out of all his army. These he arms with trumpets and lamps. Then he orders the pitchers, in which the lamps were concealed, to be dashed together, and all the trumpets to be blown at the same instant. This unusual way of fighting wrought such confusion in the camp of the Midianites, that they slaughtered one another with mutual havoc. Abimelech, Gideon's son, was unlike his father; he usurped the sovereignty, after he had put to death his brothers, in num-

Indus flumen condo. India Bacchæ exercitus subigo. Perseus, Danaë et Jupiter natus, Gorgon meretrix eximius species caput demo. Pelops quoque, Tantalus filius, deductus colonia, Peloponnesus facio nomen. Hic soror Niobe, ob amissus liberi ex mœror stupefactus, poeta mendacium locus do. Dardanus, Jupiter genitus, Teucer gener, Dardania regio nomen facio; qui postea, ex is filius ac successor Troas, Troas appello.

Janus Saturnus succedo in Latium: qui rex, omnis communis, omnis liber sum, perhibeo. Inde aureus seculum appellatus. Idem Saturnus ager colo, domus ædifico, vinea pono, et frux colligo, doceo. Pelasgi interea, maritimus Italia ora, qui Sicilia sum proximus, occupatus, litera in Italia afferro. Ab hic regio Magnus Græcia nominatus. Siculus, Italus filius, Italia pulsus a Pelasgi, in proximus trajicio insula, qui olim Cyclopes teneo, ac tum Sicani incolio; et a Siculus rex insula Sicilia dictus sum. Ab Saturnus Picus, a Picus Faunus, quartus a Janus, regnum accipio. Faunus uxor, idemque Latinus rex mater, Latinus Litera reperio memoro.

Gideon judex Hebraus quartus, annus mundus circiter 2759, et ante Christum 1245, facinus edo omnis gens litera celebrandus. Deus monitus, vir ex omnis exercitus trecenti deligo. Hic tuba ac lampas armo. Tum is gena, qui inclusus lampas sum, complodo, insaque tuba omnis impero uno tempus. Insolitus pugna species usque eo Midianita castra turbo, ut mutus sui cædes conficio. Gideon filius, dissimilis pater Abimelechus sum: is, frater cæsus, numerus ad 70, tyrannis occupo. At intra triennium, dum turris Thebetis ber 70. But within three years, he was slain by a woman with a piece of a mill-stone, as he was setting fire to the tower of Thebez.

8. Toward the latter end of Gideon's age appeared the Grecian heroes, furnishing ample subject for fabulous stories. Hercules, Orpheus, Castor, Pollux, and the other Argonauts, having built the ship Argo, sailed from Thessaly to Troas, and thence to Colchis, under the conduct of Jason. Whilst they were at Troy, Hercules delivered Hesione, the daughter of Laomedon, the son of Ilus, and king of Troy, from a sea-monster, to which she had been exposed. Her father promised him the young lady, with some fleet horses, as the reward of his hazardous enterprise. Being arrived at Colchis, they soothed the fierce and savage guards by means of Medea, the king's daughter; brought off the treasures which had been carried thither by Phryxus out of Thessaly, called the golden fleece. In their return they killed Laomedon, for refusing the stipulated reward, and gave the kingdom to his son Priam. This expedition happened about 1280 years before Christ.

9. About the same time Ægeus, king of the Athenians, and the father of Theseus, had invidiously slain Androgeos, the son of Minos, king of Crete. For which reason the Athenians were ordered to send annually into Crete seven young men, and as many girls, to be devoured by the Minotaur. In the number of these went Theseus, who by the assistance of Dædalus and Ariadne, Minos's daughter, slew the Minotaur, and delivered his country. Minos with a fleet pursuing Dædalus in his flight, was killed in the bath by king Cocalus in Sicily. After this Theseus encountered the Centaurs, or Thessalian horsemen, with good success, and associated himself with Hercules.

10. The Amazons too, who were women, natives of Scythia, having lost their husbands in war, took up arms, assuming at the same time a masculine intrepidity; possessed themselves of the Lesser Asia, and built Ephesus. Hercules and ignis subdo, molaris lapis fragmen prostratus sum a femina.

Extremus Gideon ætas Græcus heros attingo, haud exiguus materia fabula. Hercules, Orpheus, Castor, Pollux, cæterque Argonautæ, Argo navis ædificatus, Jason dux, e Thessalia ad Troas, exinde Colchis, navigo. Dum apud Troja sum, Hercules Hesione, Laomedon, Ilus filius, rex Trojanus, filia, monstrum marinus, qui expositus sum, libero. Pater, virgo ille cum pernix equus, labor suus præmium, pollicitus sum. Cum ad Colchis venio, Medea rex filia opera, custos ferus ac barbarus delinco; thesaurus eo a Phryxus e Thessalia deportatus, aureus vellus dictus, aufero. In reditus Laomedon ob pactus merces negatus, obtrunco, regnum Priamus, is filius, trado. Hic expeditio incido in annus circiter 1280 ante Christus natus.

Sub idem tempus Ægeus, Atheniensis rex, et pater Theseus, Androgeos, Minos rex Creta filius, per invidia, occido. Ob qui causa Atheniensis jubeo quotannis septeni juvenis et puella totidem in Creta mitto, a Minotaurus devorandus. Hic in numerus Theseus profectus sum, qui opis Dædalus, et Ariadne, Minos filia, Minotaurus occido, et patria libero. Minos Dædalus fugiens, classis insectus, in Sicilia a Cocalus rex neco in balneum. Theseus inde cum Centaurus, Thessalus eques bene pugno; sique Hercules comites adjungo.

Amazones mulier quoque, e Scythia oriundus, amissus in bellum vir, cum arma, animus virilis assumo; Asia Minor occupo, Ephesus condo. Hic Hercules ac Theseus in-Theseus made war upon them, and conquered them, more to the glory of the vanquished than their own; for, though women, they had valiantly coped with such heroes, and when taken prisoners, made their escape, by killing the guards. Hercules is further reported to have instituted the Olympic, and Theseus the Isthmian games.

II. Much about this time, Greece exhibited scenes of an horrible and tragical nature. Atreus and Thyestes, the sons of Pelops, vented their mutual resentment in a more hostile way than became brothers. For Thyestes committed a rape on his brother's wife: Atreus, on his part, caused Thyestes's sons to be served up to him at a banquet. Oedipus, having been exposed by his father Laius, slew him afterwards in a squabble, without knowing him to be his father; and restored the country about Thebes to a perfect tranquillity, by killing the Sphinx, an artful mischievous woman. Having thus procured himself his father's kingdom, he unwittingly married his mother Jocasta. However, being informed of the whole matter by Tyreus, the seer, he plucked out his own eyes, and left the kingdom to his sons, Polynices and Eteocles. But Polynices being quickly expelled the kingdom by his brother, fled to Adrastus king of the Argives. Supported by him, he made war upon his brother, attended by the prophetic Amphiaraus, who having been betrayed by his wife, Eriphyla, gave orders to his son Alcmeon to assassinate his mother; in this more wicked than his wife, that he made a son the murderer of his parent. During that war Amphiaraus was swallowed up by an earthquake. Polynices and his brother fell by mutual wounds.

12. Jephtha, the seventh judge of the Hebrews, was somewhat later than Hercules. As he was about to join battle with the enemy, he vowed, that if he overcame, he would consecrate to God whatever he should meet first at his return. He engaged the enemy, and gained the victory: his daughter, the only child he had, met him first of all in his return home, and converted the glory fero bellum, isque vinco, major victus gloria quam suus; quippe et mulier cum talis vir fortiter depugno, et captivus, casus custos, aufugio. Hercules porro Olympicus ludus, Theseus Isthmius sero instituo.

Idem fere tempus, fœdus ac dirus spectaculum edo Græcia. Atreus et Thyestes, Pelops natus, plusquam fraternus inter sui odium exerceo. Thyestes enim frater uxor stuprum infero: Atreus Thyestes vicissim filius epulandus oppono. Oedipus, a Laius pater expositus, is deinde in rixa ignarus occido; agerque Thebanus, Sphinx insidiosus mulier occisus, pacatus reddo. Ita paternus regnum adeptus, Jocasta mater ipse inscius duco uxor. Ceterum res omnis ex Tyreus vates cognitus, sui ipse eruo oculus, et regnum Eteocles ac Polynices filius relinquo. Polynices autem cito regnum a fratre pulsus, ad Adrastus Argivus rex confugio. Is opis subnixus, frater bellum infero, comes Amphiaraus vates, qui ab Eriphyla conjux proditus, Alcmeon filius, mater ut neco, impero; hic sceleratus uxor, quod filius facio parricida. Is bellum Amphiaraus hiatus terra absorptus sum. Polynices et frater mutuus vulnus perreo.

Jephthes, septimus Hebræus iudex, Hercules paulo minor natus sum. Is signum cum hostis collaturus, voveo, si vinco, sui Deus consecro quisquis revertens primus occurro. Confligo cum hostis, victoria refero: domus rediens, filia, qui unicus habeo, primus omnis obviam venio, et gloria victoria in moror verto, of the victory into mourning, about the year before Christ 1188.

13. About the same time a much greater disaster befel Priam king of Troy, who refusing to restore Helen, the wife of Menelaus, king of Sparta, that had been carried off by his son Paris, called also Alexander, was stripped of his kingdom, children, and life, by the Greeks, after a siege of ten years. Troy was destroyed 2820 years after the creation of the world, 436 before the building of Rome, and before the birth of Christ 1184.

annus ante Christum natus fere 1188.

Multum gravis sub idem tempus Priamus Trojanus rex casus evenio, qui cum Helena, Menelaus rex Spartanus uxor, a Paris filius suus, Alexander etiam dictus, raptus, reddo nolo: post decennium obsidio, liberi, regnum, et vita, orbo a Grecis. Troja everfus sum annus a mundus conditus 2820, ante Roma conditus 436, et ante Christum natus 1184.

CHAP. V.

From the Destruction of Troy to the finishing and dedication of the Temple at Jerusalem by Solomon, including 163 years.

ÆNEAS, flying from Troy, came into Italy. There he contracted an alliance and affinity with Latinus, king of the Latins; from his wife's name, he called the town built by him Lavinium. He routed in battle, and put to flight Turnus, king of the Rutuli. After that he greatly weakened the power of the Etruscus; and Latinus dying in battle, he himself reaped all the benefit of the victory. In order to strengthen his interest, the name and laws of the Latins were by him imposed on the Trojans: he himself was called king of the Latins. After this, Æneas fell in battle, fighting against Mezentius, king of the Etruscus, four years after the death of his father-in-law Latinus.

1. Samson was cotemporary with Æneas. He killed a lion without any weapon; checked the pride of the Philistines, and made a dreadful havock of his enemies with the jaw-bone of an ass. Having lost his strength together with his hair, he fell into the hands of his enemies, by the treachery of a woman, whom he passionately loved. To them, after they had put out his eyes, he served long for an object of derision. At length, having recovered his strength with his hair, he endeavoured to put an honourable period to his ignominious servitude. The pillars of the house

ÆNEAS, Troja profugus, in Italia venio. Ibi cum Latinus, Latinus rex, fœdus affinitasque jungo; oppidum a sui conditus, ab uxor nomen, Lavinium appello. Turnus Rutuli rex prælium fundo fugoque. Etruscus inde opes frango; Latinusque in acies mortuus, ipse omnis fero victoria fructus. Ad firmandus opes, Trojanus Latinus lex ab is ac nomen impositus: Latinus ipse rex dictus. Æneas postea, adversus Mezentius, Etruscus rex pugnans, prælium cado, annus quartus post mors fœder Latinus.

Samson Æneas tempus super sum. Leo incernis neco: Philistæ superbia coerco; assinus maxilla hostis truido. Mulier, qui depereo, prodens, amissus cum coma vires, in hostis potestas pervenio. Qui orbatus lumen, diu ludibrium sum. Demum receptus cum capillus vires, turpia servitus honestus quæro exitus. Domus is, unde Philistæus ludens ipse spectro, columna concutio; ædes ruina Philistæus, qui præsto sum, atque Samson ipse, oppriwherein the Philistines beheld him making sport, he overlet; the Philistines who were present, and Samson himself, were crushed to death by the fall of the building, in the year before Christ 1117.

3. Ascanius, Æneas's son, resigning Lavinium to his mother-in-law, founded Alba Longa. After this the sovereignty was conferred by the people on Sylvius, a son of Æneas, born after his death. The priesthood was given to Julius, the son of Ascanius, which the Julian family, originally sprung from Julius, enjoyed hereditary ever after. After Sylvius, thirteen kings reigned in Alba Longa, for near 400 years; of whom Æneas Sylvius swayed the sceptre 31 years, Latinus 31, Alba 39, Sylvius Atys or Capetus I. 26, Capys 28, Capetus II. 13, Tiberinus 8, Agrippa 24, Romulus Sylvius or Alladius 19, Arentinus 37, Procas 23, Amulius 42; whose brother Numitor was the last king of Alba.

4. Samuel, the last judge of the Hebrews, by God's direction, anoints Saul king, as he was in quest of his father's asses, seven years before Æneas Sylvius began his reign in Latium. The Hebrew state was managed by judges about 400 years.

5. The Heraclidæ, viz. the posterity of Hercules, who, long harassed by Euristheus, king of Mycenæ, had lived in exile with Ceyx in Thrace, and afterwards with Theseus king of Athens; at length, about 80 years after the destruction of Troy, returned to Peloponnesus, and settled in it.

6. Saul, the first king of the Israelites, came to the throne about the year of the world 2909, and before Christ 1093. At first he behaved well, but afterwards offended heinously. Hereupon he was rejected by God, and David chosen in his room. He having slain Goliath, a gigantic Philistine, was advanced to be the king's son-in-law. Saul fell in battle fighting against the Philistines, in the twentieth year of his reign. David, after lamenting the death of his father-in-law, mounted the throne, in the reign of Latinus Sylvius, the son of Æneas Sylvius, king of the Latins.

mo, annus ante Christus natus 1117.

Ascanius, Æneas filius, Lavinium noverca relicto, Alba Longa condo. Sylvius inde Æneas filius posthumus, regnum a populus delatus sum. Julius, Ascanius filius, sacerdotium datus, qui gens Julius, ab Julius ortus, postea hæreditarius habeo. Post Sylvius a tredecim rex in Alba Longa, 400 fere annus, regnatur; qui Æneas Sylvius imperium teneo annus 31, Latinus 31, Alba 39, Sylvius Atys seu Capetus I. 26, Capys 28, Capetus II. 13, Tiberinus 8, Agrippa 24, Romulus Sylvius seu Alladius 19, Aventinus 37, Procas 23, Amulius 42; qui frater Numitor ultimus Alba rex existo.

Samuel, judex Hebræus postremus, Saul, paternus asina queritans, Deus admonitus, confecro rex, septennium antequam Æneas Sylvius regno accipio in Latium. Administratus res Hebræus sum a judex annus circiter 400.

Heraclidæ, viz. Hercules poster, qui, ab Euristheus Mycenæ rex diu exagitatus, in exilium apud Ceyx, in Thracia, deinde apud Theseus Athenæ rex, atas ago; tandem 80 fere annus a clades Trojanus, ad Peloponnesus redeo, ibique sedes suus pono.

Saul, Israelita rex primus, regnum accipio annus post mundus conditus prope 2909, et ante Christus 1093. Initium bene sui gero, deinde graviter offendo. Quocirca rejicio a Deus, et in is locus David sufficio. Hic, Goliath, Philistæus gigas interfectus, regius exado gener. Saul, vigesimus regnum annus, adversus Philistæus pugnans, prælium cado. David, locer mors deploratus, regnum potior, rex Latinus, Latinus Sylvius, Æneas Sylvius filius.

7. King David, a man of singular piety towards God, was ever victorious over his foes. He was dethroned by his son Absalom; but having defeated Absalom in battle, he recovered his kingdom. David reigned 40 years,

8. Almost at the same time that Absalom suffered the punishment of his unnatural behaviour to his father, Codrus, the son of Melanthus, and the last king of Athens, gained the character of a most extraordinary affection for his country. In the Dorian or Peloponnesian war, being informed by the oracle, that the enemy would prove victorious, unless the king of the Athenians was killed, he devoted his life for the safety of his country. Having disguised himself in the habit of a peasant, he wounded a common soldier of the Dorians in a quarrel, and being slain by him, as he wished, saved his country from the blockade of the enemy; in fact, rather than in name, the father of his country. Upon his death the government of Athens devolved on magistrates, who were called Archons. The first of them was Medon the son of Codrus.

9. Solomon, the third king of the Hebrews, reigned also 40 years. He built and dedicated the temple, designed by his father David, in the most magnificent manner, about the year of the world 2983; and before the birth of Christ 1021, in the reign of Alba Sylvius, king of the Latins. Solomon, the wisest of all men, in his old age was seduced by his wives into the worship of heathen deities. Homer was something older than Solomon; if he lived, as Herodotus says, 168 years after the Trojan war.

David rex, homo eximius erga Deum pietas, hostis perpetuo victor exiit. Regnum ab Absalon filius pulsus sum; at Absalon acies superatus, regnum recipio. David 40 annus imperito.

Idem ferme tempus Absalon impietas in pater ponalino, Codrus. Melanthus filius, Atheniensis rex postremus, laus egregius in patria pietas fero. Bellum Peloponnesiacum seu Doriensis, cum ex oraculum cognosco superior foremi hostis, nisi Atheniensis rex cado, caput solum pro patria salus deoveo. Rusticus vestitus indutus, gregarius miles Doriensis ex jurgium faucio, ab is, ut opto, interceptus, hostis obsidio patria eximo; pater patria, res, magis quam nomen. Is mors Athenas administratio ad magistratus devenio, qui Archon sum appellatus. Is primus Medon sum, filius Codrus.

Salomon, rex Hebræus tertius, 40 quoque annus regno. Templum, a David pater destinatus, magnifice enter edificio dicoque, annus mundus prope 2983, et ante Christum natus 1021, Alba Sylvius rex Latinus. Salomon omnis mortalis sapiens, ab uxor senex perductus sum ad cultus Deus Ethnicus. Salomon senior aliquantum Homerus sum, si quidem existo, ut Herodotus perhibeo, annus 168 post bellum Trojanum.

CHAP. VI.

From the Dedication of the Temple to the Building of Rome, comprehending 273 years.

REHOBOAM, Solomon's son, by his folly completed the ruin of the empire, already tottering by his father's misconduct. Thus out of one were two kingdoms formed; the one was called the kingdom of Judah or Jerusalem; the other that of Israel or Samaria. The tribe of Judah and Benjamin were subject to ROBOAS, Solomon filius, nutans paternus culpa imperium, sum stultitia evertio. Sic duo ex unus regnum factus: alter Judæ, seu Hierosolyma; alter Israel, sive Samaria, dictus sum. Judæus tribus ac Benjaminus Roboas, ac stirps deinceps pa-

Rehoboam, and the other successive descendants of David; the other ten tribes, being seduced and corrupted by Jeroboam their first king, had princes of very different families. The kings of Samaria were all impious to a man, and worshippers of idols: the kings of Jerusalem otherwise. And these two kingdoms contended with one another in almost continual wars. In the fifth year of Rehoboam's reign, Jerusalem was besieged by Shishak, king of Egypt. He carried away all the sacred furniture of the temple. Rehoboam dying in the 17th year of his reign, leaves his kingdom to his son Abijah, Sylvius Atys being then king of the Latins.

2. In the third year of Abijah's reign, Aza his son succeeded him, a king of eminent piety; who swayed the sceptre 41 years. In his reign Capys ruled in Latium; and Omri king of Israel built the royal city of Samaria.

3. Jehoshaphat, the son of Aza, proved a second David for piety. He held the government 25 years. In his reign lived Ahab king of Samaria, and the holy prophet Elijah the Tishbite. Much about the same time Tiberinus too, the son of Capetus, the ninth king of the Albans after Ascanius, being drowned in his passage over the Albula, gave name to the river.

4. Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat, and son-in-law of king Ahab, followed the impious example of his father-in-law. He possessed the throne eight years. His son Ahaziah reigned only one year; Agrippa being then king of the Latins.

5. Joash, the son of Ahaziah, the tenth king of the Jews after David, reigned forty years. In his reign Romulus Sylvius, King of the Albans, was burnt up by lightning. After him Aventinus got the kingdom, who gave name to the hill on which he was buried.

6. Amaziah, the son of Joash, governed 29 years. In his reign, as Eusebius relates, flourished Lycurgus, the famous lawgiver of Sparta, who spontaneously resigned the crown of Lacedæmon, left him by his brother, to Charilaus, his brother's son, born after his father's death. He divided the land of Laconia reo Davidicus; cæter decem tribus, a Jeroboas primus rex, traductus depravatusque, diversus stirps rex habeo. Samaria rex omnis ad unus impius sum, cultorque idolum: Hierosolyma rex non item. Et hic duo regnum perpetuus inter sui bellum fere contendo. Annus imperium Roboas quintus, a Sefacus Ægyptus rex Hierosolyma obsideo. Hic omnis facer templum suppellex deporto, Roboas 17 regnum annus excedens e vita, Abias filius regnum logo, Sylvius Atys rex Latinus.

Abias tertius regnum annus, Aza filius, summus rex pietas, succedo; qui imperium annus 41 teneo. Hic regnans, Capys in Latium impero; et Amrius Israelita rex Samaria urbs regius condo.

Josaphatus, Aza filius, pietas alter David sum. Annus 25 imperium teneo. Is regnans, existo Achabus rex Samaria, et sacer vates Helias Thesbites. Idem fere quoque tempus Tiberinus, Capetus filius, rex Albanus ab Ascanius nonus, in trajectus Albula annis submersus, flumen nomen do.

Joras, Josaphatus filius, Achabus rex gener, impietas socer secutus sum. Octo annus imperium teneo. Filius is Ochozias annus regno omnino unus; Agrippa rex Latinus.

Joas, Ochozias filius, decimus a David rex Judæus, annus quadraginta impero. Is regnans, Romulus Sylvius, Albanus rex, fulmen ictus desagro. Aventinus deinde obtineo regnum, qui collis, ubi sepultus sum, nomen do.

Amasias, Joas filius, annus 29 imperito. Is regnans, ut Eusebius perhibeo, existo Lycurgus, celeberrimus Sparta legislator, qui Lacedæmonius regnum, a fratre relicto, frater filius posthumus Charilaus, suus sponte trado, Ager Laconicus virum aequalito each man equally; abolished the use of gold and silver; and enjoined all people to eat in public. Then he bound his countrymen by an oath, that they should not make any alteration of his laws, till he should return from consulting the oracle at Delphos. He died in Crete, a voluntary exile, about the time of the death of Amaziah, king of the Jews. Uziah, who is also called Azariah, was the son and successor of Amaziah. He reigned 52 years.

7. Elifa, who is also called Dido, abhorring her brother Pygmalion, the murderer of her husband Sichæus, privately put on board all her husband's wealth, and sailed from Tyre. Landing on the coast of Libya, she built a city, which was first called Byrsa, and afterwards Carthage. Carthage was founded about 142 years before the building of Rome, and before the birth of Christ 890. About the same time Bocchorus, or Bocchorides, king of Egypt, settled the laws and institutions of the Egyptians.

8. About the same time, that is, 409 years after the destruction of Troy, and 27 before the building of Rome, the Olympic games were revived by Iphitus; for they had been instituted before by Hercules, as was related above. The Olympic games were so called from Olympia, a city of Elis in Peloponnesus, near which they were celebrated every fourth year, by a great concourse of people from all Greece and other nations. From this period the Greeks began to use the Olympiads for the distinction of times. Before that epoch fiction prevailed. From it the true history of the Greeks takes its rise. In the beginning of the first Olympiad, if we believe Herodotus, died Hesiod, about 140 years later than Homer.

9. Jotham, Uziah's son, and father of Ahaz, a pious man, and beloved of God, governed 16 years. In his reign Theopompus, king of the Lacedæmonians, in order to render the sovereign authority more stable, by sharing the power with the people, created five Ephori, 130 years after Lycurgus. These ter divido; anrum argentumque usus tollo; et omnis epulor publice jubeo. Civis inde sacramentum adigo, ut nihil de lex immuto, quoad ipse a consulendus Delphicus revertor oraculum. Exul voluntarius, in Creta obo, sub nex Judæus rex Amazias. Ozias, qui etiam Azarias dictus sum, Amazias filius ac successor sum. Annus 52 regno.

Elifa, qui etiam Dido appello, Pygmalion frater, Sichæus vir suus interfector, exofus, omnis vir gaza clam impono in navis, et Tyrus solvo. Ad Libya appulsus, urbs condo, qui Byrsa primum, inde Carthago dictus sum. Conditus Carthago sum annis ante Roma conditus circiter 142, et ante Christus natus 890. Sub idem tempus Bocchorus, seu Bocchorides, rex Ægyptus, lex Ægyptius et jus constituo.

Sub idem tempus, annus scilicet 409 post Troja deletus, et ante Roma conditus 27, ludus Olympicus ab Iphitus renovatus sum; nam antea, ut supra dico, ab Hercules institutus sum. Ludus Olympicus sic dictus sum ab Olympia, urbs Elis in Peloponnesus, prope qui celebratus sum quartus quisque annus, magnus homo concursus ex omnis Græcia gensque peregrinus. Ex is tempus, Græcus, ad tempus distinguo, Olympias adhibeo, cæpi. Ante is tempus fabula vigeo. Ex is Græcus initium duco historia. In principium primus Olympias, si Herodotus credo, Hesiodus obo, Homerus junior annus circiter 140.

Joathas, Ozias filius, et Achas pater, vir pius, et Deus carus, annus 16 impero. Is regnans Theopompus, Lacedæmonius rex, quo regnum, communicatus cum populus potestas, efficio diuturnus, Ephorus quinque, annus post Lycurgus 130, creo. Hic tri-magistrates very much resembled the tribunes of the people among the Romans.

10. In Latium, Amulius having deposed his elder brother Numitor, usurped the crown. Romulus and Remus, the sons of Rhea Sylvia, or Ilia, Numitor's daughter, having been exposed by Amulius, were educated by Faustulus, the king's shepherd. When they came to age, they knew their grandfather Numitor, and having slain Amulius, replaced him on his throne. They themselves having got together a body of shepherds, founded on mount Palatine the city of Rome, for which was destined the empire of the world. Rome was built in the third year of the seventh Olympiad, 436 years after the destruction of Troy, in the year of the world 3256, of the flood 1600, and before the birth of Christ 748.

bonus plebs apud Romanus persimilis sum.

In Latium, Amulius, Numitor major frater pulsus, regnum occupo. Romulus et Remus Rhea Sylvia, seu Ilia, Numitor filia natus, ab Amulius expositus, a Faustulus, pastor regius educatus sum. Cum adoleſco, Numitor avus agnosco, isque, Amulius obtruncatus, restituo in regnum. Ipse, coactus pastor manus, in Palatinus mons condo urbs Roma, qui destino imperium orbis terra. Roma conditus sum annus tertius septimus Olympias, post Troja everſus 436, annus mundus 3256, diluvium 1600, et ante Christus natus 748.

CHAP. VII.

From the Building of Rome to the Liberation of the Jews from the Babylonish Captivity by Cyrus, in the first year of the Persian Empire, containing 214 years.

ROMULUS is commonly reported to have killed his brother Remus, for having contemptuously leaped over his new walls. Thus he became sole monarch. He took numbers of his neighbours into his city. He chose an hundred senators, who, from their age, were called Fathers, and their children Patricii. Then, as he and his people had no wives, he invited the neighbouring nations to the sight of games, and seized their young women. Whereupon the adjacent nations made war upon the Romans. Romulus, having routed the Cæninenses, and slain their king Acron with his own hand, presented the spolia opima to Jupiter Feretrius, to whom he then dedicated a temple. He triumphed over the Antemnates, the Crustuminians, the Fidenates, and Veientes. Upon seeing his army like to be worsted by Tatius, king of the Sabines, he vowed a temple in the Forum to Jupiter Stator. The action being renewed, the Sabine women, throwing themselves into the battle, put ROMULUS vulgo fero Remus frater trucidò, quod per contumelia murus novus transilio. Ita solus imperium potitus sum. Multitudo finitimis in civitas recipio. Centum senator eligo, qui ab ætas Pater, Patricique is progenies, appellatus. Tunc, cum uxor ipse et populus non habeo, invito ad spectaculum ludus vicinus natio, atque is virgo rapio. Itaque finitimus populus Romanus bellum infero. Romulus, Cæninenses fugatus, isque rex Acron suos manus interemptus, Jupiter Feretrius, qui tum ædes dico, opimus spoliū fero. De Antemnates, Crustumini, Fidenates, et Veientes, triumpho. A Tatius Sabinus rex, acies suos fugo videns, Jupiter Stator templum voveo in Forum. Redintegratus prælium, Sabinus in acies irrumpens, bellum precis dirimo. Percutio inan end to the war by their entreaties. An alliance is struck up between the generals, and the Sabines remove to Rome. At last Romulus, a sudden tempest arising, as he reviewed his army at the lake of Caprea, entirely disappeared. He was supposed to have gone to the gods. He reigned 37 years.

2. Nineveh, as formerly observed, was founded by Ashur some time after Babylon had been built by Nimrod; but continued for many ages a private royalty. For Pul, one of the kings of Nineveh, and probably also king of Babylon, seems to have founded the Assyrian empire. He makes his first appearance in scripture in the beginning of the reign of Menahem, king of Israel, and 771 years before the birth of Christ. This empire lasted about 170 years. The chief of its monarchs were, 1. Pul, supposed to be the same with Belus. He reigned upwards of 24 years. 2. Tiglathpileser, who is supposed to be the same with Ninus, and who subdued Damascus, and put an end to the ancient kingdom of Syria, reigned about 19 years. 3. Shalmaneser, who besieged and sacked Samaria, reigned 12 years. 4. Sennacherib, whose army, whilst he attempted to besiege Jerusalem, was smitten by an angel, reigned 6 years. 5. Esarhaddon, who carried Manasseh king of Judah captive to Babylon, and conquered Egypt and Ethiopia, reigned 42 years. 6. Saosduchinus, in scripture called Nebuchadonozor, who conquered Phraortes king of the Medes, levelled Ecbatan with the ground, and, returning to Nineveh, feasted 120 days, reigned 20 years. 7. Chynalydan, supposed to be the same with Sardanapalus, reigned 22 years. This prince, the Medes having made war upon him, and the Babylonians having revolted from him, set fire to his palace, and was consumed with all his wealth in the flames. The Assyrian empire subsisted several years after his death; but was in the end overturned by the Medes and Babylonians, in the year before Christ 601. Thus two empires arose out of that of the Assyrians, namely, the Babylonian and Median.

ter dux sœdus, et Sabinus Roma commigro. Demum Romulus, cum exercitus ad Caprea palus recensco, subitus coortus tempestas, nusquam appareo. Ad deus transeo creditus sum. Regno annus 37.

Nineve, ut supra dictus sum, ab Ashur conditus sum, sero aliquantum quam Babylon a Nimbrothus extructus sum; sed privatus tantummodo regnum per multus seculum existo. Namque Pul, unus e rex Nineve, et ut verisimilis sum, rex etiam Babylon, Assyrius constituo imperium videor. Hic mentio fio primo in scriptura sub initium regnum Menahem rex Israeliticus, et 771 annus ante natus Christus. Hic imperium annus circiter 170 duro. Præcipuus ex is princeps sum, 1. Pul, qui et Belus sum credo. Is annus 24, et amplius imperito. 2. Tiglathpileser, qui et Ninus sum credo, et qui, Damascus subactus, antiquus Syria regnum finis impono, annus circiter 19 regno. 3. Shalmaneser, qui Samaria obsidio captus deleo, annus 12 regno. 4. Sennacherib, qui exercitus cum Hierosolyma obside conor, ab angelus cædo, annus 6 regno. 5. Esarhaddon, qui Manasses Juda rex Babylon captivus abduco, et Ægyptus atque Æthiopia in suis ditio redigo, annus 42 regno. 6. Saosduchinus, in scriptura Nebuchadonozor appellatus, qui Phraortes Medus rex devictus, Ecbatana solum æquo, et Nineve reversus dies 120 epulor, annus 20 regno. 7. Chynalydan, qui et Sardanapalus fortasse dico, annus 22 regno. Hic, Medus bellum infero, Babyloniusque desero, regia suis incendio, et cum divitiæ concremo. Imperium Assyrius aliquot annus post is interitus duro, demum vero a Medus et Babylonius everto, annus ante Christus 601. Ita ex imperium Assyrius duo orior, Babylonius, sciz. et Medius.

3. From the time of Nimrod to that of Pul, a great many petty princes reigned in Babylon. Nineveh too and Babylon seem to have been often governed by the same king. But, in the 24th year of the reign of Pul, and 747 years before Christ, these became two distinct kingdoms. Nabonassar, who gives name to the famous æra, and who seems to have been a younger son of Pul, gets the kingdom of Babylon, whilst his elder brother Tiglathpileser obtains the sceptre at Nineveh. During the flourishing state of the Assyrian monarchy, the kings of Babylon seem to have been only viceroys or lord lieutenants to those of Nineveh; but afterwards Babylon rose upon its ruin, and became a great empire, which, computing from Nabonassar, lasted 209 years; viz. Nabonassar, called also Bel-esi and Nanybrus, reigned 14 years. Nadius 2. Chinzirus and Porus jointly 5. Jugæus 5. Mardoc Empadus, in scripture called Merodachbaladan, who sent an embassy to Hezekiah, king of Judah, to inquire about the sun's retrogression, reigned 12 years. Arkianus 5. An inter-reign of two years followed. Belibus 3. Apronadius 6. Mesessimordacus 4. Then an inter-reign of eight years. Assaradinus, or Esarhaddon, who, with his two successors, were also kings of Assyria, reigned 13 years. Saofduchinus 20. Chynalydan, called also Sarac, 22. Nabopallasar, who revolted from Chynalydan, and transferred the seat of the empire from Nineveh to Babylon, reigned 21 years. He, joining his forces with those of Cyaxares, king of the Medes, reduced Nineveh to a low condition, but did not live to see its final destruction, having been diverted from this war by an irruption of the Scythians, who at that time overran a great part of Asia. Nabocolassar, or Nebuchadnezzar, who in a most magnificent manner adorned the city Babylon, and raised the empire to its highest pitch of glory, and was himself afterwards, by the decree of heaven, driven from the society of men to dwell with the beasts of the

A tempus Nimbrothus ad Pul, multus princeps exiguis Babylon imperito. Nineve quoque et Babylon idem rex sæpe pareo videor. Sed 24 annus regnum Pul, et 747 annus ante Christum natus, ex unus duo diversus regnum factus sum Nabonassar, qui inclutus æra nomen facto, et qui filius Pul natu minor sum video, regnum Babylonis adipiscor, cum interim Tiglathpileser frater natu major apud Nineve res potior. Imperium Assyriacus vicens, rex Babylonis, quasi prorox seu præfectus rex Nineve subiectus sum video; postea autem Babylon is excidium auctus sum et magnus imperium evado; qui, si supputatio a Nabonassar instituo, per annus 209 duro; sciz. Nabonassar, qui Bel-esi et Nanybrus etiam dictus sum, annus 14 regno. Nadius 2. Chinzirus et Porus simul 5. Jugæus 5. Mardoc Empadus, sacer literæ Merodachbaladan dictus, qui legatus ad Ezechias, rex Juda, ut de sol retrogressus certior fio, mitto, annus 12 impero. Arkianus 5. Duo annus interregnum secutus sum. Belibus 3. Apronadius 6. Mesessimordacus 4. Deinde interregnum octo annus. Assaradinus, seu Esarhaddon, qui, cum duo successor, rex etiam Assyria sum, annus 13 regno. Saofduchinus 20. Chynalydan, Sarac etiam appellatus, 22. Nabopallasar, qui a Chynalydan descisco, et sedes imperium a Nineve ad Babylon transfero, annus 21 regno. Is, suis cum copiæ Cyaxares Medus rex junctus, Nineve ad conditio afflictus redigo; at mors præreptus inter necio non video, ab hic etenim bellum abstractus sum incursum Scythia, qui tunc tempus magnus pars Asia vasto. Nabocolassar, seu Nebuchadnezzar, qui urbs Babylon magnificenter extruo, et imperium ad summus fastigium eveho, et qui postea celestis decretum e homo cætus ad habitandum cum field, reigned 43 years. Evilmerodach reigned 2 years. Neriglissar 4. Nabonadius, Labynitus, or Balthazzar, 17; in whose time the city of Babylon was taken by Cyrus, and the empire overturned, in the year before Christ 538.

4. The Medes, having thrown off the Assyrian yoke in the reign of Sennacherib, lived some time without a king; but intestine disorders arising, Dejoces, one of their own number, called Arphaxad in the book of Judith, was chosen king, in the year before Christ 710. In his latter days he made war upon Sardanaphtus, king of the Assyrians; but his army was defeated in a battle fought in the great plain of Ragau, himself slain, and his capital Ecabata destroyed after a reign of 53 years. His son Phraortes subdued a great part of the Upper Asia, invaded Assyria, and laid siege to Nineveh, where he perished, with the greater part of his army, after having reigned 22 years. His son, Cyaxares I. by a stratagem, relieved his country from the Scythians. He engaged in war with the Lydians; but a total eclipse of the sun, said to have been foretold by Thales the Milesian, happening in the time of battle, both armies retreated, and a peace was concluded. He afterwards, in conjunction with Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, invested Nineveh, and razed it to the ground, in the year before Christ 601. This confederate army soon after overran and conquered Egypt, Judea, Syria, Armenia, Pontus, Cappadocia, and Persia. Cyaxares reigned 40 years. His son Astyages, called Ahasuerus in the book of Daniel, repulsed the Babylonians, who, under the conduct of Evilmerodach, had made an irruption into Media. He reigned 35 years. His son, Cyaxares II. called in scripture Darius the Mede, reigned 22 years. He had a bloody war with the kings of Babylon, and their ally Cræsus, king of Lydia, for the space of 21 years. In this war he was assisted by Cyrus his nephew; who at last took Babylon, and placed his uncle on the throne. bestia ager expulsus sum, annus 43 impero. Evilmerodach annus 2 regno. Neriglissar 4. Nabonadius, Labynitus, seu Balthazzar, 17; qui regnans urbs Babylon a Cyrus captus sum, et imperium eversum, annus ante Christum 538.

Medus, jugum Assyrius excussus, rex Sennacherib, aliquandiu sine rex ago; sed discordia civilis subortus, Dejoces, ex gens Medus oriundus, qui in liber Juditha Arphaxad appello, rex creo, annus ante Christum 710. Postremus tempus bellum Sardanaphtus, Assyrius rex, infero; sed exercitus is fugatus sum praelium in magnis planities Ragau commissus, ipse interfectus, et caput regnum Ecabata excidium datus, postquam annus 53 impero. Phraortes filius magnus pars Superior Asia domo, Assyria invado, Nineveque obsideo, ubi ipse cum magnis parcopiæ pereco, post regnum 22 annus. Filius is, Cyaxares I. civilis dolus Scythia libero. Bellum contra Lydium in eo; sed cum sol, inter pugnandum, defectus totalis laboro, qui deliquit Thales Milesius prædico fama sum, ambo exercitus praelium recedo, et pax factus sum. Hic postea, Nebuchadnezzar rex Babylon adjuvans, Nineve obsideo, et solum æquo, annus ante Christum 601. Adunatus hic exercitus mox Ægyptus, Judea, Syria, Armenia, Pontus, Cappadocia, et Persia, peragro domoque. Annus 40 regno. Astyages filius, Daniel liber Ahasuerus dictus, Babylonius, qui, Evilmerodach dux, in Media irrumpo, repello. Annus 35 impero. Filius is, Cyaxares II. sacer literæ Darius Medus appellatus, annus 22 regno. Bellum cruentus cum rex Babylon, isque socius Cræsus, Lydus rex, per spatium 21 annus, gerit. In hic bellum Cyrus nepos is auxiliium venio; qui tandem Babylon potitus, avunculus summus throne; where he reigned two years. Upon his death Cyrus transferred the seat of empire from the Babylonians and Medes to the Persians, in the year before Christ 536.

5. Twenty-five years after the building of Rome, So or Sabacus the Ethiopian began to reign in Egypt; whose successors, for about 200 years, were Anyfis, Sethon, 12 kings jointly, Psammitichus, Necho, Psammis, Apries, Amasis, and Psamminitus.

6. Twenty-seven years after the building of Rome, and 721 before Christ, Samaria was taken and destroyed by Salmaneser, king of the Assyrians. The ten tribes, with their king Hoshea, were carried away into Assyria. Tobias was one of the captives, whose piety preserved him his liberty in the midst of servitude. Hezekiah, the son of king Ahaz, a man of eminent piety, was then king of Jerusalem. At this time too lived the prophet Isaiah.

7. Numa Pompilius, the second king of the Romans, was called to the throne from Cures, a town of the Sabines, on account of his own renowned wisdom. He softened the martial fierceness of Rome by religion. He instituted priests and sacred rites, pretending intercourse with the goddess Egeria in the night. Then he built the temple of Janus, and shut its gates, which were the signs of peace and war. He completed the year by the addition of two months; and, instead of March, appointed January to be the beginning of the year. He reigned 43 years.

8. Manasseh, the son of Hezekiah, reigned then in Judea. At the same time lived Judith, by whom Holofernes, general of Sardanapalus, king of the Assyrians, was slain; Gyges too, who is said to have been the intimate favourite of Candaules, king of the Lydians, and was forced by him to view the beauty of his queen when naked. After which Gyges, at the queen's desire, murdered Candaules, and seized upon the kingdom.

9. After Numa, Tullus Hostilius being created king of Rome, made war upon the Albans. The dispute being referred to three Horatii on the side of potestas permitto; qui ibi duo annus regno. Cyrus, avunculus mortuus, sedes imperium a Babylonius et Medus ad Persa transfero, annus ante Christum 536.

In Ægyptus, So seu Sabacus Æthiops regno cepi, annus post Roma conditus 25; qui successor, per ducenti fere annus, sum Anyfis, Sethon, 12 rex simul, Psammitichus, Necus, Psammis, Apries, Amasis, et Psamminitus.

Annus post Roma conditus 27, et ante Christum 721, Samaria a Salmaneser, Assyrius rex, captus et everfus sum. Tribus decem, Cum Oseas rex, in Assyria abductus. Unus e captivus Tobias sum, qui libertas in ipse servitus pietas conservo. Rex tum Hierosolyma Ezechias, Ahas rex natus, homin singularis pietas. Hic tempus etiam existo vates Elaias.

Numa Pompilius, Romanus rex II. propter sapientia fama, ad regnum e Cures, Sabinus oppidum, vocatus sum. Roma arma ferox religio mansuefacio. Sacra sacerdosque instituo, simulatus cum dea Egeria nocturnus congressus. Janus dein templum extruo, isque valva, pax bellumque index, claudio. Annus duo mensis additus expleo. Annus initium Januarii pro Martius sum volo. Regno annus 43.

Manasses, Ezechias filius, in Judæa tum regno. Idem tempus existo Juditha, a qui Holofernes, dux Sardanapalus rex Assyrius, sum obruncatus; Gyges quoque, qui intimus Candaules Lydus rex sum afflecla dico, ab isque coactus, ut nudus regina species contemplor. Postea Gyges, regina iussu, Candaules obrunco, et regnum invado.

Tullus Hostilius, post Numa, Roma rex creatus, bellum Albanus infero. Certamen tres Horatii Romanus, et totidem the Romans, and as many Curiatii on that of the Albans, victory declared for the Romans. The Albans afterwards rebelling, Tullus, after demolishing Alba, ordered them to remove to Rome. Rome being increased by the ruins of Alba, mount Cælius was added to the city. Tullus was thunderstruck, and burnt up with all his house, after he had reigned 31 years. In the mean time, Ammon, Manassæh's son, and king of Jerusalem, was assassinated by his servants.

10. After Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Martius, the grandson of Numa by a daughter, took upon him the government. He proclaimed war by his heralds against the Latins, and vanquished them. He took a great many of them afterwards into the city. He united the Aventine mount to the city, and likewise the Janiculum, by throwing a wooden bridge over the river. He extended the Roman dominion quite to the sea, and built the city Ostia at the mouth of the Tiber. He died of a distemper in the 24th year of his reign. A few years after, Josiah, Hezekiah's grandson, fell in battle, fighting against Necho, king of Egypt. The prophet Jeremiah and all the people lamented him.

11. The fifth king of Rome was Tarquinius Priscus, the son of Demaratus of Corinth. He doubled the number of the senators, built the Circus, and instituted the Circensian games. He subdued the twelve nations of Tuscany, and borrowed from them the ensigns of supreme power, the Fasces, the Trabeæ, the Curule chairs, the Pretexta, and other things of that kind. He was slain by the sons of Ancus, in the 37th year of his reign.

12. Draco, who was Archon at Athens, in the year before Christ 623, laid the Athenians under the most cruel laws, by which the smallest offences and the greatest crimes were equally punished with death. For which he himself assigned this reason: Small faults seem to me worthy of death, and for flagrant and great offences, I can find no higher punishment. But these laws did not long please the Athenians. Demades was Curiatius Albanus, commissus victoria penes Romanos sum. Albanus postea rebellans, Alba everfus, Roma demigro Tullus jubeo. Roma Alba ruina auctus, Cælius mons urbs additus. Cum Tullus 31. annus regno, fulmen ictus, cum domus sua ardeo. Ammon, interea, Manassæ filius, et Hierosolyma rex, a famulus suus interfectus sum.

Post Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Martius, Numa ex filia nepos, suscipio imperium. Latinus bellum per faciales indico, ac vinco. Is plurimus postea incivitas adscisco. Aventinus mons, nec non sublicius pons in flumen factus Janiculum, urbs adjicio. Romanus imperium usque ad mare propago, et Ostia urbs in os Tiberis condo. Annus imperium 24 morbus pereco. Pauci exinde annus, Josias, Ezechias nepos, contra Necho Ægyptus rex pugnans, prælium cado. Is Jeremias vates et cunctus populus lamentatio prosequor.

Quintus Roma rex sum Tarquinius Priscus, filius Demaratus Corinthius. Hic numerus senator duplicio, Circus ædifico, et ludus Circenses instituo. Tuscia populus duodecim subigo, ab isque summus potestas insigne accipio, Fasces, Trabeæ, Curules, Pretexta, et is genus alius. Annus imperium 37, per Ancus filius occisus sum.

Draco, qui Archon Athenæ sum, annus ante Christum 623, atrox Athenienses lex impono, qui æque parvus peccatum ac magnus scelus capitalis sum. Qui ipse hic causa trado: Parvus peccatum ego mors dignus video, et manifestus ac magnus scelus, magnus supplicium excogito non possum. At hic lex Atheniensis non diu placeo. Demades dico soleo, went to say, that Draco's laws were not written with ink, but blood.

13. In Judea, after the death of Josiah, his son enjoyed the crown three months, and his brother a few years. Josiah's brother was succeeded by Zedekiah the last king of the Jews, who was reduced to slavery by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon; Jerusalem also, and the temple, were burnt, and the citizens carried away into Babylon, in the year before the birth of Christ 588.

14. Whilst Palestine and Syria were laid waste by the arms of barbarians, Greece was improved by the institution of its wise men. The seven wise men of Greece flourished at the same time. Solon, one of their number, having abolished Draco's laws, enacted new ones more proper for the Athenians.

15. Servius Tullius, the sixth king of the Romans, having conquered the Hetrusci and Veientes, instituted the Census. He divided the people into classes and centuries; added to the city the Quirinal, Viminal, and Esquiline hills. He was murdered in the 44th year of his reign, by the villany of his son-in-law Tarquin the Proud.

16. About this period lived a set of the most savage tyrants in different parts of the world; Periander at Corinth, Pisistratus at Athens, Thrasylbulus at Miletus, Polycrates in the island Samos, and Phalaris in Sicily. The same age was very productive of wise men; then flourished Æsop the famous writer of fables, and Pythagoras in Italy, who first called himself a philosopher. In Greece, the poets Alcæus, Stesichorus, Sappho, Simonides, Anacreon, Pindar, were greatly renowned.

17. Towards the latter end of Servius Tullius's time flourished Cyrus the Persian. He was the son of Cambyfes, either king of Persia, or a man of the first rank in that country, and of Mandane, the daughter of Astyages, king of the Medes. Herodotus indeed says, that his father was a mean man; and that Cyrus, on account of a dream, had been exposed in his infancy by order of his grandfather. But greater credit is due to Xenophon. Cyrus, in the fortieth Draco lex non atramentum, sed sanguis, scriptus sum.

In Judæa, post mors Josias, filius tres menses, et frater pauci annus, regnum potitus sum. Frater Josias succedo Zedechias, rex Judæus postremus, qui a Nebuchadnezzar, Babylon rex, in servitus redactus sum; templum quoque, ac Hierosolyma, incensus, civis Babylon traductus, annus ante Christus natus 588.

Dum Palestina et Syria barbarus arma evasto, Græcia sapiens institutum excolo. Septem ille Græcia sapiens unus tempus existo. Ex qui numerus Solon, abrogatus Draco lex, commodus Atheniensis lex fero.

Servius Tullius, sextus Romanus rex, Hetruscus ac Veiens debellatus, Census instituo. Populus in classis ac centuria describo; urbs, Quirinalis, Viminalis, Esquilinus mons, adjungo. Occisus sum 44. imperium annus, scelus gener suus Tarquinius Superbus.

Hic tempus immanis tyrannus passim existo; Periander Corinthus, Pisistratus Athenæ, Thrasylbulus Miletus, Polycrates in Samos insula, et Phalaris in Sicilia. Idem ætas sapiens ferax sum; Æsopus fabula architectus tum vigeo, necnon Pythagoras in Italia, qui sui primus philosophus appello. In Græcia, poeta Sappho, Alcæus, Stesichorus, Simonides, Anacreon, Pindarus, illustris sum.

Cyrus Persa extremus Servius Tullius tempus existo. Sum natus Cambyfes, aut rex Persia, aut vir primus ordo in is civitas, et Mandane, filia Astyages, rex Medus. Herodotus quidem pater Cyrus mediocris vir sum perhibeo, et Cyrus infans jussu avus propter somnium expositus sum. At fides Xenophon potius adhibendus sum. Cyrus quadragesimus ætas annus agens, e Persia year of his age, was called from Persia to assist his uncle Cyaxares, king of the Medes, in his war against the Babylonians, and their ally Cræsus, king of Lydia. This war lasted 21 years. Cyrus commanded the united army of Medes and Persians; and from this period historians compute the beginning of his reign. Cyrus's conduct in this war was glorious, and his success wonderful. He vanquished Cræsus, and took the royal city of Sardis; after this he subdued all the continent from the Ægean sea to the Euphrates. He reduced the strong city of Babylon, and, delivering the government of that kingdom to his uncle Cyaxares, called also Darius the Mede, he returned into Persia. About two years after, Cyaxares dying, and also Cambyfes king of Persia, Cyrus took upon him the government of the whole empire; which he held for the space of seven years. In the first of these seven years, and before Christ 534, he issued out his decree for restoring the Jews to their country. In the reign of Cyrus lived the prophet Daniel, whom that monarch esteemed with an affectionate regard.

18. A few years after, as Herodotus relates, Cyrus made war upon the Scythians, and cut off the son of their queen Tomyris, with his army. But the advantages of the victory proved delusive and of short duration. Cyrus, flushed with his late victory, marches out into a place of disadvantage, where he was trepanned by the enemy, and cut to pieces, with all his forces. But Xenophon says, Cyrus died at home a natural death, in the 70th year of his age, and was buried at Pasargada in Persia, leaving his son Cambyfes heir to his empire; who, having conquered Psamminitus, annexed Egypt to his father's realm. The Persian empire lasted 228 years. Cyrus reigned 30 years, Cambyfes 7, Darius Hystaspis 36, Xerxes 21, Artaxerxes Longimanus, called Ahasuerus in the scriptures, and who had Esther for his queen, 41, Darius Nothus 19, Artaxerxes Mnemon 46, Ochus 21, Arses 2, Darius Codomanus 6.

accessit sum, ut Cyaxares avunculus suus in bellum contra Babylonius, isque socius Cræsus, rex Lydia, auxilium sum. Hic bellum per annus 21 gestus sum. Adunatus copiæ Medus et Persa Cyrus præsum; et ab hic tempus imperium apud historicis initium duco. Ut Cyrus virtus in hic bellum sum insignis, ita mirus felicitas usus sum. Cræsus supero, et regius urbs Sardis expugno; post hic totus regio inter mare Ægeus et Euphrates perdomo. Babylon urbs munitissimus subigo, regnumque is administratio avunculus suus Cyaxares, Darius Medus etiam dictus, traditus, ipse in Persia regressus sum. Post fere biennium Cyaxares, necnon Cambyfes rex Persia, mortuus, Cyrus totus imperium administratio suscipio; qui per septem annus teneo. Annus hic septem primus, et ante Christus 534, edictum suus promulgo, qui Judæus patria restituo. Regnans Cyrus vivo Daniel propheta, qui imperator ille complexus sum.

Pauci exinde annus, ut Herodotus narro, Cyrus Scythia bellum infero, et Tomyris regina filius cum exercitus cædo. At brevis et fallax sum fructus victoria. Cyrus recens victoria elatus, in iniquus locus progredior, ubi insidia hostis ipse cum omnis copia concido. Xenophon autem aio, Cyrus domus fatum sanctus sum, annus ætas septuagesimus, et Pasargada in Persia sepultus sum, Cambyfes filius hæres imperium relictus; qui, Psamminitus victus, paternum regnum Ægyptus adjicio. Imperium Persicus annus 228 duro. Cyrus regno annus 30, Cambyfes 7, Darius Hystaspis 36, Xerxes 21, Artaxerxes Longimanus, Ahasuerus sacer literæ dictus, et qui Esther regina habeo, 41, Darius Nothus 19, Artaxerxes Mnemon 46, Ochus 21, Arses 2, Darius Codomanus 6.

CHAP. VIII.

From the Liberation of the Jews by Cyrus to the Overthrow of the Persian Empire by Alexander the Great, including 204 years.

TARQUINIUS SUPERBUS, the seventh and last of the Roman kings, derived his surname from his behaviour. He slighted the authority of the senate in the management of the government. He finished the temple of Jupiter which had been begun by his father: He subdued the Volsci; and took Gabii by the artful conduct of his son Sextus. He is said to have purchased the Sibylline books from the Cumean Sibyl. At last he was turned out of the city, and his kingdom too, for a rape committed by his son upon Lucretia, a woman of quality, in the 23d year of his reign, in the 68th Olympiad, and before Christ 506. The regal power obtained at Rome, under seven kings, almost 242 years.

2. After the expulsion of the kings, two consuls were created annually at Rome. Brutus and Collatinus were the first consuls. Brutus, upon the discovery of a conspiracy against the public liberty, punished the conspirators, among whom were two of his own sons, with death.

3. About the same time a like incident delivered the Athenians from tyranny. Hipparchus, the son of Pisistratus, had debauched Harmodius's sister. Whereupon Harmodius slays the tyrant. Being forced with torture, by Hippias, the tyrant's brother, to name those that were accessory to the murder, he named the tyrant's friends; who were all immediately put to death by the tyrant. The citizens, roused by his magnanimity, banished Hippias, restored themselves to liberty. They erected a statue to Harmodius.

4. Cambyzes, king of the Persians, caused his brother Smerdis to be assassinated, because he had dreamed that he saw him on the throne. Cambyzes died soon after of a wound by his own sword dropping accidentally out of the sheath. Patizithes, one of the Magi, concealing the death of Smerdis, put up his own TARQUINIUS SUPERBUS, septimus atque ultimus Romanus rex, ex factum cognomen traho. Senatus auctoritas in administrandis republica negligo. Jupiter templum a pater inchoatus extruo: Volscus arma domo; Gabii Sextus filius dolus capio. A Sibylla Cumanus liber Sibyllinus emo dico. Tandem, ob stuprum Lucretia, nobilissimum femina, a filius illatus, et urbs, et regnum ejectus sum, annus regnum 23, Olympias 68, ante Christus natus 506. Regnatur Roma a septem rex annus prope 242.

Post rex expulsus, bini quotannis consul Roma creo. Brutus et Collatinus primus consul sum. Brutus, conjuratio contra libertas patefactus, conjuratus, in qui sum filius is duo, mors multo.

Atheniensis per idem tempus par causa tyrannis libero. Hipparchus, Pisistratus natus, Harmodius soror violo. Itaque Harmodius tyrannus obtrunco. Ab Hippias, tyrannus frater, nomine cædes conscius, tormentum coactus, tyrannus amicus nomine; qui omnis statim a tyrannus interficio. Hic virtus excitatus civis, Hippias pulsus, sui in libertas assero. Harmodius statua pono.

Cambyzes, rex Persa, frater suus Smerdis interficiendus curo, quod per quies is regno video. Paulo post Cambyzes, gladius e vagina delapsus, vulneratus intereo. Patizithes, unus e Magus, celatus mors Smerdis, frater suus Oropastes pro is supbrother Oropastes in his room, who, personating Smerdis, obtained the sovereignty. But the imposture being soon discovered, the pretended king, with his brother, was taken off by the grandees of Persia.

5. The grandees, who had dispatched Oropastes, agreed among themselves to come to the palace before sun-rise, and that he whose horse neighed first, should be king. The horse of Darius, the son of Hystaspis, neighed first, and procured him his owner the kingdom.

6. Darius Hystaspes, being thus created king of the Persians, granted leave to the Jews to finish the temple of Jerusalem; the prophet Haggai at the same time encouraging them thereto. Babylon, which had revolted from the Persians, he recovered by the artifice of his friend Zopyrus. For he having cut off his nose and ears, made the Babylonians believe he had fled over to them, on having been barbarously used by Darius. Accordingly he betrayed the city, with which they entrusted him, to Darius.

7. Tarquinius Superbus being banished from Rome, implored the assistance of Porfenna, king of the Etruscians; who, waging war with the Romans, possessed himself of the Janiculum. Horatius Cocles alone sustained the assaults of the enemy on the Sublician bridge for a considerable time, till the bridge was cut down behind him. Then he plunged into the Tiber, and swam over safe to the Romans, amidst the darts of the enemy. Clælia too, a Roman lady, one of the hostages, having eluded her keepers, swam over the Tiber, amidst the darts of the Etruscians. Moreover, Mutius Scævola, in order to deliver his country from the enemy's blockade, conveys himself into their camp, and, instead of the king, by mistake kills his secretary. Being carried before the king to be examined, he thrusts his right hand into the fire, and burns it; and at the same time declares to the king, that 300 Romans had in like manner taken an oath to murder him. Whereupon Porfenna, making peace with the Romans, returned home.

pono, qui sui Smerdis sum simulant, regnum potior. Sed fraudem cito patefactus, pseudo rex, cum fratre, a Persa princeps confodio.

Princeps, qui Oropastes neco, inter sui pacifcor, ut ad regia ante sol ortus venio, et ut is, qui equus hinnitus primus edo, rex sum. Equus Darius, Hystaspis filius, hinnitus primus edo, et dominus regnum pario.

Darius Hystaspes, rex Persa sic creatus, Judæus potestas templum Hierosolyma absolvendus facio; adhortans simul Haggai propheta. Babylon, qui a Persa descisco, Zopyrus amicus dolus recipio. Quippe is, natus sui et auris defectus, fidus facio Babylonius, sui a Darius crudeliter tractatus ad is confugio. Itaque urbs, suus fides ab ille creditus, Darius prodo.

Tarquinius Superbus Romæ exactus, Porfenna, Etruscianus rex, auxilium imploro; qui, bellum Romanus illatus, Janiculum occupo. Hostis impetus Horatius Cocles tamdiu sustineo in Sublicius pons solus, quoad pons a tergum rescindo. Inde in Tiberis desilio, atque inter hostium telum incolumis ad Romanos trano. Clælia quoque, virgo Romanus, unus ex obses, elusus custos, Tiberis inter Etruscianum telum trano. Mutius porro Scævola, ut patria obsidio hostis eximo, in is castra sui insinuo, per error scriba pro rex obtrunco. Ad tribunal rex retractus, dextra foculus injicio, atque exuro; simulque rex, trecenti Romanos idem ratio in caput is conjuro, denuncio. Itaque Porfenna, pacem cum Romanis factus; domus redeo.

8. After this the Latins made war upon the Romans, under the conduct of Tarquin's son-in-law; against whom Posthumius being made dictator, he vanquished them in a memorable battle at the lake Regillus. It is said the gods, particularly Castor and Pollux, were present in this battle, and were seen to fight on white horses, in the year of the city 255. Gelo at that time reigned in Syracuse.

9. Darius also, king of the Persians, endeavouring to reinstate Hippas in his kingdom, made war upon Athens. Miltiades, general of the Athenians, quickly meets him at Marathon with a small body of men. Ten thousand Athenians encountered two hundred thousand Persians. Darius's army was routed and put to flight, in the year before the birth of Christ 490.

10. Rome, delivered from foreign enemies, was well nigh ruined by intestine divisions. The commons, harassed by the senators and usurers, withdrew to the Sacred Mount on the other side of the Anio; but were appeased by the persuasions of Menenius Agrippa, and, upon obtaining the protection of the tribunes of the people against the Patricians, returned into the city.

11. Marcus Coriolanus having been forced from the city, by the spite of the tribunes, went over to the Volsci, and made war upon his country. He so broke the power of the Romans, that they were obliged to sue for peace, by sending his mother Veturia to him. Coriolanus yielded to his mother's entreaties, and the Volsci were afterwards quite reduced by Spurius Cassius. But Cassius, after this, elated with his mighty success, and aiming at sovereignty, was thrown headlong from the Tarpeian rock, in the year of the city 268.

12. About the same time, Aristides, surnamed the Just, was banished Athens. But being soon restored, he assisted Themistocles, in the Persian war, by whose interest he had been expelled, sacrificing private wrongs to the good of his country.

13. At Rome the Fabian family, to ease their country of trouble, petitioned for the entire management of the Ve-

Latinus deinde, dux Tarquinius gener, bellum Romanus infero; contra qui, Posthumius dictator factus, ad lacus Regillus insignis prælium vinco. Fero deus, nempe Castor et Pollux, hic prælium intersum, et ex albus equus pugno visus sum, annus urbs 255. Gelo tum Syracusæ regno.

Darius quoque, Persæ rex, Hippas in pristinum regnum restituo conatus, Athenæ bellum infero. Miltiades, Atheniensis dux, ad Marathon cum parva manus celeriter occurro. Cum ducenti Persæ mille decem Atheniensis mille dimico. Darius exercitus fusus fugatusque, annus ante Christum natus 490.

Liberatus Roma externus hostis intestinus discordia pene concido. Plebs, a pater ac focuator vexatus, in Sacer Mons trans Anio secedo; sed Menenius Agrippa oratio delinio, et, tribunus plebs præsidium adversus Pater acceptus, in urbs remigro.

Martius Coriolanus, tribunus invidia ab urbs pulsus, ad Volscus sui recipio, et patria bellum infero. Romanus opis adeo frango, ut, Veturia mater ad is ablegatus, pax peto cogo. Coriolanus maternus precis cedo, et Volscus postea a Spurius Cassius penitus debellatus sum. At Cassius, exinde, magnus successus elatus, et regnum affectans, de rupes Tarpeius precipitatus sum, annus urbs 268.

Sub idem tempus, Aristides, cognomentum Justus, Athenæ exulo. Brevi autem restitutus, Themistocles, qui opera ejectus sum, Persicus bellum adjuvo, privatus injuria patria condonatus.

Roma Fabius gens, ut patria molestia libero, bellum sui Veientinus ipse posco. Veien-entian war to themselves. They defeated the Veientes several times. Being now victorious, they were almost utterly destroyed by a stratagem of the enemy, above 300 of the Fabii were cut off in one day.

14. Xerxes, the son of Darius Hystaspes, heir to his father's crown and inveterate enmity to the Greeks, having built a bridge of boats over the Hellepont, and digged through Mount Athos, invaded Greece with an army of two millions of men. At the straits of Thermopylae, Leonidas king of the Spartans, with a handful of men, made a dreadful slaughter of his troops, till, spent with killing, he fell victorious above heaps of slain enemies. The Athenians, in the mean time, quitting their city, equipped a fleet of 200 ships. Accordingly, Xerxes having found Athens deserted, burnt it. But his fleet, consisting of 2000 sail and upwards, being defeated near Salamis, and put to flight by the contrivance and valour of Themistocles the Athenian admiral, he marched off in great dismay towards Thrace, in order to cross the Hellepont; but finding his bridge broken down by the violence of the storms, he passed over in a fishing-boat, and continued his flight to Sardis, in the year of Rome 468, and before Christ 480.

15. The year following, Mardonius, who had been left by Xerxes with 300 thousand men to prosecute the war, met with a mighty overthrow at Platea from the Greeks, under the conduct of Aristides and Pausanias. In the reign of Xerxes, flourished Herodotus the father of historians, about 600 years later than Homer.

16. Quinctius Cincinnatus, called from the plough by the Romans to the dictatorship, delivered the consul Minutius, who had been blocked up by the Æqui at Algidum, and caused the enemy to pass under the yoke. Cimon also, the son of Miltiades, having with the like good conduct vanquished the forces of Xerxes near Cyprus, restored the Greek cities of Asia to liberty. Nor was Greece then illustrious for its generals only, but philosophers also; for the same tea saepe vinco. Jam victrix ab hostis per insidias pene deletus sum, amplius 300 Fabii unus dies cado.

Xerxes, Darius Hystaspes filius, paternus regnum atque odium in Græcus hæres, junctus navis Hellepontus, Athosque mons perfolius, Græcia cum 2000 armatus mille invado. Is Leonidas rex Spartiates, parvus manus, ad Thermopylae angustiae, maximus infero clades, donec, cadendum defatigatio, super strages hostis corruo victor. Atheniensis interrim, relictus urbs, classis 200 navis adorno. Xerxes, igitur, Athenæ vacuum nactus, incendio. Sed classis duo mille navis, et amplius, Themistocles dux Atheniensis virtus et consilium prope Salamis fusus ac fugatus, trepidus Thracia versus discedo, ut Hellepontus trajicio: cum vero pons tempestas vis solutus video, scapha piscatorius transmittito, fugioque continuo Sardis, annus Roma 268, et ante Christus 480.

Sequens annus, Mardonius, qui cum 300 armatus mille a Xerxes ad persequendus bellum relictus sum, magnus ad Plateæ calamitas accipio a Græcus, Aristides et Pausanias dux. Xerxes rex, floreo historia pater Herodotus, annus prope 600 junior Homerus.

Quinctius Cincinnatus, ab aratrum ad dictatura a Romanus vocatus, Minutius consul ad Algidum, obfessus ab Æqui, libero, hostisque sub jugum mitto. Cimon quoque, Miltiades filius, Xerxes copiae ad Cyprus par virtus devictus, Græcus Asia urbs in libertas assero. Nec vero imperator tum, sed etiam philosophus, Græcia floreo; idem enim ætas Heraclitus, Democri- age produced Heraclitus, Democritus, Anaxagoras, and several others.

17. At Rome, about 300 years after the building of the city, instead of two consuls, decemviri were created. They compiled a body of laws brought over from Greece, and particularly from Athens. These, being inscribed on 12 tables, were called the laws of the XII. tables. Within a few years, by the lust of Appius Claudius, and the outrages of his colleagues, the government reverted to the consuls.

18. Artaxerxes Longimanus granted leave to Nehemiah, his cup-bearer, to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, in the year before the birth of Christ 445. In the reign of Artaxerxes, lived the famous naturalists Empedocles and Parmenides, Hippocrates the physician, Polyclethus and Phidias statuarys, Xeuxis, Parrhasius, and Timantes, painters.

19. About six years after the decemviral power was abolished, military tribunes with consular authority began to be created at Rome. The censors too were then first made for holding the census. Cornelius Cossus, a military tribune, having slain Tolumnius king of the Veientes with his own hand, next after Romulus, presented the spolia opima to Jupiter Feretrius.

20. The same year that the military tribunes were created at Rome, the Peloponnesian war broke out in Greece, which spreading itself over all Greece, continued 27 years. Thucydides, having been forced into banishment by Pericles, the incendiary of the war, wrote the history of it.

21. A few years after, the seat of the war was transferred into Sicily. The Athenians, importuned for aid by the Catanenses, engaged in a war against the Syracusans, in the reign of Darius Nothus, king of the Persians. The first attempts of the Athenians in this war were very successful, but the issue proved fatal to them. The generals of the Athenians were Alcibiades, Nicias, and Lamachus.

22. But at Athens the study of the liberal arts was in high repute. Then tus, Anaxagoras, aliisque complures, effundo.

Roma, annus post urbs conditus circiter 300, pro duo consul, decemviri creatus. Hic lex e Græcia, ac potissimum Athenæ, petitus, conscribo. Hic, quoniam tabula duodecim mandatus sum, lex XII. tabula appellata. Pauci annus, propter Appius Claudius libido, collegaque impotentia, res ad consul redeo.

Artaxerxes Longimanus, Nehemias, pincerna suus, potestas murus Hierosolyma reficiendum facio, annus ante Christus natus 445. Artaxerxes regnans, Empedocles et Parmenides physicus, Hippocrates medicus, Polyclethus et Phidias statuarius, Xeuxis, Parrhasius, et Timantes, pictor, clarus sum.

Sex fere annus post sublati decemviri potestas, tribunus miles consularis potestas Roma creo cæpi. Censor quoque tum primum ad census agendus creatus. Cornelius Cossus, tribunus miles, Tolumnius Veientes rex suus manus necatus, spolia opimus Jupiter Feretrius, alter ab Romulus, fero.

Idem annus qui tribunus miles Roma creatus sum; bellum Peloponnesiacum exardeo in Græcia, qui totus pervagatus Græcia, annus duro 27. Is bellum Thucydides, a Pericles, bellum excitator, in exilium ejectus, historia mando.

Pauci interjectus annus, bellum in Sicilia transeo. Atheniensis, Catanensis opis implorans, bellum adversus Syracusanus suscipio, Darius Nothus rex Persa. Hic bellum præclarus initium, exitus Atheniensis calamitosus sum. Dux Atheniensis sum Alcibiades, Nicias, et Lamachus.

Athenæ autem bonus ars studium vigeo. Aristophanes, flourished Aristophanes, Cratinus, and Eupolis, comic poets; Sophocles and Euripides, tragic poets; Praxiteles the famous statuary; Gorgias, and other sophists in great numbers; and Socrates, the father of philosophers. But Diagoras denying the existence of the gods, was banished from Athens, a reward being offered by the government if any one would kill him.

23. The Galli Senones, during the reign of Tarquinius Priscus, having driven out the Tuscans, had seized upon that part of Italy which was afterwards called Cisalpine Gaul. This people, incensed by Q. Fabius the ambassador of the Roman people, at the siege of Clusium, a town of the Hetrusci, turned their arms against the Romans, and, having cut off their forces at the river Allia, fell upon the city, under their leader Brennus, took and destroyed it with fire and sword. Rome was burnt in the year 365 after it was built.

24. About those times a calamity of much the like nature befel Athens. Lyfander, general of the Lacedæmonians, assisted by the power of Persia, having vanquished Conon, and brought the Athenians very low, took Athens itself, demolished its walls, and appointed thirty commissioners to govern the state; who tyrannising cruelly over the citizens, were turned out by Thrasylbulus, four years after the taking of the city, and Athens restored to its liberty.

25. About the same time flourished Ctesias of Cnidus, who, having been taken prisoner in the wars of Cyrus against Artaxerxes Mnemon, king of the Persians, was very honourably treated by the king on account of his skill in physic, and wrote the history of the Persians. At the same time lived Archytas of Tarentum, and likewise Antisthenes, Aristippus, Xenophon, Plato, Isocrates, disciples of Socrates.

26. In those times flourished several famous generals; at Athens, Iphicrates, Chabrias, Thrasylbulus, and Timotheus; amongst the Thebans, Pelopidas, and Epaminondas, a man of an illustrious character, not only for military glory, but likewise for Cratinus, et Eupolis, comicus poeta; Sophocles et Euripides, tragicus; Praxiteles statuarius insignis; Gorgias, aliusque sophista quam plurimus; et Socrates, philosophus parens, tum floreo. Diagoras autem, deus sum negans, Athenæ exulo, præmium publice propositus, si quis is occido.

Gallus Seno, Tarquinius Priscus regnans, Italia pars qui Gallia Cisalpinus postea dictus sum, Thuscus expulsum, occupo. Hic, in oppugnatio Clusium, Hetruscus oppidum, a Q. Fabius legatus populus Romanus irritatus, in Romanus arma verto, is copie ad Allia flumen cæsus, urbs, Brennus dux, invado, captus ferrum flammaque populor. Roma incensus annus postquam conditus sum 365.

Consimilis per is tempus Athenæ casus excipio. Lyfander, Lacedæmonius dux, opus Persicus adjunctus cum Conon victus, Atheniensis frango, ipse Athenæ capio, murus diruo, et triginta vir respublica præpono; qui in civis crudeliter grassans, a Thrasylbulus, quartus post urbs captus annus, ejectus sum, et libertas Athenæ restitutus.

Sub idem tempus floreo Ctesias Cnidus, qui, bellum Cyrus contra Artaxerxes Mnemon Persa rex captus, propter medendum scientia, magnus in honor ab rex sum habitus, et Persa scribo historia. Idem tempestas Archytas Tarentinus, itemque Antisthenes, Aristippus, Xenophon, Plato, Isocrates, Socrates discipulus, existo.

Clarus quoque per idem tempus imperator existo; Athenæ quidem, Iphicrates, Chabrias, Thrasylbulus, et Timotheus; apud Thebanus, Pelopidas, et Epaminondas, vir non solum res militaris gloria, sed etiam philohis skill in philosophy and integrity of life.

27. At Rome, Camillus, created dictator in his absence, having raised an army, advanced to the city, expelled the Gauls, and utterly destroyed their whole army. Rome within a year, by the generous activity of Camillus, was reared up a-new. Lucius Sextius, who, after a long dispute, was the first consul made from among the plebeians, put an end to the creation of military tribunes. A city Prætor, and two Curule Ædiles, were created.

28. Epaminondas, having cut off Cleombrotus, king of the Lacedæmonians, together with his army, at Leuctra, fell in battle, fighting with great bravery against Agésilæus, at Mantinea. With him fell the glory of the Thebans. The martial character of the Lacedæmonians likewise died, upon the introducing of gold, and along with it avarice, by their general Lyfander.

29. From the Greeks the martial spirit passed to the Carthaginians, who subdued Sardinia with their arms; and, having vanquished Dionysius, tyrant of Syracuse, took several towns from the Syracusans. Not long after, Dionysius being killed by his subjects, left the sovereignty to his son Dionysius; who, being at last driven from Syracuse for his unparalleled extravagance, by Dion the disciple of Plato, set up a school at Corinth; whilst Isocrates, Demosthenes's master, as yet taught rhetoric at Athens.

30. The arts of war in the mean time were in great lustre at Rome. T. Manlius, upon a challenge in the Gallic war, slew a Gaul of prodigious stature in the face of both armies, and was called Torquatus, from the chain which he took from the Gaul's neck. Valerius too killed a Gaul of like size, by the assistance of a raven, which perching on his helmet, had annoyed his antagonist with his wings and beak, and got the surname of Corvinus.

31. Alexander the Great was born at Pella, a town of Macedonia, in the year after the building of Rome 392, in the 106th Olympiad, and before the birth sophia laus, et vita integritas, illustis.

Camillus, Roma dictator absens factus, collectus copias, urbs advenio, Gallusque inde adjicio, et universus is exercitus penitus deleo. Roma intra annus Camillus beneficium novus urbs sto. Lucius Sextius, post longus certamen, primus e plebs consul factus, finis tribunus miles creandus assero. Prætor urbanus, et Ædilis Curulis duo creo.

Epaminondas, Lacedæmonius rex Cleombrotus cum exercitus ad Leuctra casus, ad Mantinea cum Agésilæus fortiter pugnans cado. Cum is Thebanus virtus occido. Lacedæmonius quoque laus bellicus concido, inestus, a Lyfander dux, cum aurum avaritia.

A Græcus ad Carthaginensis bellicus virtus transeo, qui Sardinia arma domo; et, Dionysius Syracusæ tyrannus superatus, multus Siculus oppidum adimo. Haud ita multo post, Dionysius interfectus a suis, tyrannus Dionysius filius relinquo; is, ob singularis nequitia, demum a Dion Plato auditor ejectus Syracusæ, ludus aperio Corinthus; docens etiam tum Athenæ rhetorica Isocrates, magister Demosthenes.

Roma interea ars bellicus exiteo. T. Manlius, bellum Gallicus Gallus eximius proceritas in oculus uterque exercitus, ex provocatio, occido; et, ex torquis qui Gallus cervix detraho, Torquatus dictus sum. Valerius item Gallus par magnitudo obranco, corvus præsidium, qui in is galea insidens, hostis ala rostrumque terreo, et cognomen Corvinus adipiscor.

Annus post Roma conditus 392, Olympias 106, et ante Christus natus 356, in oppidum Macedonia Pella, Alex-of Christ 356; his father Philip, king of the Macedonians, subdued the Illyrians, took several cities from the Athenians and other Greeks, and would have made himself master of all Greece, had he not been opposed by Demosthenes the orator. Finally, being created general of Greece for managing the Persian war, he was slain by Pausanias, whose ill usage he had neglected to revenge, in the reign of Ochus, king of the Persians.

32. In the mean time, the war with the Samnites proved very grievous and lasting. War was declared against the Samnites in favour of the Campani, who had put themselves under the protection of the Roman people, and was carried on with various success. To it was added the war with the Latins; in which war T. Manlius Torquatus the consul beheaded his own son, for engaging the enemy contrary to orders. In the same war Decius Mus, upon the Roman troops giving ground, devoted himself for the army. The ships of the Antiates taken during the war were brought to Rome, and with their beaks the gallery in the Forum was adorned: whilst Diogenes the Cynic, and scholar of Antisthenes, also Aristotle, Xenocrates, Speusippus, disciples of Plato, taught in Greece.

33. Alexander the Great in his youth studied under Aristotle; while yet very young he conquered the Thracians and Illyrians, destroyed Thebes, and received Athens upon surrender. After this, supported by the confederate arms of the Greeks and Thessalians, he passes over into Asia to the Persian war. He defeats Darius Codomannus, king of the Persians, first at Granicus, and a second time at Issus.

34. Moreover, Alexander having taken Tyre, invaded Judea. But being received in a friendly manner at Jerusalem by Jaddus the high priest, he offered sacrifices in the temple. Having made himself master of Egypt, he builds the city of Alexandria, calling it by his own name. In fine, he passes the Euphrates, conquers Darius a third time at Arbela, and, having taken Babylon, transfers the empire from the Persians ander Magnus natus sum; qui pater Philippus, rex Macedo, Illyrius subigo, multus de Atheniensis aliusque Græcus urbs capio, totiusque Græcia potitus sum, nisi Demosthenes orator adversarius habeo. Denique, ad bellum Persicus administrandus Græcia dux creatus, a Pausanias, qui injuria vindico negligo, interficio, Ochus rex Persa.

Samniticus, interim, bellum existo. Hanc gravis ac diuturnus. Pro Campanis, qui sui in fides populus Romanus trado, bellum Samnis indictus, ac varie gestus sum. Latinus bellum accedo; qui bellum T. Manlius Torquatus consul filius, quod contra edictum cum hostis pugno, securis percutio. Idem bellum Decius Mus, inclinatus acies Romanus, sui pro exercitus devoto. Navis Antiates bellum captus Roma subductus sum, atque is rostrum suggestum in Forum extructus adorno: Diogenes Cynicus, Antisthenes, Aristoteles, Xenocrates, Speusippus, Plato auditor, docens in Græcia.

Alexander Magnus puer Aristoteles opera do; adolescentulus Illyrius Thracique perdomo, Thebæ everto, Athenæ in deditio accipio. Inde, junctus Thessalus Græcusque arma adjutus, ad Persicus bellum in Asia trajicio. Darius Codomannus, Persa rex, primo ad Granicus, iterum ad Issus, supero.

Alexander, porro, captus Tyrus, Judæa invado. Sed Hierosolyma ab Jaddus summus sacerdos amice acceptus, in templum victima immolo. Ægyptus potitus, Alexandria urbs a sui conditus, ex suis nomen appello. Denique, Euphrates transeo, Darius tertio ad Arbela vinco, et, Babylon captus, imperium a Persa ad Macedo to the Macedonians, in the fourth year of his reign, in the 112th Olympiad, in the year of Rome 418, and before Christ 330.

traduco, annus regnum quartus, Olympias 112, annus Roma 418, et ante Christus 330.

CHAP. IX.

From the Overthrow of the Persian Empire to the Defeat of Perseus, the last Successor of Alexander the Great in Greece, by M. Julius Paulus, when Rome became the mistress of the world: comprehending 163 years.

THE Macedonian empire being thus erected, Alexander marches into India, and, after conquering many nations, returns to Babylon; where he died, in the 12th year of his reign, being 33 years old, in the year before the birth of Christ 323. In his reign flourished the historians Theopompus, Megasthenes, and Hecataeus.

2. Upon the demise of Alexander, many princes started up in the room of one. Ptolemy, the son of Lagus, called also Ptolemy Soter, reigned in Egypt, Eumenes in Cappadocia, Antigonus in Asia, Lysimachus in Thrace, Seleucus at Babylon. Cassander having put to death Alexander's son, and his mother Olympias, seized upon the kingdom of Macedonia. At the same time, Menander, the comic poet, Crantor, the disciple of Xenocrates, and Crates of Diogenes, Epicurus, and Zeno, the father of the Stoics, as also Theophrastus, were in great reputation.

3. About the time of Alexander's death, Appius Claudius the censor paved the Appian way at Rome. About the same time the Tarentine war was kindled up, occasioned by their insulting the Roman ambassadors. In which war the integrity and courage of Curius and Fabricius, with respect to Pyrrhus king of Epire, who had come to the assistance of the Tarentines, were remarkably eminent. Curius Dentatus having defeated him in battle, drove him at last out of Italy, and forced the Tarentines to surrender, about 483 years after the building of the city.

4. After the death of Alexander the Great, the regal government continued in Egypt for the space of near 275 years. Ptolemy Soter, the MACEDONICUS imperium ita constitutus, Alexander in India pergo, et, multus natio devictus, Babylon revertor; ubi, annus 33 natus, excedo et vita, annus regnum 12, et ante Christus natus 323. Is regnans, Theopompus, Megasthenes, et Hecateus, historicus, flore.

Alexander mortuus, multus pro unus rex exiit. Ptolemæus, Lagus filius, Ptolemæus Soter etiam dictus, in Ægyptus, Eumenes in Cappadocia, Antigonus in Asia, Lysimachus in Thracia, Seleucus Babylon, regno. Cassander, Alexander filius ac mater Olympias interfectus, regnum Macedonia occupo. Idem tempestas, Menander, comicus poeta, Crantor, Xenocrates, et Crates Diogenes, discipulus, Epicurus, et Zeno, Stoicus parens, itemque Theophrastus, nomen habet.

Roma, sub Alexander mors, Appius Claudius censor Appius via sterno. Sub idem tempus bellum Tarentinus, ob legatus populus Romanus violatus, excitatus sum. Qui bellum, adversus Pyrrhus Epirus rex, qui Tarentinus auxilium venio, Curius et Fabricius integritas ac virtus eniteo. Curius Dentatus denique, Pyrrhus devictus, Italia expello, et Tarentinus ad deditio compello, annus ab urbe conditus circiter 483.

Post mors Alexander Magnus, per spatium fere 275 annus in Ægyptus regnatur. Ptolemæus Soter, qui regnum initium ab an-beginning of whose reign is to be computed from the year before Christ 304, for the successors of Alexander long disclaimed the title of king, ruled 20 years, Ptolemy Philadelphus 38, Ptolemy Euergetes 25, Ptolemy Philopater 17, Ptolemy Epiphanes 24, Ptolemy Philometor 35, Ptolemy Physcon 29, Ptolemy Lathyrus or Soter 36, Alexander 15, Ptolemy Auletes 14, Queen Cleopatra 22.

5. Agathocles, the tyrant of Syracuse, being besieged by the Carthaginians, passed over privately with his fleet into Africa; by which means, he drew off the enemy to the defence of their own country. Having made peace with the Carthaginians, he makes himself absolute master of Sicily. He was succeeded by Hiero, who, for his great moderation, was honoured with the title of king, by the Syracusans. He gave occasion to the first Punic war with the Romans.

6. About 495 years after the building of the city, the Roman people having subdued almost all Italy, passed over into Sicily, to succour the Mamertini their allies, against Hiero and the Carthaginians. Accordingly the Romans, under their general Appius Claudius, vanquished Hiero; and, having worsted the Carthaginians, received several towns of Sicily upon surrender. After this C. Duilius first gained a naval victory over the Carthaginians. The seat of the war was immediately carried into Africa, under the command of Attilius Regulus. He having taken Tunis, and other towns of the Carthaginians, laid siege to Carthage. But being worsted by Xantippus, general of the Lacedæmonians, who came to the assistance of the Carthaginians, he fell into the hands of his enemies. Regulus being afterwards sent to Rome, to negotiate a peace, advised the Romans to make no peace with the Carthaginians. He himself returning to Carthage, in consequence of the engagements he had come under to the enemy, was put to death in the most cruel manner imaginable. Finally, the consul Lucatius humbled the power of nus ante Christum 304 supputandus sum, Alexander enim successor a nomen rex diu abstinco, annus 20 impero, Ptolemæus Philadelphus 38, Ptolemæus Euergetes 25, Ptolemæus Philopater 17, Ptolemæus Epiphanes 24, Ptolemæus Philometor 35, Ptolemæus Physcon 29, Ptolemæus Lathyrus five Soter 36, Alexander 15, Ptolemæus Auletes 14, Cleopatra regina 22.

Agathocles Syracusæ tyrannus, a Pœnus obfessus, occulte cum classis trajicio in Africa; ita hostis ad defendendus patria avoco. Pax cum Carthaginiensis factus, Sicilia imperium potior. Hic Hiero succedo, qui, propter summus moderatio, rex a Syracusanus appellatus sum. Hic primus bellum Punicus occasio Romanus do.

Populus Romanus, annus post urbs conditus circiter 493, domitus totius pene Italia, ut Mamertinus socius contra Hiero et Carthaginienfis auxilium fere, transmittit in Sicilia. Romanus igitur, Appius Claudius dux, Hiero vinco; et, Pœnus profligatus, oppidum Sicilia complures in deditio accipio. C. Duilius inde victoria navalis de Pœnus primus reporto. Mox, Attilius Regulus imperator, bellum in Africa transeo. Is Tunetum aliisque Pœnus oppidum captus, Carthago obfideo. Verum a Xantippus Lacedæmonius dux, qui Pœnus subsidium venio, victus, in potestas hostis venio. Roma postea Regulus missus de pax petendus, Romanus suadeo ne pax cum Pœnus fio. Ipse, ne datus hostis fides fallo, Carthago reversus, omnis cruciatus neco. Lucatius denique consul navalis prælium Carthaginienfis opis frango, paxque do. Bellum primus Punicus vigesimus the Carthaginians in a sea-fight, and granted them a peace. The first Punic war being ended in the 24th year, the temple of Janus was shut a second time. About the same time the consul Marcellus, having killed Viridomarus king of the Insubres, with his own hand, was the third that presented the opima spolia to Jupiter. C. Flaminius the censor paved the Flaminian way.

7. In Greece, Aratus, Cleanthes, and Chrysippus, disciples of Zeno, Arcefila his too, and Demetrius Phalereus, the scholar of Theophrastus, left illustrious monuments of their parts and learning, during the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus in Egypt, who furnished the famous library at Alexandria; and, in order to render it the more complete, procured the sacred books from Eleazar the high priest of Jerusalem, and caused them to be translated into Greek, in the year before Christ 277. In the mean time the Parthians revolted from the dominion of the Macedonians. Arsaces was the first king of Parthia; from him the other kings of the Parthians were called Arsacidae.

8. The tranquillity of Rome, after the first Punic war, lasted scarce 24 years. Saguntum, a city in Spain, in alliance with the Roman people, having been destroyed by Annibal the Carthaginian general, gave rise to the second Punic war. Annibal, leaving his brother Asdrubal in Spain, marches over the Alps into Italy. Cornelius Scipio meets him at Ticinum; but narrowly escaped himself with the loss of his army. Flaminius, with a more terrible stroke, is cut off with his army by Annibal at the lake Thrasymene. Q. Fabius Maximus checked the enemy's career a little, by waving battle; hence he was called Cunctator. But a signal overthrow was received at Cannæ, a village of Apulia, by the rashness of Terentius Varro. So great was the number of the slain, that a bushel of gold rings, which had been taken from the hands of the Roman knights, was sent to Carthage. But the following year, M. Claudius Marcellus, fighting quartus annus confectus, Janus iterum clausus sum. Per idem tempus Marcellus consul, Viridomarus Insuæ rex suus manus interfectus, tertius spoliū opimas Jupiter fero. C. Flaminius censor via Flaminia munio.

In Græcia, Aratus, Cleanthes, et Chrysippus, Zeno auditor, Arcefila quoque, et Demetrius Phalereus, Theophrastus discipulus, præclarus ingenium ac doctrina monumentum relinquo, regnans in Ægyptus Ptolemæus Philadelphus, qui celeberrimus Alexandria bibliotheca instruo; et, ut sum cumulatus, ab Eleazarus summus pontifex Hierosolyma facer liber impetro, et Græce vertendus curo, annus ante Christum 277. Interea Parthus a Macedo imperium deficio. Primus in Parthia regno Arsaces; unde ceterus Parthus rex Arsacidae dictus.

Roma, post primus bellum Punicum, vix 24 annus requies. Saguntum, urbs in Hispania, amicus populus Romanus, ab Annibal Pœnus dux deletus, secundus bellum Punicum principium sum. Annibal, Asdrubal frater in Hispania relictus, per Alpes in Italia descendo. Is Cornelius Scipio ad Ticinum occurro; sed amissus exercitus ipse ægre evado. Flaminius deterior exitus ab Annibal ad lacum Thrasymenum cum exercitus cædo. Q. Fabius Maximus hostis cunctandum non nihil reprimō; unde ipse Cunctator dictus sum. Sed Terentius Varro temeritas insignis ad Cannæ; Apulia vicus, clades acceptus. Cæsus multitudo tantus sum, ut aureus annulus, qui Romanus eques manus detractus sum, modicus Carthago mitto. At annus sequens, M. Claudius Marcellus, ad Nola, secundus prolium faca successful battle at Nola, made it appear that Annibal could be conquered.

9. Hieronymus, the son of Hiero, king of Syracuse, had revolted to Annibal. Whereupon the consul Marcellus made war upon the Syracusans, and takes the city of Syracuse by surprise in the night, which had been long defended, no less by the inventions of Archimedes, than the arms of the citizens. The moderation of the conqueror heightened the glory of the conquest. He spared the city and the inhabitants. In fine, Lævinus made Sicily the first province of the Roman people.

10. Cornelius Scipio, yet very young, is sent into Spain by the Romans. He takes New Carthage, and drives Asdrubal out of Spain. There too he struck up a league with Masinissa. But Claudius Nero cut off Asdrubal at the river Metaurus, as he was going into Italy to join forces with his brother Annibal. And Scipio passed over into Africa, on design to draw off the enemy, who still kept fast by Italy. He cuts off Hanno the general of the Carthaginians, with his army, and having conquered Syphax their ally in battle, took him prisoner.

11. In the 16th year of the war, Annibal was recalled into Africa by the Carthaginians. He encounters Scipio; being defeated, makes his escape from the battle, and giving up all for lost, flies into Asia. Carthage was entirely subdued in the year of Rome 560, just 188 years before the birth of Christ.

12. From Africa, Scipio got the surname of Africanus, being the first that was dignified with the name of a vanquished nation. He greatly honoured Ennius the Epic poet, with whom the comedians Nævius, Cæcilius, Plautus, are reckoned nearly contemporary.

13. The peace with Carthage was succeeded by the Macedonian war, which was undertaken for the Athenians their allies, and carried on with various success for ten years. At last this war was ended by Quinctius Flaminius, by the entire conquest of Philip king of Macedonia, and liberty restored to all Greece, in the year of the city 552.

tus, doceo Annibal possum superare.

Hieronymus, Hiero filius, Syracusæ rex, ad Annibal descisco. Quare Marcellus consul Syracusanus bellum infero, urbs Syracusæ, non minus Archimedes ingenium, quam civis arma, diu defensio, noctu de improvviso capio. Victoria gloria augeo moderatio victor. Urbs, et civis parco. Lævinus denique Sicilia primus populus Romanus provincia facio.

Cornelius Scipio, adhuc adolescentulus, a Romanus in Hispania mitto. Is Carthago Novus capio, et Asdrubal ex Hispania fugo. Fœdus quoque ibi cum Masinissa serio. At Claudius Nero Asdrubal, in Italia ad conjungendus cum frater Annibal copiarum veniens, ad Metaurus flumen, opprimo. Scipio autem, ut hærens Italia hostis abstraho, transmitto in Africa. Hanno Pœnus dux cum exercitus cædo, Syphax is socius acies victus, capio.

Annibal a Carthaginiensibus, annus bellum 16, in Africa revoco. Signum cum Scipio confero; victus, et prælium fugio, res desperatus, in Asia profugio. Carthago penitus subactus annus post Roma conditus 560, ante Christus natus omnino 188.

Scipio ex Africa Africanus cognomen deporto, primus nomen devictus a sui gens nobilitatus. Idem Ennius poeta Epicus in honor habeo, qui Nævius, Cæcilius, Plautus, comicus, fere æqualis numero.

Pax Punicus bellum Macedonicus excipio, qui pro Atheniensibus amicus susceptus, per decem annus varie gero. Denique a Quinctius Flaminius, Philippus Macedonia rex debellatus, hic bellum confectus sum, et Græcia universus libertas restitutus, annus ab urbe conditus 552.

14. After this Antiochus, king of Syria and Asia, made war upon the Romans, at the instigation of Annibal. But Antiochus being defeated both by sea and land, by L. Scipio, sued for peace, which was granted him on these terms: That he should quit all Asia, and surrender up Annibal; who, to prevent his falling into the hands of his enemies, swallowed poison, and died in the year of the city 581. From Asia, L. Scipio received the surname of Asiaticus. In those times Livy the writer of tragedies was accounted famous.

15. About the same time, M. Fulvius, having taken Ambracia, the residence of Pyrrhus king of the Epirotes, conquered the Ætolians; L. Posthumius Albinus subdued the Lusitani, Appius Pulcher the Istri; Æmilius Paulus reduced Perseus king of Macedon, the last successor of Alexander the Great in Greece, and led him in triumph to Rome, in the year of the city 581, and before Christ 167. Rome now began to be accounted the mistress of the world.

16. Much about the same time, bloody wars were carried on in Judea by the Maccabees, against Antiochus and Demetrius, with various success.

Antiochus deinde, rex Asia ac Syria, Annibal impulsus, bellum Romanus infero. Verum a Lucio Scipio terra mareque Antiochus superatus, pax peto; qui hic conditio datus: Ut Asia excedo, et Annibal dedo; qui, ne in hostis potestas venio, haustus venenum intereo, annus urbs 581. L. Scipio ex Asia cognomen Asiaticus refero. Hic tempus Livius tragedia scriptor clarus habeo.

Sub idem tempus, M. Fulvius, captus Ambracia Pyrrhus rex Epirotæ sedes, Ætolus domo; L. Posthumius Albinus Lusitanus, Appius Pulcher Ister subigo; Æmilius Paulus, Perseus Macedonia rex, ultimus in Græcia Alexander Magnus successor, debello, atque in triumphus Roma duco, annus urbs 581, et ante Christus 167. Roma jam terra orbis domina habeo cœpi.

Idem fere tempus, atrox bellum in Judæa Maccabæus, contra Antiochus et Demetrius, varie gestus sum.

CHAP. X.

From the Defeat of Perseus to the Birth of Christ, or the beginning of the Christian Æra; including 167 years.

THE Carthaginians, disregarding treaties, and making war upon Masinissa, gave occasion to the third Punic war. Wherefore, by the persuasion of M. Cato, a war is commenced against them. At last, being quite vanquished in the fourth year of it, by P. Scipio, they surrendered themselves at discretion. Carthage was levelled with the ground, after it had stood above 700 years, in the year from the building of Rome 602. The same Scipio made Panætius the philosopher, Polybius the historian, Terence the comic poet, his intimate friends. These gentlemen in their old age were succeeded by Pacuvius and Accius tragic poets, and Aristarchus the grammarian.

CARTHAGINIENSIS, neglectus foedus, bellumque Masinissa illatus, tertius bellum Punicus occasio do. Itaque is, suator M. Cato, bellum infero. Quartus demum annus a P. Scipio debellatus, deditio facio. Carthago solum æquo, cum jam sto annus amplius septingenti, annus a Roma conditus 602. Idem Scipio Panætius philosophus, Polybius historicus, Terentius comicus poeta, familiaris habeo. Hic senex succedo Pacuvius et Accius tragicus poeta, et Aristarchus grammaticus.

2. About these times the Corinthians had beaten the ambassadors of the Roman people, and engaged the Achæans to join them as confederates in the war. Whereupon L. Mummius the consul, having received Achæa upon surrender, destroyed Corinth, after it had stood 952 years, in the year of Rome 602. About the same time Q. Fabius in a great measure recovered Lusitania, which had been seized upon by Viriatus the robber. P. Scipio too, 14 years after the destruction of Carthage, razed Numantia in Spain, with the same army which had before been often routed by the Numantians. Of such importance was a general and discipline.

3. A bloody sedition, in the mean time, broke out at Rome. Tib. Sempronius Gracchus embroiled the state, by preferring the Agrarian law, forbidding any person to possess above 500 acres of land. Whereupon he was killed in the capitol by Scipio Nasica. And not long after, his brother C. Gracchus, attempting the same, was slain by L. Opimius the consul, and together with him Fulvius Flaccus, a gentleman of consular dignity. About the same time, Attalus king of Phrygia dying, made the Roman people his heir, in the year of the city 615.

4. One Eunus, a Syrian, having broke prison in Sicily, and drawn together a vast multitude of slaves from the country, gave the Roman commanders several great overthrows. At last, he was routed by P. Rupilius the consul, in the year of the city 617. Then glorified Lucilius the satirist.

5. After this the Jugurthine war broke out. Jugurtha, king of Numidia, and grandson of Masinissa, had dispossessed his brothers, the sons of Micipsa, of their kingdom. The latter implored the protection of the Roman people. Accordingly war is waged with Jugurtha; who being at last driven from his dominions by C. Marius, fled to Bocchus, king of Mauritania; by him he was delivered up bound to L. Sylla, Marius's questor, much about the same time that Cicero was born, in the year after the building of the city 643. Ma-

Corinthius sub is tempus legatus populus Romanus pulso, et Achæus sui bellum socius adiungo. Itaque L. Mummius consul, Achæa in deditio acceptus, Corinthus, cum jam annus 952 flet, deleo, annus Roma 602. Per idem tempus Q. Fabius Lusitania, a Viriatus latro occupatus, magnus ex pars recipio. P. Scipio quoque, decimus quartus annus post Carthago everfus, Numantis in Hispania everto, idem exercitus qui a Numantinus sæpius fugatus antea sum. Tantum valeo dux et disciplina.

Roma, interea, atrox seditio ortus sum. Tib. Sempronius Gracchus, Agrarius lex latus, ne quis amplius quingenti ager jugerum possideo, respublica turbo. Itaque a Scipio Nasica in capitolium cædo. Nec multo post, C. Gracchus frater, idem conatus, a L. Opimius consul obrunco, et una cum is Fulvius Flaccus consularis. Per idem tempus Attalus rex Phrygia moriens, populus Romanus instituo hæres, annus urbs 615.

Eunus quidam, Syrus, effractus in Sicilia ergastulum, contractusque agrestis servitium ingens manus, clades imperator Romanus magnus et multus infero. Ad ultimum, a P. Rupilius consul profligatus sum, annus urbs 617. Vigenus satiricus poëta Lucilius.

Jugurthinus bellum inde exortus sum. Jugurtha, Numidia rex, Masinissa nepos, frater, Micipsa filius, regnum ejicio. Hic populus Romanus fides imploro. Itaque Jugurtha, bellum infero; qui denique regnum pulsus a C. Marius, ad Bocchus Mauritania rex confugio; ab is L. Sylla, questor Marius, victus trado; idem fere tempus qui natus sum Cicero, annus post urbs conditus 643. Marius continuatus per complures annus consulatus, Cimbri, Teurius, continuing several years in the consulship, cut off the Cimbri, Teutones, and other barbarous nations, who were breaking in upon Italy.

6. In the mean time, fresh disturbances broke out at Rome. Saturninus, a tribune of the people, a turbulent fellow, exasperated the senate against him, by forcibly passing the Agrarian law. Whereupon he was murdered in a concourse of the Patricians rushing upon him. Soon after, Livius Drusus, attempting the same thing with a greater power, was assassinated at his own house.

7. After this the social war was lighted up in Italy. The Marsi, Picentes, Peligni, Samnites, Lucani, and other nations of Italy, finding they could not obtain the freedom of the city by gentle methods, endeavoured to compass it by force of arms. At last, being conquered by Cn. Pompey, and other commanders, they sued for peace. Together with the peace, the freedom of the city was spontaneously conferred on them. About the same time, Aristobulus the high priest received the ensigns of royalty, in Judea, almost 482 years after Zedekiah the last king of Judea.

8. Mithridates, king of Pontus, had dispossessed Ariobarzanes, king of Cappadocia, and Nicomedes, king of Bithynia, allies of the Roman people, of their respective kingdoms. War was declared against him, under the conduct of L. Sylla. Upon this a civil war was kindled up in Italy: C. Marius, envying Sylla, his old lieutenant, so large a field of glory, brought it about by means of Sulpitius, a tribune of the people, that the management of the war was committed to himself. Upon this head, Marius being forced from the city by Sylla, withdrew into Africa. Sylla, marching into Asia, fought with great success against Mithridates. He recovered Bithynia, Cappadocia, and Asia, in the year of the city 663.

9. Marius, in the mean time, by the assistance of L. Cinna the consul, breaks into Rome with an army. Sylla brings over his victorious forces out of Asia, and having vanquished Marius's party, tones, aliusque barbarus natio, in Italia irrumpens, deleo.

Novus interim turba Roma exortus sum. Saturninus, tribunus plebs, homo turbulentus, Agrarius lex per vis latus, senatus in sui concito. Itaque, concursus in is Optimates factus, neco. Idem paulo post Livius Drusus magnus opis conatus, domus suus occisus sum.

Socialis deinde bellum ardeo coepi Italia. Marsi, Picentes, Peligni, Samnites, Lucani, aliusque populus Italia cum civitas impetro non possum, arma extorqueo tento. Denique a Cn. Pompeius aliusque imperator domitus, pax peto. Civitas ultro cum pax datus. In Judea per idem tempus Aristobulus pontifex maximus regius insigne accipio, annus post Zedechias ultimus Judæa rex prope 482.

Mithridates, rex Pontus, Ariobarzanes Cappadocia, et Nicomedes Bithynia rex, amicus populus Romanus, regnum suus exturbo. Is bellum indictus, dux L. Sylla. Ex is civilis bellum in Italia excitatus sum: C. Marius, tantus gloria seges Sylla, legatus olim suus, invidens, ago per Sulpitius, tribunus plebs, ut is bellum sui mando. Is ob res Marius urbs pulsus a Sylla, secedo in Africa. Sylla, in Asia profectus, adversus Mithridates bene pugno. Bithynia, Cappadocia, Asia, recipio, annus urbs 663.

Interea, Marius, L. Cinna consul adjuvans, Roma cum copiis irrumpo. Sylla victor exercitus ex Asia transporto, et profligatus Marianus para, arbo et Italia fills the city and Italy with slaughter and bloodshed, the proscription of citizens being then first set on foot. Sylla, about four years after, consumed of the lousy disease, died in the year of the city 671.

10. Sertorius, a general of the Marian faction, had seized upon Spain, and concluded an alliance with Mithridates. Q. Metellus and Cn. Pompey waged war against him with various success. At last Sertorius being murdered by his own men, Spain was recovered, in the year of the city 675.

11. At the same time slaves and pirates raised disturbances. One Spartacus, with above 70 gladiators, having made his escape from a fencing school at Capua, and drawn together a numerous body of forces, routed the Roman armies several times. At last he was cut off by M. Crassus. And Cn. Pompey, afterwards called Pompey the Great, subdued the pirates, who, at the instigation of Mithridates, infested the seas, in the year of the city 682.

12. Mithridates having been reinforced with fresh succours, renewed the war in Asia. Lucullus, after he had brought him very low by several battles, hemmed him in within Pontus. At the same time, Metellus, having reduced the island of Crete under the dominion of the Roman people, was named Creticus. After this Cn. Pompey stripped Mithridates of his kingdom; and admitted Tigranes, his confederate in the war, to a surrender; taking from him Syria and Phœnicia. He reduced Pontus into the form of a province, in the year of the city 684.

13. Aristobulus and Hyrcanus, the sons of Alexander king of the Jews, disputing about the succession to the crown, Pompey came into Judea in the character of an umpire, to decide their differences; but being provoked by Aristobulus, he takes Jerusalem by storm, demolishes the walls, entered the holy recesses of the temple, but meddled with nothing sacred. He made Judea tributary to the Roman people, and carried Aristobulus with him to Rome, in the year before Christ 63.

strages compleo, proscriptio civitum primum inductus. Sylla, quatuor exinde circiter annis, pedicularis morbus confectus, intereo, annus urbs 671.

Sertorius, Marianus pars dux, Hispania occupo, societasque cum Mithridates coco. Contra hic Q. Metellus et Cn. Pompeius variis eventus pugno. Sertorius demum a suis occisus, Hispania recipio, annus urbs 675.

Servus ac pirata idem tempestas turba commoveo. Spartacus cum amplius 70 gladiator, Capua ludus elapsus, magnus copiarum contractus, Romanus exercitus non semel fundo. Ad extremum a M. Crassus opprimo. Pirata quoque, qui a Mithridates sollicitatus mare infesto, Cn. Pompeius, postea Pompeius Magnus dictus, perdomo, annus urbs 682.

Mithridates novus copiarum instructus, bellum in Asia renovo. Is Lucullus multus praelium fractus, in Pontus compello. Idem tempus, Metellus, Creta insula in ditio populus Romanus redactus, Creticus appellatus sum. Cn. inde Pompeius Mithridates regnum spolio; Tigranes, bellum socius, in deditio accipio;isque Syria ac Phœnicia adimo. Pontus in provincia forma, redigo, annus urbs 684.

Pompeius, Aristobulus et Hyrcanus, Alexander rex Judæus filius, de regnum diffidens, in Judæa ad is controversia tollendus arbiter venio; sed ab Aristobulus irritatus, Hierosolyma vis capio, murus diruo, in templum adytum ingressus, sacer nihil attingo. Judæa stipendiarius populus Romanus facio, Aristobulus sui cum Roma duco, annus ante Christus 63.

14. Whilst the Roman empire was extending itself over all Asia, Rome itself was well nigh ruined by an intestine war. L. Cataline, having raised an army in Etruria, had entered into a conspiracy with Lentulus the pretor, Cethegus, and other senators, to massacre the consuls and the senate, and set fire to the city. This conspiracy was discovered and crushed by M. Tullius Cicero the consul, and Cataline cut off with his army by C. Antonius, in the year of the city 686. Cicero three years after was forced into banishment by P. Clodius, for having put to death the conspirators. But within 16 months he was recalled with great glory. The same man was highly illustrious for his eloquence; whilst M. Varro the philologist, Sallust the historian, Lucretius and Catullus poets, were much esteemed at Rome. Cæsar Augustus was likewise born this year.

15. About the same time C. Julius Cæsar attached Cn. Pompey to his interest by marriage, having taken to wife his daughter Julia. He won over M. Crassus to himself and to Pompey. A combination of three leading men being thus formed, the province of Gaul is decreed to Cæsar, Spain to Pompey, and the management of the Parthian war committed to Crassus.

16. Crassus, marching into Asia, plundered the temple of Jerusalem of its sacred treasure, fought the Parthians to great disadvantage, and lost his army, together with his son. At last he himself being trepanned under pretence of an interview is slain by the enemy.

17. But Cæsar constrained the Helvetii to return to their country; overthrew Ariovistus king of the Germans, the disturber of Gaul; subdued the Aquitani, Gauls, and Belgæ; and conquered Germany and Britain. Meanwhile his wife Julia dying, Cæsar's power appeared to Pompey and the senate exorbitant, and dangerous to the state; wherefore he is ordered to disband his army. From those beginnings broke out the civil war, about 699 years after the building of the city.

Dum imperium Romanus totus Asia propago, Roma ipse intestinus bellum pene deletus sum. L. Catalina, exercitus in Etruria comparatus, cum Lentulus prætor, Cethegus, aliusque senator, de cædes consul ac senatus, deque inflammandus urbs, conjuro. Is conjuratio a M. Tullius Cicero consul patefactus et oppressus sum, Catalina a C. Antonius cum exercitus cæsus, annus urbs 686. Cicero triennium post a P. Clodius, ob supplicium conjuratus, ejicio in exilium. Sed mensis 16 summus cum gloria reduco. Idem eloquentia gloria flore; cum M. Varro philologus, Sallustius historicus, Lucretius et Catullus poeta, Roma in honor sum. Hic quoque annus Cæsar Augustus natus sum.

Sub idem tempus C. Julius Cæsar, Cn. Pompeius Julia filia in matrimonium acceptus, affinitas sui devincio. M. Crassus, et Pompeius, et sui concilio. Tres princeps conspiratio sic factus, Cæsar Gallia, Pompeius Hispania, decerno, Crassus bellum Parthicus mando.

Crassus in Asia profectus, templum Hierosolymitanus sacer pecunia spolio, adversus Parthum male pugno, exercitus cum filius amitto. Demum ipse per species colloquium ab hostis circumventus occido.

Cæsar autem Helvetius in patria suus compello; Ariovistus Germanus rex, vexator Gallia, profigo; Aquitanus, Gallus, et Belga subigo; Germania quoque et Britannia domo. Uxor Julia interim mortuus, Cæsar potentia nimius et periculosus republica, Pompeius et senatus visus sum; itaque exercitus demitto jubeo. Ex hiece initium coortus sum bellum civilis, annus post urbs conditus circiter 699.

18. Cæſar marches with an hoſtile army to Rome, enters the city that had been abandoned by the nobility, cauſes himſelf to be declared dictator, and pillages the treaſury. After this, having forced Pompey out of Italy, he drove his lieutenants Afranius and Petreius out of Spain, and returns again to Rome. He paſſed over immediately into Greece, ſtill proſecuting the war againſt Pompey. The ſeat of the war being carried to Pharfalia, Pompey reſolves to reduce Cæſar rather by famine, intercepting his proviſions, than by fighting him. But conſtrained by the preſſing inſtances of the nobility, he engaged the enemy, and being defeated, makes his eſcape with the loſs of his army. Pompey, going into Egypt, is ſlain by the order of king Ptolemy, to whom he fled for protection, in the 58th year of his age.

19. Cæſar arrived at Alexandria in purſuit of Pompey; and as he was endeavouring to ſettle the differences betwixt Ptolemy and his ſiſter Cleopatra, had like to have been cut off by that king; but he ſet fire to his fleet, to prevent its falling into the hands of his enemies. By which flames that famous library of Alexandria, collected by Ptolemy Philadelphus, was burnt down. But at length, after the conqueſt and death of Ptolemy, he delivers up the kingdom to Cleopatra.

20. After this he vanquiſhed Pharnaces the ſon of Mithridates, who had broken in upon the territories of the Roman people at one puſh; ſo that he ſeemed to have conquered the enemy almoſt before he ſaw them. Then he ſubdued Juba, king of Mauritania, who, at the perſuaſion of Scipio and Cato, was renewing the civil war in Africa. Cato, that he might not fall into the hands of Cæſar, diſpatches himſelf at Utica, whence he has been called Uticenſis.

21. In the mean time war was levied in Spain, by Cneius and Sextus, the ſons of Pompey the Great. Cæſar goes thither with his army, comes to a general action, overthrowſ the Pompeys at Munda, a city of Spain. Cneius Cæſar infeſtus Rôma agmen contendo, in urbe nobilitas vacuus ingreſſus, ſui dictator dicendus curo, ærarium compilo. Inde Pompeius Italia pulſus, Afranius et Petreius in legatus expello Hiſpania, ac Roma denuo revertor. Mox Pompeius bellum perſequens, tranſmitto in Græcia. Bellum ad Pharfalia delatus, Pompeius intercluſus commæatus Cæſar, fames potius quam ferum, vinco ſtatuo. Sed nobilitas vox coactus, cum hoſtis conſiſto, amiſſusque exercitus victus auſugio. Pompeius in Ægyptus proſectus, Ptolemæus rex, ad qui confugio, juſſu neco, annus ætas quinquageſimus octavus.

Cæſar Pompeius ſecutus, Alexandria appello; et cum Ptolemæus atque Cleopatra in ſoror controverſia compono conor, ab idem rex pene oppreſſus ſum; ſed claſſis ſuus, ne venio in hoſtis poteſtas, incendio. Qui incendium, nobiliſſimus ille Alexandria bibliotheca, a Ptolemæus Philadelphus inſtructus, conflagro. At victus tandem extinctusque Ptolemæus, regnum Cleopatra tradô.

Pharnaces inde Mithridates filius, qui in populus Romanus ſinis erumpo, primus impetus debello; prope ut ante vinco hoſtis, quam video, videor. Juba deinde Mauritania rex, Scipio et Cato auctor, civilis bellum in Africa inſtaurans, devinco. Cato, ne in poteſtas Cæſar venio, Utica mors ſui ipſe conſciſco, ex qui Uticenſis ſum appellatus.

Interea in Hiſpania, a Cneius et Sextus, Pompeius magnus filius, bellum apparo. Eo Cæſar cum exercitus contendo, acies decerno, Pompeius ad Munda, Hiſpania urbs, vinco. Cneius was slain in a tower, to which he had fled.

22. The republican government being thus subverted, Cæsar was declared perpetual dictator by the senate. He reformed the year by intercalary days, according to the judgment of astronomers, and called the month Quintilis, from his own name, July. After this, being elated with pride, he began to slight the senate, and aspire to sovereign power. Wherefore, in the fifth year of his dictatorship, he was slain in the senate house by Brutus, Cassius, and the other conspirators, being dispatched by three and twenty wounds, in the year of the city 706, and before Christ 42.

23. M. Anthony the consul, stirring up the people at Cæsar's funeral against the deliverers of their country, threw all into confusion; he overawed the senate by an armed force, and seized upon Cisalpine Gaul. Wherefore war is resolved on against him by the senate, at the persuasion of Cicero. The consuls Hirtius and Pansa, as likewise Octavius, Julius Cæsar's heir, and his sister's grandson, advanced to Mutina, at the head of three armies, and coming to an engagement with Anthony, obtained the victory.

24. That victory cost the Roman people dear. The consuls being slain, the three armies subjected themselves to the command of Octavius alone; who, marching his forces to Rome, procured himself the consulate from the senate by main force, being a youth about 20 years of age. Anthony meantime had fled into Transalpine Gaul, to M. Lepidus master of the horse, and clapped up a treaty with him. Octavius, created commander in chief by the senate in the war against Anthony and Lepidus, betrays his trust, and enters into an association with both.

25. Accordingly the triumvirate being formed, 130 senators were proscribed by the triumviri; in the number of whom was Cicero. By these three men too, the globe of the earth was divided, as if it had been their patrimonial estate. The East and Greece fell to Anthony, Africa to Lepidus, in turris, quo confugio, occido.

Respublica sic oppressus, Cæsar dictator perpetuus a senatus decretus sum. Annus de mathematicis sententia, intercalatus dies, corrigo, et Quintilis mensis suus nomen Julius appello: Proinde insolentia elatus, senatus contemno, ac regnum affecto, cepti. Ergo quintus dictatura annus, a Brutus, Cassius, cæterque conjuratus, in curia 23 vulnus confectus, intereo, annus urbs 706, et ante Christus 42.

M. Antonius consul, in funis Cæsar plebs in patria liberator, concitatus, turbo omnis; arma senatus opprimo, Gallia Cisalpinus invado. Itaque bellum contra is a senatus, Cicero auctor, decerno. Hirtius et Pansa consul, itemque Octavius, Julius Cæsar soror nepos, ac hæres, cum tres exercitus ad Mutina proficiscor, et signum cum Antonius collocatus, victoria refert.

Magnum is victoria populus Romanus fto. Consul occisus, exercitus tres unus Octavius patreo; qui, copiz Roma adductus, consulatus a senatus, adolescens annus 20 natus, extorqueo. Antonius interim in Gallia Transalpinus, ad M. Lepidus magister eques, confugio, et cum is societas inco. Octavius, bellum contra Antonius et Lepidus a senatus præpositus, fides prodo, amicitiaque cum uterque jungo.

Triumviratus igitur institutus, 130 senator a triumviri proscribitus; ex qui numerus Cicero sum. Orbis terra quasi patrimonium a triumviri quoque divisus. Oriens et Græcia Antonius, Africa Lepidus, Italia et Occidens Octavius, obvenio. Sextus Pom-

Italy and the West to Octavius. Sicily was allotted to Sextus Pompey, who was master of a very powerful fleet; then flourished Diodorus Siculus the historian.

26. Octavius having been adopted into the family of Cæsar, was called Cæsar Octavianus. Octavianus and Anthony now publicly declaring themselves the avengers of Cæsar the dictator, began to levy war against M. Brutus and C. Cassius. A battle was fought at Philippi, a city of Thessaly. Brutus and Cassius being defeated, laid violent hands on themselves. Sextus Pompey, warring against Octavianus, was vanquished in a sea-fight by his admiral M. Agrippa, and fled into Asia, where he died soon after, in the reign of Herod king of Judea.

27. Anthony having divorced Octavia, the sister of Cæsar Octavianus, had married Cleopatra, queen of Egypt; and, in order to make her mistress of the world, made war upon Octavianus: a naval engagement ensuing at Actium, Octavianus gained the victory, and, pursuing the enemy, laid siege to Alexandria. Anthony, thinking his affairs desperate, dispatches himself; Cleopatra, imitating him, died by the poison of an asp, in the year of the city 719.

28. Cæsar Octavianus, in the 12th year after the triumvirate was set on foot, being now lord of the world, had the title of Augustus bestowed on him by the senate. He gave his name to the month of August, which before was called Sextilis. Having procured peace by sea and land, he shut the temple of Janus for the third time. He had an affectionate regard for the poets Virgil and Horace; showed a great esteem for the historians T. Livy and Strabo. He banished Ovid into Pontus. Their contemporaries were Quintus Curtius the historian, Tibullus and Propertius poets. Cæsar Augustus reigned 12 years in conjunction with the triumviri, and 44 alone. He died at Nola, in the 76th year of his age, and of the city 762; leaving Rome, as he himself boasted, reared of marble instead of bricks.

peius, qui classis plurimum valeo, Sicilia assignatus sum; Diodorus Siculus historicus tum vigens.

Octavius in familia Cæsar adoptatus, Cæsar Octavianus dictus sum. Octavianus et Antonius sui Cæsar dictator ultor nunc profitens, M. Brutus et C. Cassius bellum persequor cœpi. Ad Philippi, Thessalia urbs, pugnat. Brutus et Cassius victus, manus sui affero. Sextus Pompeius cum Octavianus contendens, a M. Agrippa is dux, navalis prœlium superatus, in Asia profugio, ubi paulo post morbo, Herodes rex Judæa.

Antonius, Octavia Cæsar Octavianus soror repudiatus, Cleopatra Ægyptus regina in matrimonium duco; qui, ut orbis terra domina constituo, Octavianus bellum infero: commissus apud Actium prœlium navalis, Octavianus victoria pario, et, hostis insecutus, Alexandria obfideo. Antonius, res desperatus, sui manus affero; is imitatus Cleopatra, aspis venenum intereo, annus urbs 719.

Cæsar Octavianus, annus post triumviratus institutus 12, res potitus, Augustus a senatu appellatus sum. Augustus mensis, qui antea Sextilis dico, nomen do. Pax terra mareque parvus, Janus tertio claudo. Virgilius et Horatius poeta complexus sum; T. Livius et Strabo historicus, in honor habeo. Ovidius in Pontus relego. Hic æqualis Q. Curtius historicus, Tibullus ac Propertius poeta, sum. Cæsar Augustus annus regno cum triumviri 12, solus 44. Mors obeo Nola, annus ætas 76, et urbs 762; Roma, ut ipse gloriatur, e lateritius marmoreus, relinquens.

29. In the year of the world 4004, in the year of Rome 748, in the 194th Olympiad, and 14 years before the death of Augustus, JESUS CHRIST, the eternal Son of God, was born of the Virgin Mary, sent from heaven to expiate the divine wrath; who, at 33 years of age, being crucified by the Jews, made an atonement for the sins of men with his own blood, in the 19th year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar.

Annus mundus 4004; annus Roma 748, Olympias 194; et annus ante excessus Augustus 14, IESUS CHRISTUS, æternus Deus Filius, e Maria Virgo editus sum, e cœlum missus piaculum cœlestis ira; qui, 33 annus natus, a Judæus in crux actus, suus fatiguis scelus humanus luo, annus imperium Tiberius Cæsar 19.

Q.iii

HISTORICAL AND CHRONOLOGICAL

QUESTIONS,

ADAPTED TO THE ANCIENT HISTORY.

I. How many years from the creation to the deluge? In how many days did God create the world? Who was the first man and first woman? Who were their sons? What their occupation? Which of them slew his brother? What was the character, and what the inventions of their posterity? When was the world created? 2. Who was Enoch? When did he flourish? What became of him? Who was his son? How long did his son live? What was the usual length of human life at that time? Whence sprung the race of the giants? 3. Why did God destroy the old world by a deluge? When happened the deluge? How high did the waters rise? Who were saved from the deluge, and by what means? By whom was the earth peopled after the flood?

II. How many years from the deluge to the calling of Abraham? By whom was the tower of Babel founded? On what design, and when? Why was the building laid aside? Who was the first king of Babylon? 2. What was the state of Egypt in the time of Nimrod? What the names of the dynasties? For what were the Egyptians at this time renowned? Who, according to the Egyptians, first taught music, letters, religion, &c.? Who invented physic and anatomy? Who reigned first in Egypt? Who was the most famous among their princes? What were his achievements? Who were the kings that assumed the name of Pharaoh? 3. Whose son was Ni-mous? Why is he said to be the author of idolatry? What were his chief actions? Where, and how long is he said to have reigned? Who founded Nineveh? 4. Whose queen was Semiramis? What were her exploits, and the length of her reign? 5. Whose son was Ninyas? What was his character? What the character of his successors? Who was the last of them, and what was his end? How long is the Assyrian monarchy said to have lasted; and is this account of it thought to be genuine? 6. Who was Abraham? When was he called by God? What the history of his life? 7. When flourished the Titans? Who was the eldest of them? Why was Jupiter esteemed a god? Why was Neptune called god of the sea, and Pluto the god of hell?

III. How many years from the vocation of Abraham to the departure of the Israelites from Egypt? Whose son was Isaac? When was he born? Who was his wife? Who were his sons? Who were Jacob's wives? Who his sons? What other name did Jacob obtain? What is the story of Joseph? When, and upon what invitation did Jacob and his family go down to Egypt? 2. Who was Inachus? When did he flourish? Who was his son? And what is recorded of him? Who were the children of Jupiter? When did they flourish, and for what were they famous? Who was Ogyges? For what was his reign remarkable? By whom was Sparta built, and when? Who was Argus? What city did he found? Why said to have had 100 eyes? When lived Job, and for what famed? 3. Who were Prometheus and Atlas? Why is Prometheus said to have made a man of clay? Why represented as chained to Caucasus? Why said to have stolen fire from heaven? Why is Atlas said to sustain heaven on his shoulders? 4. Who was Moses, and when was he born? How educated? By whose assistance, by what means, and when did he bring the Israelites out of Egypt? 5. What miracle attended the Israelites in their travels from Egypt, and through the deserts? Who was their high-priest? Where was the law given? What was the number of their army in the 40th year of their journeying? How many of those who had come out of Egypt were then alive? What became of Moses? Who was his successor? 6. By whom was Athens founded, and when? Who was Mercury? When did he flourish? What was he the author of? Where reigned Deucalion? Who was his wife? For what were they renowned? 7. What is the story of Phaeton? Who was Oenotrus? What were his achievements? Who were the Aborigines? Whence the name Italy?

IV. How many years from the exod to the excision of Troy? What the history of Joshua and his wars? When came he and the Israelites to the possession of Canaan? 2. What the story of Danaus? What is recorded of Orcus and Proserpina? What the story of Jupiter and Europa, and who were her sons? What the Arcopagites? Who was Busris? 3. Who was Othniel, and when did he cut off the king of Mesopotamia? What the story of Ehud? For what was Deborah renowned? When was Sisera slain, and by whom? 4. What account give historians of Trismegistus, of Jannus, of Cadmus, of Rhadamanthus, of Minos, and of Acrisius? 5. What is said of Amphion, Bacchus, of Perseus, of Pelops, of Niobe, and of Dardanus? Whence the name of Troas? 6. What the history of Saturn? What is said of the Pelasgi? What the story of Siculus? Who were Saturn's successors? For what is the wife of Faunus renowned? 7. Who was Gideon? How, and when did he defeat the Midianites? Who was Abimelech, and what is said of him? 8. Who were the Argonauts, and what their history? What is meant by the golden fleece? Whence, whether, and when was it carried off? 9. Who was Theseus, and what his adventures with respect to the Minotaur and Centaurs? 10. Who were the Amazons, and by whom conquered? What is farther said of Hercules and Theseus? 11. Who were the sons of Pelops, and what their history? What the story of Oedipus? Who were his sons, and what is said of them? 12. When flourished Jephtha, and what his story? 13. What occasioned the Trojan war? When was Troy destroyed?

V. How many years from the destruction of Troy to the dedication of the temple at Jerusalem? What the adventures of Æneas? 2. What the history of Samson? How, and when did he die? 3. Who founded, and who were the kings of Alba Longa? 4. When, and by whom was Saul anointed king of Israel? How long was Israel under judges? 5. What the story of the Heraclidæ? When happened their return? 6. When came Saul to the throne? How, and how long did he reign? By what means, and when did David obtain the kingdom? 7. What the character of king David? How long did he reign? 8. What was Codrus? What his story? Who was the first Archon of Athens? 9. How long reigned Solomon? When did he dedicate the temple? What was his character? When flourished Homer?

VI. How many years from the dedication of the temple to the building of Rome? what occasioned the dismembering of the Hebrew monarchy? How long did Rehoboam reign? Who was his successor? 2. How long reigned Abijah? How long Aza? What his character? In his reign who were kings of Latium and Israel? 3. What Jehoshaphat's character? How long his reign? Who was then king of Samaria? Who the eminent prophet? What the story of Tiberius? 4. What Jehoram's character? How long his reign? How long reigned Ahaziah? Who was then king of Latium? 5. How long reigned Joash? What the fate of Romulus Sylvius? What the story of Aventinus? 6. How long reigned Amaziah? Who was Lycurgus? What his history? How long reigned Uziah? 7. What is related of Elisa or Dido? When was Carthage founded? What is said of Bocchorus? 8. What were the Olympic games? By whom instituted? By whom, and when revived? When died Hesiod? 9. What Jotham's character? How long his reign? Who was Theopompus? What his history? 10. What are we told of Amulius? What the history of Romulus and Remus? When was Rome built?

VII. How long from the building of Rome to the liberation of the Jews by Cyrus? What the achievements of king Romulus? How long reigned he? 2. By whom, and when was the Assyrian empire founded? How long did it subsist? Who were the Assyrian monarchs, and what remarkable in their reigns? When, and by whom was this empire overturned? 3. By whom, and when was the Babylonian empire founded? How long did it subsist? Who were the Babylonian monarchs, and what remarkable in their reigns? When, and by whom was this empire overturned? 4. By whom, and when was the empire of the Medes founded? Who were their kings, and what memorable in their reigns? When, and by whom was this empire overturned? When came Soter Sabacus to the throne of Egypt? Who were his successors for the two following centuries? 6. When, and by whom were the ten tribes carried captive? What is recorded of Tobias? Who was then king of Judah? What eminent prophet then flourished? 7. What is the history of Numa Pompilius? How long did he reign? 8. Who was Manassah, and when did he reign? What is recorded of Judith? What do historians say of Gyges? 9. What the history of Tullus Hostilius? How long did he reign? What the fate of Ammon? 10. What the history of Ancus Martius? How long his reign? What the fate of Josiah? What prophet then flourished? 11. What the history of Tarquinius Priscus? How long reigned he? 12. When flourished Draco? What the nature of his laws? What was said of them? 13. Who reigned in Judea after Josiah? When, and by whom was Jerusalem burnt? What became of the people? 14. When flourished the wise men of Greece? What is recorded of Solon? 15. What were the principal transactions in the reign of Servius Tullius? How long his reign? 16. What tyrants flourished about this time? What wise men? What poets? 17. What the history of Cyrus? When were the Jews liberated? What is said of Daniel? 18. How, and when did Cyrus? Where was he buried? How long subsisted the Persian empire? Who were the Persian monarchs?

VIII. How many years from the liberation of the Jews to the overthrow of the Persian empire? What the history of Tarquinius Superbus? When, and for what was he expelled? What was the number of the Roman kings, and how long subsisted the regal authority? 2. What kind of government succeeded at Rome? Who were the first consuls? How did Brutus show his zeal for liberty? 3. What the heroic conduct of Harmodius? 4. What the story of Cambyfes? What the fate of Smerdis? 5. How was Darius Hyftaspes chosen king of the Persians? 6. What favour showed Darius Hyftaspes to the Jews? By what means did he recover Babylon? 7. What efforts did Tarquinius Superbus use in order to be restored? What the story of Cocles, of Clelia, and of Mutius? What course did Porfenna at last take? 8. What the history of the battle at the lake Regillus? When was it fought? Who then reigned at Syracuse? 9. What the history of the battle of Marathon? When was it fought? 10. What occasioned the secession of the commons at Rome? How were they appeased? 11. What the story of Coriolanus? What the victory of Cassius? Why, how, and when he was put to death? 12. What is most memorable in the life of Aristides? 13. What the story of the Fabii? 14. What the history of Xerxes's expedition against Greece? In what year did it happen? 15. Who gained the victory in the battle at Platca? Who was Herodotus, and when did he flourish? 16. What the story of Q. Cincinnatus? By whom were the Greek cities of Asia restored to liberty? What philosophers at this time made a figure? 17. When were the Decemviri created? What remarkable thing did they do? Why were they deposed? What kind of government ensued? 18. What favour did Artaxerxes show to the Jews, and when? What men of genius were at this time illustrious? 19. When were the military tribunes with consular authority created at Rome? When the censors? What the achievement of Cornelius Cossus? 20. When broke out the Peloponnesian war? How long did it last? Who wrote the history of it? 21. Who were the Athenian generals in the war against the Syracusans? When did this war happen? How did it turn out? 22. What men of learning and genius flourished at this time? What is recorded of Diogenes? 23. What the history of the Galli Senones? What provoked them to burn Rome? When did this happen? 24. What happened to Athens about this time? By whom, and when were the tyrants turned out? 25. What is recorded of Ctesias of Cnidus? What other famous men were his contemporaries? 26. What famous generals flourished at this time? What the character of Epaminondas? 27. What the achievements of Camillus? Who was the first Plebeian consul? 28. What the achievements of Epaminondas, and where was he slain? To what is the decay of the martial spirit among the Lacedemonians ascribed? 29. What conquests did the Carthaginians about this time make? What the fate of Dignysius, father and son? How was Isocrates now employed? 30. What the exploit of T. Manlius? What the story of Valerius? 31. Where, and when was Alexander the Great born? What the conquests of his father Philip at this time? Who obstructed the progress of his arms? By whom was he slain? Who was then king of the Persians? 32. What wars were the Romans at this time engaged in? What the story of Manlius Torquatus? What are we told of Decius Mus? What use did the Romans make of the ships of the Antiates? What men of letters flourished then? 33. Who was preceptor to Alexander the Great? What his conquests till the battle of Issus? 34. What his other wars and adventures till he overturned the Persian empire? When did this happen?

IX. How many years from the overthrow of the Persian empire to the defeat of Perseus? What conquests did Alexander make after erecting the Macedonian empire? Where, and when did he die? What historians of note flourished in his reign? 2. How was Alexander's great empire divided? What men of letters now made a figure? 3. When, and by whom was the Appian way paved at Rome? What the history of the Tarentine war? When was it ended? 4. How long did the successors of Alexander reign in Egypt? Who were these princes, and how long did each of them reign? 5. What the history of Agathocles? What the character of Hiero? 6. When broke out, and what occasioned the first Punic war? What the history of it, and how long did it last? What the notable exploit of Marcellus? What perpetuates the memory of C. Flaminius? 7. What men of learning flourished in the reign of Ptolemy Philadelphus? What pains did Ptolemy take to furnish his library at Alexandria? Who was the first king of the Parthians? 8. How long from the first to the second Punic war? What gave rise to the second Punic war? What the history of it in Italy? 9. What success had the Romans in Sicily? 10. What feats performed Cor. Scipio in Spain and Africa? What became of Asdrubal? 11. When was Annibal recalled from Italy? What measures did he then take? When was the war ended? 12. What honour was conferred on Cor. Scipio? What is recorded with respect to the poet Ennius? Who were his contemporaries? 13. What the history of the Macedonian war? How long did it last? When was it ended? 14. What the history of the war with Antiochus? How, and when died Hannibal? What poet now flourished? 15. What other wars were the Romans engaged in at this time? Who was Perseus? When was he conquered? 16. What wars in Judea at this time?

X. How many years from the defeat of Perseus to the birth of Christ? What occasioned the third Punic war? How long did it last? When was Carthage destroyed? Who were the men of letters P. Scipio so much esteemed? Who succeeded them? 2. For what offence, by whom, and when was Corinth destroyed? What the case of Lusitania? By whom, and when was Numantia razed? 3. What the history of the Agrarian law? When died Attalus? What his testament? 4. What the insurrection of Eunus? By whom, and when quelled? What satirist then flourished? 5. What the history of the Jugurthine war? How, and when was it ended? In what other wars did Marius command? 6. What attempts were now made to revive the Agrarian law? 7. What the history of the social war? When did Aristobulus receive the ensigns of royalty in Judea? 8. What gave occasion to the Mithridatic war? Whence arose the civil war at this time? By whom, and when was the Mithridatic war ended? 9. What the further progress of the civil war? When died Sylla? 10. What the history of the war with Sertorius? How, and when was it ended? 11. What the story of Spartacus? Did not pirates likewise raise disturbances at the same time? 12. The Mithridatic war being renewed, who was the Roman general, and what his success? On what occasion was Metellus named Creticus? By whom, in what manner, and when was the Mithridatic war ended? 13. What the history of Pompey's going to Judea? When did he return? 14. What the history of Cataline's conspiracy? By whom, and when was it crushed? What became of Cicero? For what was he illustrious? What men of learning now flourished? What person of distinction was born this year? 15. How was the first triumvirate formed? What provinces were assigned to the triumvirs? 16. What the history of Crassus's expedition into Asia? 17. What the conquests of Julius Cæsar in Gaul? How, and when broke out the civil wars? 18. What the history of Cæsar's civil wars till the death of Pompey? 19. What Cæsar's adventures in Egypt? 20. What the progress of Cæsar's arms in Asia and Africa? 21. What his victory in Spain? 22. What accounts have we of Cæsar after the civil wars? By whom, and when was he slain? 23. What the history of the disturbances raised by M. Anthony? 24. By what means was Octavius made consul? What became of M. Anthony after the battle of Mutina? How did Octavius execute the orders of the senate against him and M. Lepidus? 25. What the conduct of the new triumvirs? How did they divide the Roman empire? What historian now flourished? 26. Why was Octavius's name changed to Octavianus? What the history of the battle of Philippi? What the story of Sextus Pompey? Who at this time was king of Judea? 27. Who gained the victory in the battle of Actium? How, and when died M. Anthony and Cleopatra? 28. When, and by whom was the title of Augustus conferred on Octavianus? What the history of Augustus's reign? What poets and historians then flourished, and what is recorded of them? How long did Augustus reign? Where, and when died he? What was his boast? 29. When was JESUS CHRIST born? What his mission? By whom, and when was he crucified?

1. The first of these is the fact that the
2. second is the fact that the
3. third is the fact that the
4. fourth is the fact that the
5. fifth is the fact that the
6. sixth is the fact that the
7. seventh is the fact that the
8. eighth is the fact that the
9. ninth is the fact that the
10. tenth is the fact that the

I N D E X.

A.

- A ARON iii. 4. 5.
 Abel i. 1.
 Abijah vi. 1.
 Abimelech iv. 7.
 Aborigines iii. 7.
 Abraham ii. 6.
 Absalom v. 7.
 Accius x. 1.
 Achaia x. 2.
 Acrisius iv. 4.
 Acron vii. 1.
 Actium x. 27.
 Adam i. 1.
 Adrastus iv. 11.
 Ediles viii. 27.
 Ægeus iv. 9.
 Æmilius Paulus ix. 15.
 Æneas v. 1.
 ——— Sylvia v. 3. 4.
 Æsculapius ii. 2.
 Æsop vii. 16.
 Ætolians ix. 15.
 Agathocles ix. 5.
 Agesilaus viii. 28.
 Agrarian law x. 3. 6.
 Agrippa (King) vi. 4.
 Agrippa (Admiral) x. 26.
 Ahab vi. 3.
 Ahafuerus vii. 18.
 Ahaz vi. 9. vii. 6.
 Ahaziah vi. 4.
 Alba Sylvius v. 3. 9.
 Alba built v. 3.
 ——— destroyed vii. 9.
 Albula vi. 3.
 Alcæus vii. 16.
 Alcibiades viii. 21.
 Alcmeon iv. 11.
 Alexander the Great viii. 31. 33. 34.
 Alexandria viii. 34.
 Amasis vii. 5.
 Amaziah vi. 6.
 Amazons iv. 10.
 Ammon vii. 9.
 Amphiaraus iv. 11.
 Amphictyons iv. 4.
 Amphion iv. 5.
 Amulius v. 3. vi. 10.
 Anacreon vii. 16.
 Anaxagoras viii. 16.
 Ancus Martius vii. 10.
 Androgeus iv. 9.
 Annibal ix. 8. 11. 14.
 Anthony x. 14. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27.
 Antigonus ix. 2.
 Antiochus Magnus ix. 14.
 Antisthenes viii. 25.
 Apollo iii. 2. iv. 4.
 Appius Claudius viii. 17. ix. 3. 6.
 Apries vii. 5.
 Arabia iii. 5.
 Aratus ix. 7.
 Arbaces ii. 5.
 Arbela viii. 34.
 Arcefilas ix. 7.
 Archimedes ix. 9.
 Archons v. 8.
 Archytas viii. 25.
 Arcopagites iv. 2.
 Argives iii. 2.
 Argonauts iv. 8.
 Argos iii. 2.
 Argus iii. 2.
 Ariadne iv. 9.
 Ariobarzanes x. 8.
 Ariovistus x. 17.
 Aristarchus x. 1.
 Aristides viii. 12. 15.
 Aristippus viii. 25.
 Aristobulus x. 7. 13.
 Aristophanes viii. 22.
 Aristotle viii. 32.
 Ark (Noah's) i. 3.
 Arfaces ix. 7.
 Artaxerxes Longimanus vii. 18. viii. 18.
 Artaxerxes Mnemon vii. 12. viii. 25.
 Asa vi. 2.
 Afcenius v. 3.
 Asdrubal ix. 8.
 Ashur ii. 3. vii. 2.
 Assyrians ii. 3. vii. 2. 3.

Astrages vii. 4. 17.
 Athens iii. 6. viii. 24.
 Athos viii. 14.
 Athys iv. 11.
 Atlas iii. 3.
 Atreus iv. 11.
 Attalus x. 3.
 Atrilius Regulus ix. 6.
 Augustus x. 14. 28. 29.
 Aventinus v. 3. vi. 5.
 Azariah vi. 6.

B.

Babel i. 1.
 Babylon i. 1. 3. 4. vii. 2. 3. 4. 17.
 viii. 6. 34.
 Bacchus iv. 5.
 Bactria ii. 3.
 Barak iv. 3.
 Belesis vii. 3.
 Belus ii. 3. vii. 2.
 Bocchorus vi. 7.
 Bocchus x. 5.
 Brennus viii. 23.
 Brutus viii. 2. x. 22. 26.
 Buziris iv. 2.
 Byria vi. 7.

C.

Cadmus iv. 4. 5.
 Cain i. 1.
 Caleb iii. 5.
 Cambyses vii. 18. viii. 4.
 Camillus viii. 27.
 Candaules vii. 8.
 Cannæ ix. 8.
 Capetius v. 3.
 Caprea vii. 1.
 Capys v. 3. vi. 2.
 Carthage built vi. 7.
 — destroyed x. 1.
 Cassander ix. 2.
 Cassius x. 22. 26.
 Castor iv. 8.
 Cataline x. 14.
 Cato x. 1. 20.
 Catullus x. 14.
 Caucasus iii. 3.
 Cærops iii. 6.
 Censors viii. 19.
 Census vii. 15.
 Centaurs iv. 9.
 Ceres iv. 2.
 Cethegus x. 14.

Ceyx v. 5.
 Chabrias viii. 26.
 Charilaus vi. 6.
 Chrysippus ix. 7.
 Chynalydan vii. 2. 3.
 Cicero x. 5. 14. 25.
 Cimon viii. 16.
 Cinna x. 9.
 Circumcision ii. 6.
 Circus vii. 11.
 Clælia viii. 7.
 Claud. Nero ix. 10.
 Cleanthes ix. 7.
 Cleopatra ix. 4. 10. 19. 27.
 Clodius x. 14.
 Clusium viii. 23.
 Cocalus iv. 9.
 Codrus v. 8.
 Colchis iv. 8.
 Collatinus viii. 2.
 Conon viii. 24.
 Consuls viii. 2.
 Corinth x. 2.
 Coriolanus viii. 11.
 Cor. Cossus viii. 19.
 Crantor ix. 2.
 Crassus x. 15. 15. 16.
 Crates ix. 2.
 Cratinus viii. 22.
 Crete ii. 7. iv. 9.
 Cræsus vii. 17.
 Ctesias viii. 23.
 Cures vii. 7.
 Curiatii vii. 9.
 Curius Dentatus ix. 3.
 Cyaxares vii. 3. 4.
 Cyclops iv. 6.
 Cyrus vii. 3. 17. 18.

D.

Dædalus iv. 9.
 Damascus vii. 2.
 Danaë iv. 5.
 Danaus iv. 2.
 Daniel vii. 17.
 Dardanus iv. 5.
 Darius the Mede vii. 4. 17.
 — Hytaspes vii. 5. 6.
 — Nothus viii. 21.
 — Codomannus viii. 33. 34.
 David v. 6. 7.
 Deborah iv. 3.
 Decemviri viii. 17.

Decius Mus viii. 32.
 Dejoces vii. 4.
 Delphos iv. 4.
 Demetrius ix. 16.
 Demetrius Phal. ix. 7.
 Democritus viii. 16.
 Demosthenes viii. 31.
 Deucalion iii. 6.
 Diagoras viii. 22.
 Dictator viii. 8. x. 18.
 Dido vi. 7.
 Diodorus x. 25.
 Dion viii. 29.
 Diogenes viii. 32.
 Dionysius viii. 29.
 Dorian war v. 8.
 Draco vii. 12.
 Duilius ix. 6.
 Dynasties ii. 2.

E

Eebatan vii. 2. 4.
 Egeria vii. 7.
 Eglon iv. 3.
 Egypt ii. 2.
 Ehud ib.
 Eleazar ix. 7.
 Elijah vi. 3.
 Elis vi. 8.
 Empedocles viii. 18.
 Ennius ix. 12.
 Enoch i. 2.
 Epaminondas viii. 26.
 Ephesus iv. 10.
 Ephori vi. 9.
 Epicurus ix. 2.
 Eriphyla iv. 11.
 Esharhaddon vii. 2. 3.
 Esau iii. 1.
 Esther vii. 18.
 Eteocles iv. 11.
 Ethiopia vii. 12.
 Eumenes ix. 2.
 Eunus x. 4.
 Euphrates vii. 17. viii. 34.
 Eupolis viii. 22.
 Euripides ib.
 Euristheus v. 5.
 Europa iv. 2.
 Eve i. 1.

F

Fabii viii. 13.

Fabius viii. 23. ix. 8.
 Fabricius ix. 3.
 Faunus iv. 6.
 Faustulus vi. 10.
 Flaminius ix. 6. 8.
 Fulvius ix. 15. x. 3.

G

Gabii viii. 1.
 Galli Senones viii. 23.
 Ganges ii. 2.
 Gelo viii. 8.
 Giants i. 2.
 Gideon iv. 7.
 Goliath v. 6.
 Gorgias viii. 22.
 Gorgon iv. 5.
 Gracchi x. 3.
 Greece (Great) iv. 6.
 Greece delivered ix. 13.
 Gyges vii. 8.

H

Haggai viii. 6.
 Ham i. 3.
 Hanno ix. 10.
 Harmodius viii. 3.
 Heber ii. 6.
 Hecataeus ix. 1.
 Helen iv. 13.
 Hellepont viii. 14.
 Helvetii x. 17.
 Heraclides v. 5.
 Heraclitus viii. 16.
 Hercules iv. 8. 10.
 Hermes ii. 2.
 Herod x. 2.
 Herodotus viii. 15.
 Hesiod vi. 8.
 Hetrusci v. x. vii. 15.
 Hezekiah vii. 3. 6.
 Hiero ix. 5. 6. 9.
 Hieronymus ix. 9.
 Hipparchus viii. 3.
 Hippias viii. 3. 9.
 Hippocrates viii. 18.
 Hirtius x. 23.
 Holofernes vii. 8.
 Homer v. 9.
 Horace x. 28.
 Horatii vii. 9.
 Horat. Cooles viii. 7.
 Hoshca vii. 6.

Hircanus x. 13.

J.

Jacob iii. 1.

Jaddus viii. 34.

Jael iv. 3.

Janiculum vii. 10. viii. 7.

Janus iv. 4. vii. 7. ix. 6. x. 28.

Japetus iii. 3.

Japhet i. 3.

Jalon iv. 8.

Idols ii. 3.

Jehoram vi. 4.

Jehoshaphat vi. 3.

Jephtha iv. 12.

Jeremiah vii. 10.

Jericho iv. 1.

Jeroboam vi. 1.

Jerusalem vii. 2. x. 13.

Jesus Christ x. 29.

Ilus iv. 8.

Inachus iii. 2.

Indus iv. 5.

Joash vi. 5.

Job iii. 2.

Jocasta iv. 11.

Jordan iii. 5. iv. 1.

Joseph iii. 1.

Josiah vii. 10.

Joshua iii. 5. iv. 1.

Jotham vi. 9.

Iphicrates viii. 26.

Iphitus vi. 8.

Isaac ii. 6. iii. 1.

Isaiah vii. 6.

Isocrates viii. 25.

Israel iii. 1.

Isthmian games iv. 10.

Italy iii. 7.

Juba x. 20.

Judah vi. 1.

Judith vii. 8.

Jugurtha x. 25.

Julia x. 15.

Julius Cæsar x. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20.

21. 22.

Julus v. 3.

Jupiter ii. 7. iii. 2. 6.

L.

Lævinus ix. 9.

Laius iv. 11.

Lamachus viii. 21.

Laomedon iv. 8.

Latinus iv. 6. v. 13.

Lavinium v. 1.

Laws vi. 7. viii. 17.

Leah iii. 1.

Lentulus x. 14.

Leonidas viii. 14.

Lepidus x. 24. 25.

Leuctra viii. 28.

Libya iv. 2. vi. 7.

Linus iv. 2. 5.

Livius Drusus x. 6.

Livy ix. 14. x. 28.

Lot ii. 6.

Lucilius x. 4.

Lucius Sextus viii. 27.

Lucretia viii. 1.

Lucretius x. 14.

Luctatius ix. 6.

Lycaon iii. 7.

Lycurgus vi. 6.

Lydians vii. 4.

Lyfander viii. 24. 28.

Lyfimachus ix. 2.

M.

Maccabees ix. 16.

Macedon ix. 15.

Magic ii. 3.

Maia iii. 6.

Manasseh vii. 2. 8.

Mandane vii. 17.

Manlius viii. 30. 32.

Manna iii. 5.

Mantineæ viii. 28.

Marathon viii. 9.

Marcellus ix. 6. 8. 9.

Mardonius viii. 15.

Marius x. 5. 8. 9.

Mars iii. 2.

Massinissa ix. 10.

Medea iv. 8.

Medes ii. 5. vii. 4.

Medon v. 8.

Megasthenes ix. 1.

Melanthus v. 8.

Melchisedeck ii. 6.

Memphis ii. 2.

Menahem vii. 2.

Menander ix. 2.

Menelaus iv. 13.

Menenius viii. 10.

Meneis ii. 2.

Mercury ii. 2. iii. 6.

Mesopotamia iv. 2. 3.
 Metellus x. 10. 12.
 Methufelah i. 2.
 Mezentius v. 1.
 Micipsa x. 5.
 Midianites iv. 7.
 Miltiades viii. 9.
 Minerva iii. 2.
 Minos iv. 2. 4.
 Minotaur iv. 9.
 Minucius viii. 16.
 Mithridates x. 8. 10. 12.
 Moses iii. 4. 5. 6.
 Mummius x. 2.
 Munda x. 21.
 Music i. 1.
 Mutina x. 23.
 Mutius viii. 7.
 Mycenæ v. 5.

N

Nabonassar vii. 3.
 Nabopallassar ib.
 Nebuchadnezzar vii. 3. 4.
 Nebuchadonosor vii. 2.
 Necho vii. 5.
 Nehemiah viii. 18.
 Neptune ii. 7. iv. 2.
 Nicias viii. 21.
 Nicomedes x. 8.
 Nimrod ii. 1. 2. vii. 2. 3.
 Nineveh ii. 3. vii. 2. 3. 4.
 Ninus ii. 3. vii. 2.
 Ninyas ii. 4. 5.
 Niobe iv. 3.
 Noah i. 3.
 Numa vii. 7.
 Numantia x. 2.
 Numitor v. 3. vi. 10.
 Nysa iv. 3.

O

Ochus vii. 18. viii. 31.
 Octavia x. 27.
 Octavianus x. 26. 27. 28.
 Octavius x. 23. 24. 25.
 Oedipus iv. 11.
 Oenotrus iii. 7.
 Ogyges iii. 2.
 Olympic games iv. 10. vi. 8.
 Omri vi. 2.
 Orcus iv. 2.

Oropastes viii. 4. 5.
 Orpheus iv. 8.
 Ostia vii. 10.
 Othniel iv. 3.
 Ovid x. 28.
 Oxyartes ii. 3.

P

Pacuvius x. 1.
 Palestine ii. 6.
 Panætius x. 1.
 Panfa x. 23.
 Paris iv. 13.
 Parmenides viii. 18.
 Parnassus iii. 6.
 Parrhasius viii. 18.
 Pasagarda vii. 18.
 Patizithes viii. 4.
 Patriarchs iii. 1.
 Patricians vii. 1.
 Pausanias viii. 15. 31.
 Pelasgi iv. 6.
 Pella viii. 31.
 Pelopidas viii. 26.
 Peloponnesian war v. 8. viii. 20.
 Pelops iv. 5.
 Periander vii. 16.
 Pericles viii. 20.
 Perseus iv. 5. ix. 15.
 Phaeton ix. 7.
 Phalaris vii. 16.
 Pharaoh ii. 2. iii. 4.
 Pharnaces x. 20.
 Pharsalia x. 18.
 Phidias viii. 18.
 Philip viii. 31.
 Philippi x. 26.
 Philistines v. 2.
 Phoroneus iii. 2.
 Phraortes vii. 2. 4.
 Phryxus iv. 8.
 Picus iv. 6.
 Pindar vii. 16.
 Pisgah iii. 5.
 Pisistratus vii. 16. viii. 3.
 Platæa viii. 15.
 Plato viii. 25.
 Plautus ix. 12.
 Pluto ii. 7.
 Pollux iv. 8. viii. 8.
 Polybius x. 1.
 Polycletus viii. 18.
 Polycrates vii. 16.

Polynices iv. 11.
 Pompey x. 7. 10. 11. 12. 13. 15. 18.
 Pompey's sons x. 21. 25. 26.
 Porfenna viii. 7.
 Posthumus viii. 8.
 Prætor viii. 27.
 Praxiteles viii. 22.
 Priam iv. 8. 13.
 Procas v. 3.
 Prometheus iii. 3.
 Propertius x. 28.
 Proscription x. 9.
 Proserpine iv. 2.
 Psamminitus vii. 5. 18.
 Psammithichus vii. 5.
 Ptolemy ix. 2. 4. 7. x. 18. 19.
 Pub. Rupilius x. 4.
 Pub. Scipio x. 1. 2.
 Pul vii. 2. 3.
 Pygmalion vi. 7.
 Pyrrha iii. 6.
 Pyrrhus ix. 3.
 Pythagoras vii. 16.

Q

Q. Cincinnatus viii. 16.
 Quintus Curtius x. 28.

R

Rachel iii. 1.
 Rebecca ib.
 Red Sea iii. 5.
 Regillus (lake) viii. 8.
 Regulus ix. 6.
 Rehoboam vi. 1.
 Remus vi. 10. vii. 1.
 Rhadamanthus iv. 2.
 Rhea Sylvia vi. 10.
 Rome vi. 10. viii. 23.
 Romulus vi. 10. vii. 1.
 Romulus Sylv. vi. 5.
 Rutuli v. 1.

S

Sabaccus vii. 5.
 Sabines vii. 1.
 Sacred Mount viii. 10.
 Sacrifices iii. 5.
 Saguntum ix. 8.
 Salamis viii. 14.
 Sallust x. 14.
 Samaria vi. 1. vii. 2. 6.

Samson v. 2.
 Samuel v. 4.
 Saosduchinus vii. 2.
 Sappho vii. 16.
 Sarah ii. 6.
 Sardanapalus ii. 5. vii. 2.
 Sardis vii. 17.
 Saturn ii. 7. iv. 6.
 Saturninus x. 6.
 Saul v. 4. 6.
 Scipio Africanus ix. 10. 11. 12.
 Scipio Asiaticus ix. 14.
 Scipio Nafica x. 3.
 Scythians vii. 3. 4.
 Seleucus ix. 2.
 Semiramis ii. 4.
 Senators vii. 1.
 Sennacherib vii. 2. 4.
 Septuagint ix. 7.
 Sertorius x. 10.
 Servius Tullius vii. 15.
 Sesostris ii. 2.
 Seth i. 1.
 Shalmaneser vii. 2. 6.
 Shem i. 3.
 Shifhak vi. 1.
 Sibylline books viii. 1.
 Sichæus vi. 7.
 Sicily iv. 6.
 Simonides vii. 16.
 Sinai iii. 5.
 Sifera iv. 3.
 Smerdis viii. 4.
 Social war x. 7.
 Socrates viii. 22.
 Sodom ii. 6.
 Solomon v. 9.
 Solon vii. 14.
 Sophocles viii. 22.
 Sparta iii. 2.
 Spartacus x. 11.
 Spartus iii. 2.
 Speusippus viii. 32.
 Sphynx iv. 11.
 Spolia opima vii. 1. viii. 19.
 Spurius viii. 11.
 Steficorus vii. 16.
 Strabo x. 28.
 Sulpitius x. 8.
 Sylla x. 5. 8. 9.
 Sylvius v. 3.
 Syphax ix. 10.
 Syracuse ix. 9.
 Syria vii. 2. 4.

T.

Tanis ii. 2.
 Tantalus iv. 5.
 Tarquin. Priscus vii. 12.
 Tarquin. Superb. viii. 1. 7.
 Tatius vii. 1.
 Temple (Solomon's) v. 9.
 Terguæ x. 1.
 Terent. Varro ix. 8.
 Teucer iv. 5.
 Thales vii. 4.
 Thebes ii. 2. iv. 4.
 Thebez iv. 7.
 Themistocles viii. 12. 14.
 Theophrastus ix. 2.
 Theopompus vi. 9. ix. 1.
 Thermopylæ viii. 14.
 Theseus iv. 9. 10. v. 5.
 Thin ii. 2.
 Thraſybulus vii. 16. viii. 24. 26.
 Thucydides viii. 20.
 Thyestes iv. 11.
 Tiberinus v. 3. vi. 3.
 Tibullus x. 28.
 Tiglathpileſer vii. 2. 3.
 Tigranes x. 12.
 Timantes viii. 18.
 Timotheus viii. 26.
 Titans ii. 7.
 Titus Quinctius ix. 13.
 Tobias vii. 6.
 Tolumnius viii. 19.
 Tomyris vii. 18.
 Torquatus viii. 30. 32.
 Toforthus ii. 2.
 Tribunes viii. 19.
 Trifmegiſtus ii. 2. iv. 4.

Tros iv. 5.
 Troy iv. 5. 8. 13.
 Tullus Hoſt. vii. 9.
 Turnus v. 1.
 Tyre vi. 7. viii. 34.
 Tyreſias iv. 1.

U.

Umbrians iii. 7.
 Uziah vi. 6.

V.

Valerius viii. 30.
 Varro x. 14.
 Vcientes vii. 15. viii. 13.
 Venus iii. 2.
 Vetunia viii. 11.
 Virgil x. 28.
 Viriatus x. 2.
 Viridomarus ix. 6.
 Volſci viii. 1.
 Vulcan iii. 2.

X.

Xantippus ix. 6.
 Xenocrates viii. 32.
 Xenophon viii. 25.
 Xerxes vii. 18. viii. 14. 16.

Z.

Zedekiah vii. 13.
 Zeno ix. 2.
 Zeuxis viii. 18.
 Zopyrus viii. 6.